OBITUARY.

Mrs. Nancy Jenks Bond, whose death was noted last week, was the youngest daughter of Dr. Nicholas and Betsey Potter Jenks, and for many years the last survivor of a family of eight children. She was born July 2, 1817, in West Boylston, Mass. The deep religious influences of the family circle undoubtedly contributed very largely to the formation of a character that contained many unusually strong features, among the most prominent being her reverence for the Scriptures, her love for her church and the members thereof, and her willingness and readiness to improve every opportunity to speak a word for her Saviour.

When she was about 14, she entered the family of her eldest sister, Mrs. Fitz. Soon afterward Rev. Hervey Fitz was settled over the Central Baptist church in Middleboro. In January, 1832, during a series of "protracted meetings" she was converted, and with 16 others was baptised by immersion in Nemas-ket river, it being necessary to cut the ice for the ceremony. Leonard Tobey was principal of Peirce Academy at this time, and for a year and a half she attended school there, forming many lifelong friendships. On leaving the academy she opened an infant school in the ell of the Joseph Jackson house, now occupied by Mrs. Bradford G. Harlow. She charged six cents per week until she had 25 pupils, when the tuition was raised to eight cents per week. The methods of teaching the little children were original and devised by Miss Jenks; without doubt this was the first kindergarten school taught in America. Many years afterward, when the kindergarten was introduced from Germany, it was found to be essentially the same as Miss Jenks had used in 1834. She afterwards taught in Southbridge and in West Boylston, and in 1836 Tyler Batcheller of North Brookfield engaged her to teach her system as the primary public school. This she continued until the close of the summer term of 1838, when she resigned, and in the following November was married to Thomas Bond, a merchant of North Brookfield.

When her eldest child was six years old, she received into her family the two sons of Mr. Bond's sister, Mrs. Haskell, who at the tender ages of six and eight years were left orphans. Mr. and Mrs. Bond brought them up in all respects the same as their own children, of whom they had four, two sons and two daughters. The eldest, T. Edward Bond, resides in New York city; Elizabeth J. Bond entered into the Heavenly home at the age of 25; Charles W. Bond was only twelve years of age when he was called hence; Mrs. Carrie L. McFarlan was residing at Burlington, Vt., the wife of the Baptist clergyman, beloved by the entire church, when at the early age of 32, the summons came to join the dear ones on the other shore.

During Mrs. Bond's lifetime, both she and her husband were always closely identified with church work, especially so at East Brookfield, Shawmut Avenue, Boston, West Newton and Newton Centre. Mr. Bond departed from this life in 1885, and Mrs. Bond remained with her daughter, Mrs. McFarlan, at Columbus, Ohio, and Burlington, and in the church of her faith in both cities she was very active in the Master's service. In 1890 she returned to Middleboro, and for the principal part of the time resided with her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Jenks. As long as her physical strength would permit she was a regular attendant on various meetings of the church, and when she no longer could go, it was her custom to send a letter to the monthly covenant meeting and thereby give her testimony, with the hope it would be the humble means of accomplishing some good.

For many years it has been her oft-expressed wish, that when the time came for her to join the loved ones over yonder, she might be spared a long illness, and that the transition might be sudden and she hoped painless; her wish was fully granted. Thanksgiving dinner was partaken with relatives and friends, as had been her custom for many years, and on her return home she expressed how much pleasure it had given her. The Monday following she was about the house as usual, attending to the many things relating to her wants and comfort, as she had always insisted on doing. About 6 o'clock, Tuesday morning, her usual time for dressing, she was heard moving about the room. A few minutes later a friend looking in found her on the floor. When replaced on the bed, she opened her eyes, smiled, and in a few minutes had quietly gone to the loved ones she so longed to join. Thus ended her 88 years of life with us. The interment was at Newton cemetery. "Hail, Good Woman! The Master call-eth."

In Memory of Caroline Jerome Bullens.

More than forty years ago, when Newton was a country town, and Newton Corner a small village, when Grace church was a little wooden chapel, and the Newton Hospital had not been thought of, when everybody knew everybody else and a simple neighborliness was the chief characteristic of the town's social life, a very familiar figure among us was that of a small slight woman, totally blind, who, nevertheless, took her full part in all the tasks and duties and pleasures of the home, school, church, and community with a sunny, patient smile, an eager, outstretched hand, a ready sympathy for others, a clear intellectual vision, a determined will and a high standard of thought and action. As the town has grown and developed, and the men and women in it have grown to larger duties, larger capabilities and larger achievements, the influence of this same trusting, cheery, indomitable character, has had a wider and larger scope. Simple, genuine, unostentatious, looking out on life bravely and happily through eyes that saw only the good in the world and the people in it, she lived a long and very helpful life; a life for which the men and women who were her associates, and the boys and girls who grew up about her, were the richer and the better. She used her weakness for strength, and has left the world the better because she lived in it. Per ardua ad astra. C. T. D.

Funeral of Mrs. Bullens.

The passing of Mrs. Caroline A. Bullens, wife of Mr. George S. Bullens, means Newton's loss and Heaven's gain. She was a woman of large Christian sympathy demonstrating her faith in her Redeemer by her loyal and constant attendance to her church and in her home was a model wife and loving mother. The affliction which came to her through the loss of her eye sight restricted her activities but she never lost interest or wavered in her determination to overcome all obstacles and live her life in the way which seemed to her the best. The funeral which took place from Grace church on Sunday at 2 was of the simplest nature, in keeping with her life, and consisted of the rendering of the hymns, "Peace, Perfect Peace," and "Hark, Hark, My Soul" by the vested choir, prayer by Rev. Dr. George W. Shum, the rector, and Scripture reading by Rev. Robert Keating Smith the assistant rector. The bearers were Messrs Warren P. Tyler, Charles S. Holbrook, Charles W. Lord, Welles E. Holmes, James A. Tucker and Dr. F. L. McIntosh and the ushers were Messrs F. W. Stone, E. A. Phippen, H. H. Howe, G. A. Coleman, H. Palmer Millard and Chandler Shapleigh. Among those present were many relatives, neighbors and friends also representatives from the city government and Newton hospital, with which Mrs. Bullens' husband was at one time connected. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. The interment was in the family lot in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Funeral of Mrs. Brigham.

At the residence of her sister Mrs. Timothy Stewart on Davis street last Saturday morning at 9.30 occurred the funeral of Mrs. Annie J. Brigham, widow of the late Edward L. Brigham. Rev. Mr. Crain officiated and there were a number of relatives and friends present. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The burial was at Nashua, N. H.

Mrs. Fanny T. Hazen, president of the Massachusetts Association of Army Nurses and also president of the National Association of Army Nurses of the Civil War, represented these organizations at the funeral and draped over the body of Mrs. Brigham the flag she had so loved and served under during the days of '61-'65. The national association expresses in this way the love, respect and admiration for the years of devoted service given by these noble women to their country.

Mrs. Brigham, as a nurse in the Civil War, went to the front with the Fourth New Hampshire Regiment, Colonel Whipple in command, and later commanded by Colonel Bell. Mrs. Brigham, who was a native of New Hampshire, was on the march with General William T. Sherman's force from Atlanta to the sea. She served under the name of Anne J. Sawyer. After the war she was married to Mr. Brigham.

Colonel Bell requested that, at his death, his old nurse, Mrs. Brigham, be called to drape over his breast the flag he helped to save and with her own hands place his sword by his side in the casket. This service she most reverently performed as the last tribute of love and respect to the brave veteran of the Civil War, one of her own "boys in blue."

CLAFLIN GUARD NOTES.

Last Friday night the second team went down to defeat before the victorious first team under the veteran Q. M. Sergt. F. A. Barrows, the score being 1st team Sergt. Barrows, Capt. 3.74 the 2nd team Sergt. Johnston, Capt. 3.67. Next Friday night the 3rd and 4th teams under Sergt. Muldoon and Sergt. Conroy will endeavor to wrest the honors from the winning team.

The "awkward squad" is showing considerable improvement under the skillful eye of the drill sergeant.

The privates' association are working hard on their military drama "Under the Weeping Willows" which will be given in the town hall at Watertown Friday night, Jan. 18 at 8 o'clock.

Lieut. Daniels improved his opportunity, during the reception to the new mayor at City Hall Monday afternoon, in agitating the movement for a new Armory. The record of the Company justifies their call for more commodious quarters, and it is hoped that the mayor will see his way clear to bring this matter up for serious consideration.

Sprague-Burbank.

Miss Dorothy A. Burbank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Z. Burbank of Jamaica Plain, was married on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Charles E. Oberhauser, 68 Perkins street, Jamaica Plain, to Mr. Laurence A. Sprague of West Newton. The Rev. W. W. Bustard, pastor of Dudley street Baptist church, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Charles E. Oberhauser was matron of honor, Miss Ethel R. Ripley of Malden, bridesmaid, and Mr. Burton L. Thomas of Jamaica Plain best man. The ushers were Messrs Charles E. Oberhauser and Edward W. Belcher of Malden. A reception followed the ceremony, the receiving party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Burbank, Mrs. Emma Sprague, mother of the groom, and Mrs. Susan Granger, grandmother of the bride. The bride's gown was of crepe de chine and duchess lace; the matron of honor wore white duchess satin; Mrs. Burbank's gown was pompadour net, and the groom's mother wore black chiffon with duchess lace. After a trip in the South Mr. and Mrs. Sprague will reside at 17 Perkins street, West Newton, and will be at home to their friends in March.

Annual Meeting and Banquet

The annual meeting and banquet of the Bay State Automobile Association was held at its quarters in the Casino at Auburndale Monday afternoon and evening, and like all of its predecessors proved decidedly attractive and entertaining. The business meeting was held during the afternoon. The reports of the several officers and committees showed the association to be in a most excellent condition. Numerically it numbers 394, while financially it is strong and vigorous, having, with all bills paid, over $3000 cash balance.

The elections brought forth one or two spirited contests, but the only changes in the board of last year were those caused to fill vacancies owing to resignations or declination to accept office again. These officers were elected: President, Lewis R. Spence; vice-president, Harlan W. Whipple; treasurer, Herbert L. Bowden; secretary, J. Fortescue; directors, John C. Kerrison, Charles E. Fay, E. A. Gilmore, F. A. Hinchcliffe and J. H. MacAlman.

Votes of thanks were passed to retiring Directors W. W. Burke and Harry Fosdick, and also to W. J. Foss, former chairman of the runs and tours committee, for the excellent work they had accomplished since the formation of the association.

At the conclusion of the annual meeting the board of directors held a meeting and arranged for the work of the ensuing year. These standing committees were appointed: Runs and tours, E. A. Gilmore, chairman; A. H. Barnard, Roy Fay; entertainment committee, J. H. MacAlman, chairman; F. A. Hinchcliffe and W. T. Helfer; club house committee, J. Fortescue, chairman; George W. McNeir and H. D. Church.

In the evening the annual banquet was held, which took the form of a New Year's party, some 60 odd members being present. President Lewis R. Spence was toastmaster, and introduced the speakers in a proper and becoming manner, extolling their virtues and overlooking their faults, if they had any, and the feast of eloquence lasted until late in the evening, the gentlemen participating being C. H. Larsen, J. H. MacAlman, A. H. Barnard, L. B. Butler, F. A. Hinchcliffe, W. T. Helfer, James Sullivan and the retiring secretary. Those present were:

C. L. Whitney, William Gray, H. D. Comerai, Simon H. Barker, E. A. Gilmore, George A. Campbell, George W. McNeir, Edgar W. Russell, S. M. Harmon, J. H. MacAlman, Alfred Measure, W. L. Henegan, F. A. FATAL ACCIDENT.

Carroll Daly, the assistant fireman at the Newton pumping station on Needham street, Upper Falls, while fixing a trap on a steam pipe near the ceiling of the engine room about three o'clock Monday afternoon, was evidently taken with a touch of vertigo, for two persons present saw him sway back and forth for a second and then drop heavily to the floor, alighting upon his feet but immediately falling to the floor and striking his head on the brick pavement. He lived but a few minutes. Mr. Daly was about 40 years of age and unmarried. He has been employed by the water department for some fifteen years.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded. J. G. Kilburn.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Grand Opera House—It is claimed by those most familiar with Theodore Krimmer's work as a popular playwright, that the new melodrama, "A Race for Life," to be produced for the second time at the Boston Grand Opera House next week, is in plot, construction, individuality of characterization, and sustained interest and sensation, much the cleverest thing he has yet turned out. Its scene is laid in the wild region bordering on the Sierra Nevada range of the Pacific slope, and the story told in the four heart-touching acts, ranges from Anston Seymour's cattle ranch to the race track at Los Angeles; serving to both melodramatically and mirthfully introduce the typical good and bad and fierce and funny characters bred and developed where men are largely a law unto themselves. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Keith's Theatre—A strong and well balanced variety program, fully up to the standard of any seen at that popular playhouse this season, will be offered at Keith's the week of January 8. Quite an original and unique hilariously funny decorations will be revelations even to old timers. The committee have simply outdone themselves, and every visitor will be astonished at the display. When we mention the fact that nearly 150,000 square feet of space has already been sold—more than was ever sold at any Auto Show before—and that the exhibition will be the largest of its kind in the world, some idea will be gained of its mammoth size. Some of the most beautiful and conveniently fitted cars ever manufactured will be at Mechanics Building as well as the best styles of almost every manufacturer in the United States and Europe. The motor boats will create an intense interest as they did last year, and from the fact that builders are still filling orders taken at the last show, it would seem as though the "boats that motor" will give the "cars that buzz" a close race for popularity. There will be a large display of boat engines, and the practical demonstrations which will be given by a number of manufacturers as well as interested spectators. The decoration of the halls is to be unique and beautiful, and Boston will be treated to something distinctly new. The details are not being published but are jealously guarded by the committee who feel that they have indeed discovered something in the decorating line that will turn Mechanics Building into a fairyland.

Majestic Theatre—Low Dockstader with his famous minstrel company of

pected that the audience has two laughs one at Dockstader and the other at itself. After this come two sketches and clog and soft shoe features and singing of some old-time minstrel songs that will please the graybeards and the younger folks. The company will remain at the Majestic for next week only and will play in no other New England City.

Tremont Theatre—The second week of "The Galloper" at the Tremont Theatre started off auspiciously on Monday night. The success of Raymond Hitchcock in the new Richard Harding Davis farce is a certainty. The audiences have well-nigh tested the capacity of the theatre at every performance. Both star and principals receive repeated curtain calls after each act, and Mr. Hitchcock has been obliged to address his audiences at every performance. A Hitchcock curtain speech is in itself worth the price of admission. The Boston press has enthusiastically endorsed the play, the star, the company and the production, and it is doubtful if a more generally successful farce has been presented in a Boston theatre in years. For a genuine evening's entertainment the admonition is go see Hitchcock in "The Galloper." Only this week and next remain.

Low Dockstader, at the Majestic Theatre

sketch, "Motoring," will head the big bill. The little sketch is presented by Harry Tate and company, and it is safe to say there is nothing funnier on the vaudeville or "legitimate" stage. It is decidedly original in its presentation and cannot fail of crowding Keith's with automobilists. It shows the loving father hurrying his son back to college, the motor car collapsing upsets the old gentleman's nerves and during the attempts to right the machine and discover what the trouble is, with the aid of everybody about, is where the real fun begins. A New York writer waxes enthusiastic over this little sketch and declares there are more laughs in its twenty minutes than you usually get in a whole evening's performance. Included in the surrounding bill will be Al W. Fison and Lee Erroll, in their funny farce, "A Tip on the Derby"; the Six Glycerettes, an organization of wonderful European acrobats; Julian Eltinge, formerly of the Cadets' theatricals, and now the foremost terpsichorean artist in America; George Wilson, blackface comedian and stump orator; Pat Rooney and Marion Bent, in comedy and acrobatic specialties; Luigi Del'Orto, European novelty instrumentalist; Leo Carrillo, mimetic comedian and whistler, and Smith and Baker, singers and dancers. The customary list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be shown in the kinetograph.

Automobile Show—There is an excitement, exhilarating feeling among the manufacturers and dealers in automobiles as they realize the intensity of the prevailing idea of owning an Auto, that seems to possess almost every man in the country. That a tremendous number of new cars will be seen everywhere, cannot be doubted, and the great Auto and Motor Boat Show to be held in Mechanics Building, Boston, in March, will bring together thousands upon thousands of interested people. The size of the show, the interesting exhibits and the over seventy persons is playing at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, this week, to crowded houses. Mr. Dockstader has always had the merit of producing good, clean, wholesome humor and fun in his entertainments, and this is one reason why he has established his own particular place. The negro minstrel performance of today is a long way from the old-fashioned minstrelsy of our fathers. Like everything else on the stage, it has been changed by the demands of modern audiences, but there are certain recognized features to minstrel shows which still make this form of entertainment a prime favorite with many theatregoers. Mr. Dockstader has taken advantage of this, and his performance can be highly recommended to those who enjoy good songs, sweet music, good jokes, clever skits and dancing. The singing in the first part of the entertainment is as good as has been heard with any minstrel company in Boston in many years. The ballad singing is uniformly good, and every soloist is encouraged. As end men Neil O'Brien and John King both make hits with their comic songs, and Mr. Dockstader makes the song, "Everybody works but father," look like new money, so novel and laughable is his method of doing it. In the second part of the performance the interest centres in Mr. Dockstader's act, which is entirely new. First is seen the "Album of minstrelsy," in which are life-size portraits of the great men in negro minstrelsy. The pages are turned, and the last page shows Dockstader in real life, but looking like a portrait. A quick shifting of scenery and Dockstader is seen in a sight-seeing automobile or "Rubber-tire" truck. He is the man behind the megaphone and keeps up a running fire at Boston, and about everything from the "district attorney to the board of police." Then with the aid of moving pictures showing Dockstader on the run, he finishes. The ending is so unexpected that the audience has two laughs one at Dockstader and the other at itself.

After this come two sketches and clog and soft shoe features and singing of some old-time minstrel songs that will please the graybeards and the younger folks. The company will remain at the Majestic for next week only and will play in no other New England City.

we venture to remind our readers of some of the things which have been accomplished during his term as mayor.His training as a lawyer has been of vast service to the city and it has enabled him in connection with the City Solicitor to settle many claims and questions which had seriously annoyed earlier administrations. One claim arising from the construction of Commonwealth avenue, upon which the city
had twice been defeated in the courts,
was amicably settled through hard and persistent work of the Mayor. Another irritating matter in connection with the improvement of Bulfinch's pond, was also settled during the past year on most advantageous terms for the city.
Still another claim involving rights of way for drainage purposes has the past week, been put upon a basis of settlement which not only protects the city
from suit but enables a long cherished drainage scheme to become practicable.
His work in connection with settlements on account of construction of Boylston street, his steady pressure upon the street railway company to install a system of street lighting and his recent successful arrangement with the Metropolitan park commission for cooperation in the building of the new bridge now under construction over Charles river at Boylston street are fairly well known.While all the legal preliminaries in regard to the separation of grade crossings on the south side had been arranged before Mayor Weed assumed office, it remained for him to urge upon the railroad company the necessity for acting promptly upon the matter.
The Company was inclined to put over the work in Newton until other important matters had been accomplished.
Of course it would have been possible
to have compelled action by recourse
to the courts, but also prepared to take this radical step, Mayor Weed by steady persistent pressure finally won a reluctant consent from the railroad and the completed work at Newton
Highlands is the result.The Mayor's work at the State House and in the Metropolitan district has been of the highest importance to Newton. The bill which he presented in the matter of gypsy and brown tail
moth work, was practically the basis of the law as it now stands.Newton with a total annual contribution of over $112,000 towards the expenses of the metropolitan district has a vital interest in the conduct of its affairs and in the apportionment which is made every five years in matters of sewer and park payments. While no change was made in the apportionment
in the last award for sewer payments,
Mayor Weed gave the subject careful study and kept in close touch with the situation. In the park apportionment, his work in behalf of the city, netted
a saving of about $12,000 for the present year and fixed a basis which for the next five years at least materially lowers the tax which Newton will have to bear. Multiply $12,000 five times and the saving in this one piece of work alone during Mayor Weed's administration is one worthy to be remembered in the outrageous assessment which Newton had had to pay for metropolitan water, which we do not use,
the Mayor working on the foundation
laid by Mayor Webb was again successful in obtaining legislation which eliminates our city from any charges
for water maintenance in the district and reduces our assessment some 50 per cent from what has been hitherto paid.While we have briefly alluded to important matters connected with Mayor Weed's administration perhaps the most popular action he has taken was in obtaining the resignation of former chief of police Tarbox. Mayor Weed inferred from the preceding mayor,
a police department, rebellious in its attitude to it. Chief, seeking with discontent, and in consequence of but in the value to the city. Chief Tarbox had been acquitted of serious charges by a former mayor and seemed secure in his position. While everyone believedthat the interests of the city required his removal, it was difficult to obtain evidence to sustain charges before the board of aldermen. Mayor Weed went to work in a characteristic manner and,
while frequently embarrassed and hampered in the execution of his orders
regarding the liquor traffic found means
not only to cause a strict enforcement of the liquor law, but also to induce Chief Tarbox to hand in his resignation.
The partial reorganization which followed, has placed the police department upon a footing of harmony and efficiency which is most gratifying to the public.Mayor Weed's administration therefore has been a noteworthy one for this city, and it is with deep regret that our citizens witness his retirement into private life, bearing with him their hearty appreciation for what he has done and their cordial good will for his future prosperity.While the GRAPHIC has repeatedly urged a reduction of the water rates in this city, it is fully aware that public opinion is the only factor which can bring about that desirable result. In another column we print a coupon form of letter to the new mayor which will bring official attention to this subject, provided our readers will manifest that interest in their own affairs, which is naturally to be expected. The facts in this connection are briefly as follows.The expenses of the water department as stated in the annual appropriation order are $118,043. To this Mayor Weed claims that $3000 should be added for items which have been erroneously charged to water construction account. Without examining this claim in detail, we accept the mayor's statement, making a total city charge for 1906 of $121,043. To this should be added the assessment for metropolitan water
which will amount to some $5,000, making a total expense for water maintenance of $126,043. The estimated water receipts on the basis of present charges
are $131,000, leaving a margin of $5000
to the credit of the water department.
If this balance of $5,000 could be devoted to lowering the general tax rate,
the GRAPHIC would not agitate the question of reduced rates at the present time, but in consequence of a statute passed in 1895 for the government of the metropolitan water district, any excess receipts are to be applied towards main extensions and other charges for permanent improvements which in this city at least always, and very properly, have been paid for from the proceeds of bond issues. The application of this surplus towards this purpose
will not benefit the tax payers of 1906.
Consequently the GRAPHIC is urging that the cost of water be cheapened in order that the persons who pay the bills
may receive the benefit of the reduced expenditures in the department. This can best be accomplished by the abolition of the meter rent charge of $1.50.
Such abolition would reduce the receipts by about $9,000, and as the estimate of $131,000 is a conservative one,
it is fair to assume that the receipts and
the expenditures in this event, would nearly balance. This meter rent charge can be abolished by order of the mayor.
Send in your request therefore to the mayor and help impress him with the fact that the public are interested in the question.The re-election of Senator Dana to the presidency of the Massachusetts Senate by a unanimous vote, is strong evidence of the esteem with which he is regarded by both Republicans and Democrats. There are few men who take their public duties as seriously and conscientiously as Senator Dana.

Last Saturday was held the dual meet between the two Bible classes of Mr.
Ellison and Mr. Moore. There were five events, 20 yd. dash won by Morton, 300 yd. run (handicap) won by Sutherland, obstacle race won by Moore's class, and the basketball game won by Ellison's class. Great excitement reigned and the rosters in the gallery were busy the greater part of the time. The races were scored on the basis of 5-3-1. Moore's class winning first and third in both, gave them twelve points. The other events scored 3 points each. The obstacle race won by Moore's class gave them 15 points, and left 12
to Ellison's class, thus winning the meet.
It is probable that a challenge will be sent to the winners and another meet will decide the championship.The meeting last Sunday was in the hands of the Boys' Work Director, who gave a talk on "Being a Leader." A large number of the older fellows were present and they had a splendid meeting. "The Remaking of a Man" will be the subject for January 7th, and will be given by Mr. Sayford, president of the association. Without doubt Mr. Say-ford is one of the best, if not the best speaker, whose name is on the list for Sunday afternoon talks. Every fellow in Newton, over fourteen years of age,
will be welcomed at these services.

POLICE BALL.

The second grand ball of the Newton Police Benevolent Association was a great success, over 1200 being in attendance at Bray Hall, Newton Centre,
on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock

when the preliminary concert began.

The hall was handsomely decorated with vari-colored bunting, the sides being festooned in blue and white, while from the centre of the ceiling to the corners and sides hung folds of the national colors. At the rear of the stage
the emblem, "The Newton Police Bid you a Happy New Year," appeared in gold letters on a red background.A committee consisting of Chief Mitchell, Captain John Ryan, Lieut.
Fletcher, Lieut. Soule, and Patrolmen
Parrell, Johnson, Allen, David Neagle, Quilly and Maurice F. Kiley received the guests until nine o'clock, when the grand march headed by Chief Mitchell and Miss Alice Harrison was fore-dancing followed until three o'clock.The guests included nearly every city official of prominence, heads of departments and members of the board of aldermen, as well as police officials from Boston, Cambridge, Waltham, Brookline, Watertown, Natick, Wellesley and South Framingham.Chief Mitchell was floor marshal, with Lieut. Robt S. Harrison and patrolmen
John J. Davis and Richard B. Conroy floor director and assistant floor directors respectively. The aids were patrolmen William Butler, Richard A. Dalton, Edward Desmond, Richard J.
Goode, William H. Dolan, John H. D.
Shaughnessy, Jeremiah F. Lucey, Edward P. O'Halloran, Richard T. Taffe, William J. Kiley, John McNeil and John D. Ryan.Much of the credit for the success of the affair was due to the efforts of the committee of arrangements which was headed by patrolman John J. Davis of division 2, assisted by patrolmen Peter J. McAleer, William Groth, James B.
Dugan and a corps of 14 assistants.

Hospital Notes

The regular Quarterly Meeting of the Board of Trustees was held at the Hospital on Thursday, December 28th, and was attended by President Leeson, Mrs.
Ames, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Bellows, Mrs.
Carter, Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs. Gould,
Mrs. Leonard, Miss Lovett, Mrs. Munford, Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Saltonstall.
Dr. Hunt, Dr. Porter, Mr. Bothfield, Mr.
Bullens, Mr. Day, Mr. Early, Mr. Farley, Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Kelsey, Mr.
Leonard, Mr. Pulsifer, Mr. Travelli,
Mr. Tyler, Mr. Wilder and Mr. Bray.Interesting reports were presented by members having in charge the different departments of work.
Since the last meeting the Endowment Fund has been increased by a gift of $1000.00 and the Kitchen Fund by additional gifts amounting to $2000.00.
The changes in the Administration Building are nearing completion and the re-modeled structure will serve admirably for the purposes for which it is intended. The new kitchen, for which the Hospital is so largely indebted to Mrs. Paine, is now in regular use, and the building is to be known as the "Harriet Gould Paine Domestic Building."The managers of the Training School for nurses and of the District Nursing Association, have been formulating
plans to make possible the amalgamation
of the two bodies so that the work can be carried on under the management of the Hospital. Definite recommendations will be presented at the Annual Meeting of the Hospital Corporation.The increase in the corps of nurses
will make such an arrangement possible
and it is believed that the service which has meant so much to some of the citizens of Newton can be made more effective through increased facilities.

Hollis Street Theatre—"De Lancey."

John Drew's greatest comedy success, which had such an auspicious opening at the Hollis Street Theatre last Monday evening, and has played to packed houses at every performance since, will enjoy another week's run at that fashionable playhouse, beginning Monday evening, Jan. 8. If the great demand for seats can be taken as a token, it is safe to say that the play during its Boston engagement will be greeted at each performance by an audience as great, as appreciative and as enthusiastic as that which welcomed this perennial favorite at its opening performance at the Hollis. Mr. Drew's popularity has a very solid basis in the appreciation of fine dramatic art. It is undoubtedly true that in all his creations the striking personality of Mr. Drew appears and compels recognition; but the art of this admirable actor so adopts and harmonizes his peculiar talents to the matter in hand that in each new personification he seems the most excellent interpreter.

As the Boston Post says: "Those who wish to see John Drew at his best will see him in 'De Lancey.' The company which Mr. Charles Frohman has assembled for the production of Mr. Augustus Thomas' comedy which has held the stage in New York for four months, and which is shortly to be taken to the Duke of York's Theatre in London, is admirably selected. There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Mrs. Abby Stearns Morton.

Following an illness which had its beginning several years ago and which became of more serious character about three years ago, Mrs. Abby A. (Stearns) Morton, widow of Marcus Morton, died Wednesday morning at her home at 80 Elm street, West Newton. Her husband, who died about three years ago in his seventieth year, was for years a member of the old-time firm of George How & Co., piano manufacturers in Boston, a firm which some time ago went out of existence. Mrs. Morton was the daughter of George and Abigail Stearns of Belmont, formerly of Arlington. She was sixty-seven years of age. Her marriage to Mr. Morton took place in 1892, and they took up their residence in West Newton. For many years, when her health permitted, Mrs. Morton was practically at the head of the charitable work undertaken by ladies of the First Unitarian Church in West Newton, with which she was closely identified. She is survived by one son, Chester A. Morton, and a daughter, Miss Alice Morton, both of West Newton.

Funeral services will be held at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon at the family residence on Elm street.

Newton Man Honored.

Mr. Arnold Scott of Newton has been appointed assistant district attorney of Middlesex County by District Attorney Sanderson, to succeed Mr. Hugh Bancroft of Cambridge who has resigned.

Mr. Scott qualified for the position on Wednesday and entered immediately upon his duties.

Arnold Scott was born at Cambridge, the son of Rev. Dr. George R. W. Scott, a Congregational clergyman, who died in Berlin, Ger., while on a mission as delegate to the national council of Congregational churches. His mother's maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Dow.

Mr. Scott was educated in the public schools, spent four years in Berlin and Stuttgart, studied two years in the French school at Lausanne, Switzerland, returned to this country and spent two years at Phillips Exeter academy, graduating with the class of '93. Then he went to Harvard University, being graduated with the class of '97, and four years later was graduated from the Harvard law school.

It was in the same year of his graduation from the law school, 1901, that he was admitted to the bar, and he has since carried on a general practice at his present office in the Barristers' building in Pemberton sq.

He has served as trustee and administrator under the will of Moses A. Dow and in that capacity has had charge of large real estate interests. He has been acting as general counsel for the Massachusetts lighting companies, having gas and electric plants at Spencer, Arlington, Leominster, Milford and other places. He is one of the directors of the Commonwealth hospital and other corporations, and has served in a trust capacity in many estates. He is a member of the republican ward and city committee of Newton, of the Exchange and University clubs, is one of the founders and at present is secretary of the famous Tedesco county club of Swampscott. He was chairman of Mr. Sanderson's campaign committee this fall in the contest for the attorney general nomination. He lives at 186 Kendrick park, Newton.

MAYOR'S RECEPTION

Mayor Weed's New Year's reception to Mayor-elect Warren last Monday afternoon was the most successful affair of its kind since Mayor Cobb inaugurated the custom in 1898. The reception took place in the aldermanic chamber which had been cleared of its usual assortment of desks and chairs and the rostrum made beautiful with potted plants and greenery. The receiving party besides Mayor Weed and Mayor-elect Warren consisted of ex-mayors Fenno, Bothfield, Cobb, Wilson and Pickard, City Auditor Otis, City Solicitor Slocum, City Clerk Kingsbury, Mr. Edwin B. The burning question, Does club life tend to undermine home life? is to be submitted to the club women themselves for an answer. The Bureau of Information in the General Federation has sent out the following circular letter to Presidents of clubs throughout the country: "My Dear Madam President,—In view of the fact that criticism has been offered that the club movement tends to wean women from the home, it has been considered advisable to collect a few statistics regarding the club women of the country. We are confident that we shall be able to refute the charges with actual proof. Will you, therefore, in order that these statistics may be as nearly accurate as possible, assist us by answering the following questions fully and promptly?—

"How many members are there in your club?

"How many of these women are married women? How many are mothers?

"How many children have they? How many have young children?

"Have you any business women, and how many? Have you any teachers, and how many?

"Give number and name of lawyers, if any, among your club members; of doctors, of ministers, of other professional women.

"Mary I. Wood, Chairman."

The president of the local Biennial Board thus sets forth a few of the attractions that St. Paul holds for its promised visitors. Western hospitality is proverbial, but western hospitality refined and adorned by eastern culture and conservatism, as one finds it in St. Paul, is the perfect flower of civilization. Such hospitality awaits you. Without bustle or fuss the men and women of the capital city of the Empire State of the North-west are already carefully planning for your entertainment. Clubs are requesting definite instructions while the gentlemen are hinting at automobile rides, trolley excursions, and short railway trips to the many far-famed points of interest lying all about us, Minnehaha, Fort Snelling, Taylor's Falls, and Lakes Minnetonka, White Bear, Harriet, Calhoun, Elmo and Como, and last, but not least, our big, saucy sister, Minneapolis, will wink at you enticingly, and probably cause you to forego some of the charming programs prepared by the General Board. Don't bring your medicine chests, for St. Paul is "the healthiest city in the world,"—so says our medal won at the Paris Exposition in 1900. You are sure to be well fed, for Minnesota is the "Bread and Butter State" of the nation. Well housed you cannot fail to be, for the twins have plenty of spare bedrooms, and you will be granted the freedom of both cities. As you are entering St. Paul, your eye will be attracted to a beautiful white dome, glistening in the sunlight. This is the dome of Minnesota's State capitol building, conceded to be one of the finest public buildings in America, and in architectural design and exquisite interior decoration—the work of famous artists—unsurpassed by any edifice in this country. In this superb building it is hoped that a grand reception in your honor may be given. The stately residence of Mr. J. J. Hill includes what is perhaps the finest collection of modern French paintings in the United States. Eleven Corots, of almost priceless value, are among its treasure. At this and at the fine public and private galleries of Minneapolis you will doubtless be made welcome at stated times. Ten railroads centre in St. Paul. It is perhaps not too much to say that only in the West can one find such perfection of train service and equipment. Excursions to the Yellowstone, to the coast, and to various midway points are now being planned for your further delight at marvellously low rates. Of course, you are coming to the convention of the General Federation in St. Paul. The whole North-west bids you welcome.—From the Courant.

The last meeting of the Pierian Club was held with Mrs. Hemphill, the subject for the afternoon being the "Wars of Japan from 600 B. C. to the Present Date." Piano solo rendered by Mrs. Dresser.

The regular meeting of the Auburn Review Club was held Thursday, Dec. 28 with Mrs. A. R. Johnson, 24 Ash street. Mrs. Elmer Johnson and Miss Alice Ranlett presented Browning's "Christmas Eve" and "Easter Day."

A Cooking Class has been started under the auspices of the Newton Centre Women's Club with Miss Fannie Merritt Farmer as teacher. The first lesson a five course dinner, will be given on January 13 at 2 P. M. in the Unitarian church, Newton Centre. Tickets for the course of eight demonstration lectures will be $2.40 or thirty-five cents for single lectures. As this is much cheaper than the price of such lessons in Boston it is hoped that a large number of women will avail themselves of the opportunity.

The President of the General Federation Mrs. Samuel S. Platt Decker, sends this outline of her recent journeys to the Federation Bulletin:

Lincoln, Neb., State Federation,—Chicago, for Committee work,—Vincennes, Ind., State Federation,—Chicago, for day with Vice-President and Secretary,—Jamestown, N. Dak., State Federation,—Minneapolis, Minn., State Federation,—St. Paul, Minn., Biennial Work—a day at Kenosha, Wis., State Federation,—a day at Zanesville, Ohio, State Federation,—Piqua, Ohio, for consultation with member of Board,—Springfield, Ohio, to confer with Transportation Committee,—Binghamton, N. Y., State Federation,—a day in Baltimore, Md., State Federation,—a day with Vice President in St. Louis,—Oklahoma City, Oklahoma Territorial Federation,—South McAlester, Indian Territory Federation,—Atlanta, Ga., Annual Convention of Collegiate Alumnae and meeting of Educational Committee of Federation—a long journey, but everywhere fine meetings, much enthusiasm, splendid showing of work and plans, and never an unkind word or bit of gossip or an unworthy expression, absence of self-seeking, never a struggle for office, always generosity and loving consideration for others. This testimony will apply to each of the three long journeys taken the past year, in which twenty-six State Federations have been visited. With such results and prospects no wonder the future is of untold promise.

As the Christmas season approached, the members of the Monday Club became interested through one of its members who is a state visitor to the Newton Almshouse, in the good that they could do there in helping to celebrate that day. The season must be somewhat of a cheerless one to everyone in such an institution, but especially to one who has known better days, and that one is always to be found. Notice was given out at the club meeting before Christmas, that gifts of both money and articles would be acceptable, and the members contributed generously. On Christmas Sunday, the club chorus, assisted by Miss Bail, who gave numerous readings, went up there to entertain the inmates for about an hour. They left behind them a goodly array of packages and money and no doubt a little joy was put into otherwise almost joyless lives.

Jan. 1st the Waban Woman's Club met at the home of the president Mrs. J. H. Pillsbury.

At the business meeting eight members of the club agreed to join the Consumers League.

The lecture upon Picturesque Scotland, given by Mr. Geo. H. Worthley of Brookline, proved most interesting being fully illustrated by the stereopticon.

A vote of thanks was given Mr. J. H. Pillsbury for his kind assistance in showing the slides.

The mid-winter meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club occurred on Thursday evening, December 28, in Bray hall. It took the form of a "Guest Night with Dramatics," and proved to be one of the social events of the season in Newton Centre. A large audience was present, composed of members of the club and their guests, and at eight o'clock orchestral selections were rendered and then followed a presentation of Edmond Rostand's play "Les Romaniques."

This less-famous play of Rostand has several translations but Miss Julia C. Colby had made for this occasion a special translation and adaptation of the play which was particularly charming and graceful. All of the parts, with one exception, were taken by young ladies of Newton Centre all of them happening to be Smith College graduates, including Miss Elizabeth Mills, who had entire charge of the play and spared neither thought nor pains in making it a complete success. She showed a happy judgment in selecting her assistants as the pretty scenery and effective costumes added to the charm of the whole.

The costumes were of the Shakespearian era with long coats and high riding boots for the men and a veritable "Ada Rehan costume" for the heroine.

The cast of characters was as follows: Sylvette Margaret Mendell Percinet J. C. Colby Pasquinet E. M. Kidder Bergamin M. Rand Straforel A. Myers Blaise M. Leatherbee

Notary, bravos, wedding guests, etc., L. Rand, E. Butler, L. P. Hammond, A. F. Kidder, E. C. Stiles, M. Foster.

As soon as the names on the program were read, the audience was at once in sympathy with the play and players as they were all well known and popular and gave a holiday college spirit to the occasion.

Miss Colby's interpretation of the hero's role was exceptionally clever and she was the personification of the dreamy romantic youth who was in love with love, and incidentally with Sylvette. The audience showed its appreciation of her work in the translation and in the hero's role by its enthusiastic applause.

The heroine's part was taken by Miss Margaret Mendall of Dorchester and she made a dainty and charming Sylvette.

The roles of the stern parents were very well done and although there was not a real villain in the play, the "assumed" villain looked as fierce as a really truly villain ought to look.

Orchestral selections were beautifully rendered between the acts under the direction of Miss Haskell, by Mrs. Helen St. Clair, violin, Mrs. Grace Bullock Birch, cello, Mr. John St. Clair, clarinet and Mr. Burr A. Church, piano.

The whole program was thoroughly delightful and inspired the audience to unusual brilliancy during the social hour following when refreshments were served from prettily decorated tables under the direction of Mrs. E. B. Bowen and Mrs. J. H. Sanborn.

The Newtonville Women's Guild met on Tuesday, January second, at the New Church parlors. The program consisted of the recital of Bernard Shaw's play "Candida" by Miss Grace Chamberlain of Cambridge and vocal solos by Miss Cora Davis of Newtonville. The recital was of unusual interest.

Miss Chamberlain is a woman of rare ability and culture, and was connected with the English department of Wellesley College last year. Her interpretation of the different characters was fine and seldom is a play presented upon the stage where all the parts are equally as well sustained as they were under her presentation.

The next meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club will be held on Friday, January 12. The meeting is in charge of the Social Science committee, Mrs. Anna L. Bailey, chairman, and the subject will be "Pure Food." A luncheon will be served at one o'clock followed by a stereopticon lecture by Miss Lillian Bullock of Brookline. Miss Caroline M. Caswell will also be present and give a short talk on the Willard Y. Settlement. There will be a director's meeting on Tuesday, January 9, at Mrs. Walton's at the usual hour.

The Ladies' Home Circle will meet on Wednesday, January 10, at the Unitarian church, West Newton.

The regular meeting of the Monday Club of Newton Highlands was postponed until Tuesday, January second, on account of New Year's. Papers were given on the "Vatican" and "St. Peters" and a talk by Mrs. Thorpe of Newton Centre on "Reminiscences of Rome." The meeting next week will be on Tuesday, instead of Monday, with Miss Thompson of Lakewood road.

The Social Science Club held its regular monthly business meeting on Wednesday morning, January 3. Notice was taken of the death of Mrs. George S. Bullens. The subject of the paper for next week will be, "Three Old Bricks and their Significance."

The Newton Mothers' Club met with Mrs. L. B. Renfrew of Newtonville on Wednesday afternoon, January 3. Dr. Spaulding, the Superintendent of Schools, spoke of the "Work in the Work in the Newton Schools." Tea was served during the social hour.

New Year Reception.

The annual New Year's reception of the Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R. was held at the beautiful home of Mrs. Alexander M. Ferris, honorary regent, on Washington street was one of the brilliant occasions of the season. Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. F. T. Benner, regent, and Mrs. F. E. Stanley, past regent, received the guests in the music room, while the other officers, who were the hostesses of the afternoon, served refreshments in one of the parlors and in the dining room. Among the distinguished guests present were Mrs. Adeline F. Fitts of Chelsea, State Regent, Mrs. Caroline H. Heath, one of the state officers, Mrs. Granger of Randolph, historian of the society, many regents of neighboring chapters, as well as a large number of the members of the local chapter. The music, one of the particularly enjoyable features, was furnished by three attractive young society women of Brookline, and included vocal, violin and piano selections which were interspersed during the entire afternoon.

NEW OFFICERS.

President, Mrs. Wm. H. Blodgett; vice presidents, Mrs. Chas. H. Huswell, Mrs. Frank W. Stearns; recording secretary, Mrs. Alfred W. Fuller, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank A. Day; treasurer, Mrs. Chas. S. Ensign.

How's Your Hair?

Arthur Hudson Announces That He Has at Last Secured a Cure for Hair Troubles.

We beg to announce to the people of Newton that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M. D., England's most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name of Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives a live and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cornelia Stevens, 6 Smith Ave., Boston, Mass., says: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that I was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff, scales or a dry scalp troubles try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Albert Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. About Town

There are many expressions of regret that Mayor Weed is to retire from office. Our citizens begin to realize that Mayor Weed has given the city an excellent administration.

The New Year's reception tendered to Mayor-elect Warren by Mayor Weed on Monday was the most successful affair of the kind ever held in Newton. The Aldermanic chamber was filled with citizens and many ladies were noticed in the throng. Several gentlemen remarked at the fine appearance of the receiving party composed of the mayor, mayor elect, ex mayors and heads of departments and what a representative lot they were.

Chief Mitchell and the others in authority are to be congratulated on the fine appearance of the members of the police department at the Mayor's reception. Newton has as fine a body of policemen as any city in the Union.

Annual Dinner.

Edward T. Harrington & Co and their employees held their annual dinner Saturday Dec. 30 at the Quincy House, Boston. A large number of the 36 employees were present. After partaking of the bountiful collation a very fine program was rendered. Mr. Gleason, the junior member of the firm acted as toastmaster. Mr. Harrington, who for 35 years has devoted his time exclusively to the promotion of the real estate business, having brought about many reforms as regards advertising and the conduct of business in general, congratulated the men for their success during the past year, and predicted that the coming year would prove to be the most prosperous ever. Wm. H. Rand, the Newton representative sang two bass solos, Mr. Packard of Cambridge also contributed two songs. Hon. Chas. Bruce, ex-mayor of Everett, read a very interesting poem which he composed for the occasion. All expressed a determination to make business boom during the coming year.

At the conclusion of the festivities a bowling match was arranged to be rolled on the Adams Square alleys. Hon. Chas. Bruce was high roller. Mr. Eugene Bonney, famous for his lecture on "The origin of the clam" being a close second.

LOWER FALLS.

The engagement is announced of Mr. John Warren of Newton Lower Falls to Miss Eleanor T. Connelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Connelly of Waltham. Mr. Warren is a selectman of Wellesey.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

Pursuant to a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Allen C. Briggs to Francis J. Garrison, as surviving trustee under the will of Samuel E. Briggs, dated September 29th, 1891 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 322, Page 8, for breach of the condition of said mortgage and to foreclose the same, will be sold at public auction on Monday, January 22nd, 1906, at twelve o'clock noon, upon the premises hereinafter described, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, and therein described substantially as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in that part of said Newton called Auburnside, bounded and described as follows: Northeastly by Auburn Street seventy (70) feet; Southeastly by land now or late of Ira Potter, one hundred and thirty-five (135) feet; Southwestly by land now or late of said Potter, seventy (70) feet; Northwestly by land now or late of Blaisdell one hundred and ninety-five (195) feet. Containing thirteen thousand six hundred and fifty (13,650) square feet more or less. Being lot numbered one (1) on a plan by E. Woodward, dated December 1, 1875, and being the same premises conveyed to me by the grantee herein by deed of even date and to be recorded herewith, this mortgage being given to secure a part of the purchase price.

The premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes and assessments thereon. A cash payment of five hundred ($500) dollars will be required from the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms will be announced at the sale.

EDUCATION IN MORALSRespect For Law, For Rights of Persons And
For Rights of Property

Address Given by Augustine Jones, Supr. of Friends' School, Providence,
at the Methodist Church, Newton Upper Falls.

"Both liberty and property are precarious unless the possessors have sense and spirit enough to defend them."— Junius.

No person can thoughtfully read
his morning paper, without convictions,
that reform in society is demanded.
New York and Boston elections, and other disclosures, coming before the courts; reveal the dangers which threaten society, and the state. We know that most of the evils have been long existing, indeed that they always existed,
but we are sure that they ought to be reduced to their lowest terms. There is little satisfaction, that there have been periods and places more lawless, and persons and property less protected.

We do not for one moment believe that we have fallen on evil times, that the fathers were the only saints and worthy citizens, and that we are not again to see their pristine purity and simple life, on the contrary we now see and shall hereafter see greater things
than the past world has known.

"Blessed are the eyes which see the things that you see * * * Many
* * * have desired to see, those things which you see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them;"
nevertheless the millennium is not yet,
the door to progress and improvement
is still open!

We live in the most enlightened public opinion of the most favored nation;
and "New occasions teach new duties."
We, the people are the law-makers in our realm, and insidious anarchy and violence ought to utterly perish here like a burnt-out cinder. Those ancient God-given laws luminous with justice and mercy which emanated from Horeb
and Zion ought to reach the hearts of children; inspire our citizens and legislators with the altruistic spirit of the golden rule.

It is said that there never was an excellent work nearing perfection in which Satan did not appear, and sometimes sadly upset things. And the pathetic question of Sancho Panza, "Why don't God kill the devil," has arisen in many human souls. But to the thoughtful he is the dark background in the moral picture. The Almighty had planted a garden and seemed to delight in it, for Eden was fair, when suddenly our great adversary was present and things were at sixes and sevens. But in spite of the opposition we are advancing with tremendous strides towards the ideal development.

Consider where the race once was!
Think of Charles Darwin's story of its beginnings. "The hairy quadruped furnished with a tail and pointed ears,
probably arboreal in his habits," and then recollect where we now are, with high foreheads, brilliant eyes and not over long ears. Note our progress.

Is not this record of the race a guarantee of what the future shall be though its sublime and adventurous heights are not shown to our seeking gaze. All along the dusty road of the ages there has been a hand to hand fight with destiny, and a capture of opportunity, while our ancestors were guided by the polar star of truth and duty, and by that "pillar of cloud by day and that pillar of fire by night," at the heart of which was "that light which never was on sea or land."
We certainly shall not falter, but each generation will leave this planet a more perfect abode for men than it found it.
We are idealists doing our work however imperfectly according to the pattern shown to us in the mount.

If evidence is desired that the golden rule has really penetrated to the heart of society in every enlightened, American community, note the church spires pointing to heaven, in the midst of smiling hamlets, red school houses for the young around the corners; almshouses in every township; voting places
which stand on guard for personal liberty; hospitals for the sick; refuges for little helpless orphans; homes for broken hearted mothers more wretched than orphans; and other charitable foundations on every hillside constructed with the money of affluent men and women who loved their fellow men, an immortal honor to themselves, and to their age
and race, in the illustrious annals of brotherhood and benevolence. Add to this gracious manners and loving kindness on our streets and waysides, which hourly increases the sum total of human happiness; also the growing element of justice in trade and commerce, the inclination to study the interests of both sides in a bargain, notwithstanding all
the fraud, meanness and selfish wickedness; and then tell me are not the sermon on the mount and the golden rule
working at the hearts of men?

But whatever is commendable in this generation is due to its intellectual and moral education, secured at the home,
the school, the church, on the street or in the personal contact of companionship. If the next generation surpass us in culture it will be because we have given to them greater advantages than descended to us.

WHAT LACK WE YET?

The answer is not far to seek. Moral culture chiefly, more golden rule? The public educational work puts the stress
and emphasis upon culture of intellect,
on athletics, with a large place for glory
and fame in football, but do not forget that the really most important pillar in education and character, demanding deep, thorough foundations is the culture of the heart, the sensibilities, the conscience. This is not denied. But it is said to be difficult. All good things cost.
The bible is the text book in morals, but there are sectarian obstructions which ought to be overcome by omitting non essentials, since all can agree upon the fundamentals, without compromise of principle. The love of God and of man are very primary in this education and no Christian can object reasonably to these ideals. Intellectual culture is a life work, it is never done, and our expiring thought is like the cry of Goethe at death "More light," to be seen, it may be at once there after breaking on celestial peaks, in the life beyond.

But on the contrary moral education
and character take their bend and bias, early in the twig. If they exist with merit they are of the root and trunk,
and not put on for effect later, like displays in shop windows. Voltaire said that the first nine years of a child determine character, which needs no refu-tation.

Educators, since this culture runs its most important course so early, are quite willing that homes, mothers, kindergartens, Sunday-schools and the church should take this business to themselves
with its great responsibility to society and to the public. But if any one who has gifts or opportunity to influence the trusting soul of youth shirks his post
here he contributes to public disaster to the extent of his capacity. It is exactly this want of intermediate service between home, church and public schools,
which is bringing the cause to the ground. The work which is nobody's business, these neglected children for whom nobody cares, with ministers
sons make the dangerous classes.

Is there no further missionary service
which can save these innocent children
nestling in depraved and darkened homes? The public school is one of their opportunities, and some light from the church may reach them. But our annals show that these are not sufficient.
They have recently made their advent here, from "a land of pure delight," to be soiled, betrayed, misled by false lights on the shore, to be infected with the deadly contagion of evil.

"But trailing clouds of glory, do we come

From God, who is our home:
Heaven lies about us in our infancy."

This in a way is the beginning of us
all. In this sort of bewilderment we take our discipline of life, and stand in want of pilots and guardian angels to find the straight and narrow way. The whole sum of human experience ought if possible
to be brought to our attention, before we have had habits, and wicked fixed opinions. It is agreed that temptations resisted are a source of power. But as we face these fascinations, the very flowers stolen from heaven, it is better to do it, with the prayer "bring us not into temptation but deliver us from evil!"

We cannot teach religion any more than the flavor of a peach. It is an experience. But we can give the motive to seek for it. We can present the ideal life with its beauty of holiness. We can employ the teachings and examples of the greatest teacher and imitate his methods
in presenting truth.

Children need a stirring up, an awakening. The beginning is more than half the work. This applies to all study, all thought, in all culture—"awake thou that sleepest * * * Christ shall give thee light!"

If you can possibly awake a child out of the death of indifference and indolence of intellect or spirit, the greatest work is done. He can do the rest. Some of the mightiest men have done it with our teachers, when they once had a vision of eternal life or of the glories of science and literature.

I now approach the subject of special anxiety to me in a more concrete form.
Sometimes children are reared without due reverence for law, and without respect for rights of persons or of property. Most of the law of the land deals with these rights of persons and of property, therefore as education is a preparation for life children ought to be taught these principles early, and grow in the spirit of law and of restraint, in which all good citizens join to guard what each desires to gain, protection of person and of property.

A policeman was questioned recently
as to what protection could be afforded by the officers to fruit on trees. He replied substantially, "We have taken the opinion of officers, and can only say the best thing you can do is to cut down

your trees." The community will not stand behind us and report. They say the good neighborly feeling between them and the parents of the children is more important to them than the fruit.
The damage in any one instance is small and the effort to prove disagreeable among friends and neighbors. This policeman was of course five thousand miles from this place.

The loss of the fruit in any one instance is indeed unimportant. I want to say here I have no personal grievance to enliven my remarks. I am moved solely by the error in principle. The size and value one of little account, the evil is great. A certain old hero in the eighteenth century said "Millions for defence but not one cent for tribute." "It is na' the loss of war's gear" as Burns would say. It is the unholy intrusion with the intent to rob and steal. It is an entrance on the premises of one without his consent vi et armis, with lawless rowdiness against law and decency to plunder, an education in anarchy and in all that pertains to breaking and entering. How delightful it would be not only to give the fruit to the hungry children but to otherwise provide for them, if they are forced to steal that they might be saved from entrance to these alluring paths of pilfering.

When we attack this evil the first thing which confronts us is the false opinion of good people, that fruit on or near trees is not subject to larceny, that it is proper object of plunder for inexperienced youth to learn to take things not their own. The evil will not stop with fruit if you grant a license to steal
it. It will at once include any property which is exposed and safe reasonably
from the intrusion of officers.

It would indeed be far better that trees and gardens be destroyed and cut up at their roots, as the officer suggests, than that honest men should make them a school and rendezvous for stealing.

The question of property in fruit is well settled in law, neither does it make any difference whether it be on the tree
or under it, or on the shelves or in boxes
or barrels in the store or elsewhere.
There is a maxim "falsus in uno falsus
in omnibus," false in one thing false in everything. Persons false in small things may be distrusted in large ones.
It is certainly more cowardly to steal
out of door, unprotected property, than
to do it, in the presence of the owner.

Whoever gives countenance and support to this false teaching in morals,
gives aid and comfort to the public enemy and contributes to public injury and no argument "boys must be boys" is any excuse for plunder. Boys must be gentlemen not rowdies, boys must be honest and truthful to be trusted, without this they can never have a great and useful future. They may get graft on the other tack but they will surely lose both their own souls, character and usefulness
which is all there is in this life.

RESPECT FOR PERSONS.

I do not mean bowing and doffing
your hat at the majestic persons you meet on the boulevard in a morning ride or walk. I mean your associates. I mean the masses of all races and creeds. I mean broad humanity.

Boys are by no means always respectful to old or young people. We all have our faults and they have some. But they would have less if their attention was thoughtfully and reasonably called to these matters. They would also save much annoyance to people when older if they had been faithfully trained. I have heard of boys who smoked an old lady out of her humble cot by putting a board on the top of her chimney. Boys thought it funny. It was very wicked without respect of person.

If boys play together, and each and all enjoy the sport, it is as delightful as the sport of kittens, it is the fun of youth.
But bullies with habits of abuse and insolence, who use their strength of muscle, (they usually have no other but brawniness,) to abuse and tyrannize over boys of sense are indeed monsters entitled to sympathy indeed because they have been neglected and need above all good advice from some one whom they would heed. What respect of person could a decent boy expect at the hands of such a ruffian. We learn that at the naval and military schools they expect students to fight to be abused and to resist. It is a preparation for war. War is barbarism—there is some excuse in the savage state for such doings. Young Branche of New York was recently killed at Annapolis in one of these gentlemanly brawls of incipient soldiery. I am glad the President of the United States has pronounced his taking off a crime, and legal proceedings are under way. I fancy there is little respect for persons in a fight.

Here follows a fatal instance of
"horse play" with disrespect of persons,
ruffians again fooling without restraint (how much peril to the race is in that way of fooling.) It was an instance so common, of abuse without respect of the persons of a bride and bridegroom.

It was hazing, under the license of a joke, the fun of invited friends and companions with a freedom of person not justified by the acquaintance. The pair were captured, indeed assaulted,
and placed side by side on a dray tied hand and foot, at Danville, Illinois.
Thus they were drawn through the principal streets of the city as a spectacular exhibit. The police considering the proceeding funny, "boys will be boys," did not interfere, and the bride lost her life by the hands of these maniacs. Consider the feelings of that husband, and the liberties taken with the person of his wife, to say nothing of his own abuse. I once had a dog which had too much respect for persons and for himself to put his paws on anyone.

Hazing in college furnishes some of the most disagreeable instances of disregard for rights of persons and intrusions upon the premises of fellow students. We shall consider this more at length later.

The tenderly brought up child, the cultured boy or girl has in some respects a more difficult position, than the more mature college student, to adjust himself or herself to the surroundings at school, without stooping or compromising the proprieties of life as taught them, or showing favor to rudeness.

The first duty of rude children is to bully gentlemanly boys. Particularly if the bullies are more numerous. They apply their terms of personal derision, make them the subject of low jest and ridicule, because they are nice, proper, thoughtful. They are more than willing to "drag angels down" to their own, unhealthy, uncultured, unkempt set.

This is the time that tries the souls of boys. It is the testing period of character. A child with good heredity, and early, careful, intelligent training in morals, by example and by precept, if he is endowed with reasonable common sense will make his way in the crowd.

But he will do more than that if he can command the respect of his fellows, he is a missionary of the very most important sort. He has the inside track of all teachers and preachers, for he has close, equal and immediate access to the thoughts, feelings and interests of the children. He speaks from a boy's standpoint to boys; and he will be heard.

He may have the power, if he is gifter, and high-minded, to create a righteous public opinion in the community of children. This is the hope and anchor of the public school. This influence of excellent children in our schools, and neighborhoods, for which the state directly pays no money, is a boundless force for culture and righteousness, a salt that never will lose its savor, bursting forth from the pure Christian homes and sacred hearthstones in our midst.

As showers renew the fields with living green and a new life, so the spirit quickens these tender, receptive minds with grace. They at the threshold of life are the Christian church at work, quite unobserved of men, but known of God, for they are in his service. Senates in future years, if there is any virtue in them, or in the people who construct them, will be directed by these men of conscience, at the helm. What a majestic responsibility rests upon us in the moral culture of the citizens to be, in a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

The moral or immoral seed is sown early, as we have said, and before, in general, parents are aware, the thistles and tares are sprouting with more vigor than the good seed. This calls forth the early labors and care of parents at home. As a healthy system of our human bodies casts out and ejects poison, so the noble example and tender care of parents with the blessing of heaven will react and resist the evil; and character will come forth, firm and enduring.

Even in persons where the tendency seems to be continually evil, heredity, the good lives of ancestors, and early teaching of true mothers, and the grace of God bring forth fruits of righteousness.

When fathers and mothers have done all that they can, line upon line, likewise the Sunday school teachers, and the public instructor, still, there will be evil enough to make all persons solicitous who love their fellowmen.

Children are all the while listening, with their susceptible hearts wide open (as sensitive to influence, as a photographic negative is to sunlight) to the talk at the corner grocery, or on the wayside, or to the marvelous revelations of housemaids and servants.

Later they absorb the fictions and follies of yellow journals, and witness degrading exhibitions on the stage. Lessons more highly seasoned and more acceptable to the freedom of thoughtless, unrestrained life, sweeter, like the forbidden fruit in Eden, than the morals of the nursery with mother annexed.

This is moral or immoral education at the very seed-time of life, demanding, more than formerly, the thoughtful attention of parents and patriots, causing them sometimes to exclaim, who is sufficient for these things?

We must guard the most exalted civilization, bequeathed to us by our fathers, who so intelligently built this constitutional fabric, which we have inherited, by educating our children in reverence for law and respect for rights of property, but most in respect for rights of person with all that human dignity can confer. This is our strongest defence against the flood of ignorance and moral darkness which is borne in upon us, from Europe on the deck of every steam ship. Our common law, older in part than Magna Charta, with bills of rights reclaimed from tyrants and thrones by the people, is instinct with these rights. These rights are vindicated in every inhabited district, by state and national courts.

No man can without permit, enter the house of his neighbor, it is his castle and he may without limit defend it against intruders.

If a man's person or property be in jeopardy, he is entitled to lawful protection, with rights of trial by a jury of his neighbors, who know him.

If he be in danger of assault, he may demand the protection of magistrates and courts. If in a foreign country, he has the protection of American ministers and consuls, and of the navy of the nation if he needs it for his safety. If you are unlawfully imprisoned, or spirited away, a writ of habeas corpus follows you and brings your body, dead or alive, into court. While you sleep, watchmen guard you. This narration shows how at every step these sacred rights of person and property are defended by the law.

Our duty is certain to transmit unimpaired all of these rights, but first we must know and dare to maintain them, and teach them to our children from sire to son.

I do not mean to admit that the civil law of the land does not regard moral law instruction, moral law is its foundation. As we have already suggested there is a general feeling in some localities, that young people and students in particular, ought to be held so strictly accountable in these matters of property and personal rights that tender, thoughtless youth ought to be allowed the privileges of orchards and gardens not their own, and it is a very small matter to be preaching about. The majestic machinery of the law ought not to be set upon children. They are a law to themselves.

A colored brother was once exhorting against the sin of chicken stealing, when another brother was so affected that he cried out, "Stop, brother, right whar ye are, you are bringing a coldness over dis meetin'."

What sort of education permits college students without rebuke to break the laws of God and man, to seize poultry and produce of gardens not their own the hard-earned property of their neighbors, and steal and break windows without remorse or sense of crime? Educated young men, who are to be ministers of the gospel, doctors, judges, leaders and conservators of morals and law, guides of the next generation, in great universities, the lights of the world, being taught by neglect and by overlooking their deeds like ancient Spartan children to steal, rob and break.

The public would not endure these things from the slums of cities where hunger grinds the poor, but affluent boys who have no need to beg or steal to live may do it for fun or lawless dissipation.

The Lord taught the wicked Ahab and his horrible wife, Jezebel what his opinion was of marauding in the garden of Naboth. God taught us a lesson in dealing with them and in dealing with our first parents for taking apples from the wrong tree, the race has been smarting for centuries over these early misdemeanors. Can we forget it? These lessons and experiences are taught from sire to son, world without end; shall we not heed them?

The common schoolboy must imitate the college and older boy in vice. This is the way to be snared and respected by the set above him, to him almost the most important thing in life. Thus the evil propagates, the older people regard it as rather funny in children, "for boys will be boys." The command "thou shalt not steal" is still a living law without exemption for children. It has no limitations of much or little, from the shop or garden or tree, fields or household store, or gold or silver. It is simple, unequivocal, "thou shalt not steal!" There is respect for rights of property.

Tolerance with wrong-doing, sympathy with evil, in small matters so called, lead directly to great public corruption; the river is poisoned at its source and fountain and takes with it only growing evil until purified.

This talk may remind you of a certain man who went down to Jericho anciently and fell among people who did not respect rights of property or of persons; but there is no resemblance strictly our homes are in an honest, upright Christian community, which has reached a very exalted standard of moral, social and political life and of obedience to that "awful power" of duty, "stern daughter of the voice of God!"

It is not this generation so much here and now. It is the rising one that is in our heart. It is the future. It is the seed sowing, the neglect while enemies sow tares among the innocents. "Vigilance is the price of liberty" and also the price of virtue and good morals in the time to come. It is these things that are the cause of anxiety. We are directly responsible for the education of the next generation and we can in no manner avoid it. We are chiefly concerned to resist every retrograde and degenerate movement in the community and build it up for the future. This want of respect for persons and property is shown early among children. It is of course understood that in very tender years such rights are not known to children, and ought not to be forced too early upon their attention. But when the correct age arrives nothing is more important in morals. You will see children who ought to know better, with excellent parentage, take and use as their own, the clothing of another, hat, cap or shawl. They treat in the same way, the books, pens, paper, bats, balls, bicycles or other children—anything within reach—without having learned or if they know it, without practising the rights of persons and to be citizens of some sort. This is a fa-

the rights of property. And yet they are miliary not justified by acquaintance. It extends to familiarity, disagreeable and offensive, liberties hateful with the persons themselves. There is hardly anything sacred and inviolable, to some persons.

"The man that hails you Tom or Jack, And proves, by thumping on your back, His sense of your great merit, Is such a friend that one had need Be very much his friend indeed, To pardon or to bear it."

Yes, but "boys will be boys." Yes, but boys will first be gentlemen. Let them play free from selfish meanness, and from overhearing insolence, with mutual respect and kindness, and all sensible persons will delight in them. They must, however, be gentlemen, not old men. They must by nature act from a child's standpoint, but from the correct childhood standpoint.

There is another chapter of ethics attaching to borrowed property. A true respect for persons and property, and the rights of it demand that we shall be more careful of the property of another, when borrowed, than of our own. How many mature people are thoughtless in their treatment of borrowed books, library books and other things, because they have no selfish ownership in them. There is hardly any meanness more contemptible than this. It is perfidious betrayal and misuse of a trust. It matters not that it is small, it is all the meaner because it is a trifle. To attempt to escape responsibility on the ground of the littleness of the object is cowardly, because it may pass unnoticed. "He that is robbed, and does not know that he is robbed, is not robbed at all." But nevertheless he is robbed stealthily.

WHAT LACK WE YET?

More education in morals, at home, at church, at school and on the street. We are careful that men shall be able to read and write, before they can vote or share in the government. This is excellent, but does not reach very far. The power to read and write, however thoroughly taught and known is dangerous, unless it is joined with an obligation for its righteous use. No one can do so much to bring out the vile things in literature as he who reads well. Nobody can forge notes and bills and steal honest money like him who can write a good hand, and deceive the very elect in imitating the autographs of men. No one can poison more people than the gifted and educated painter who creates voluptuous, indelicate pictures, instinct with the witchery of genius, to hang a thousand years in galleries of art, open day and night to the public.

No sane person would create a large steam boiler and put water in it up to three-fourths of its capacity, and build a hot fire under it, without providing a governor, to let the steam off, when a certain tension of steam is reached, to save his boiler and building. Moral education is the governor in our system. It is most dangerous to educate the intellect to its utmost capacity and omit the training of the conscience; sensibilities and religious instincts, are a part of every soul. You are pressing a hundred and fit pounds to the square inch on the surface of your boiler and straining it with no governor or safety valve. You may live to draw your fire from beneath your boiler, but you never can withdraw educational power, and save the state. It is an attribute of immortal mind, indestructible. Let the soul be educated on every side in true relation of all of its parts. Is it too much to suggest that school committees, and superintendents ought to employ no teachers in the public schools, who are not religious; with excellent moral ideals? Not blind leaders of the blind but genuine missionaries not in the interest of a sect, or clan; but of righteousness, without labels, without earmarks, of a clique, but with universal morals of the golden rule type. How much this character building just outside the daily routine life of the school, where it joins the life of every true home and says the word of life and sends it to the dark desolate home does for society and the saving of the state.

The greatest service anybody can render in anything is not what is mentioned in their bond or contract, but that useful work outside which is the spirit and heart work, the zeal and the seizure of every opportunity in season and out of season to extend it. Which does not cease to be interested when the clock strikes the sixth or eighth hour, but takes the cause home and gives to it thought and conscience. This is the missionary service of education. It is not the childish man who does his stent, and quits on the instant, that is useful; it is rather the manly man, whose heart is in his work, and who shrinks from no sacrifice to attain perfection. Teaching requires more than the deathless enthusiasm of the sculptor, who presents character as he finds it in real life; the instructor must create character according to the pattern shown to him in the holy mount, the highest ideal possible in his generation.

It is natural to shirk responsibility, to avoid duty, unless personal gain is to be secured, then, we are as firm to principle as an adamantine fortress. Adam washed his hands pure of the blood of all men. It was Eve who was the cause of all our woe. The teacher says the mother's knee, and the sacred hearthstone of home is the holy altar where morals and religion are to be taught; only mothers are responsible for moral neglect, in teaching. Mothers do have the first welding heat on our destiny, no doubt. The teacher and the minister come next in our onward march. They come not as the mother does without or with the exalted qualifications for her high service to the race. The ministers and teachers are professionals in character building, they are bound to bring to this service all the skill that belongs to their historic period. They are to correct the wrong home influence, they are to give the standard morals, and the true fire for the family altar.

It is a tremendous thing to attempt to guide the trusting soul of youth, and more stupendous when the youth does not trust but has to be won over by gentleness and sweet reasonableness, or by bitter suffering which attends immorality. Therefore let neither parents, ministers, teachers, nor citizens divide responsibility, or throw dust in the eyes of the public to confuse, and confound, while either one shirks or slinks away from duty. When all have joined, without self-excuse, without jealousy, in the spirit of the great Judean Master, to save men, to call sinners to repentance, to cast in, like the poor widow, their whole living for the cause, then will righteousness prevail among men and the golden rule will be cherished, and respect for rights of persons and rights of property will be enthroned everywhere, and voiced in majestic law, and in just obedience.

This doctrine of respects for rights of persons and rights of property extends to children with their playthings, and to their personal rights in the conduct of all persons great and small old and young, towards the smallest and feeblest child which has understanding sufficient to realize its personal existence and rights of property, in toys or in anything.

There is also a respect due even to dumb animals. They also have heaven-born rights. It is a mean and cowardly exercise of power over them, to show them disrespect in any form. To rob them of what belongs to them by failing to feed and care for them, or to do anything which will add to their comfort, and usefulness. Let us constantly keep in mind that they also have an individuality and are loving fellow creatures, with-out half the selfish meanness which is in the lords of creation. How tender Burns was of the rights of birds and beasts, how with fellow-feeling he entered into their woes and wrongs. As I am writing these very lines, I am troubled by a fly on the twenty-fifth day of November. He is an active and vigilant tormentor; he will find more locations on my face than I had realized existed. In the twinkling of an eye. Now you see him; now you don't. He is like Julius Caesar in battle—everywhere at the same time.

It would indeed be a satisfaction to extinguish his lamp of life. But he enjoys existence and is having a merry time. His life may be more important in creation than I am aware. I will not be his executioner.

Sterne has given the world an immortal lesson of tenderness to the fly: "I'll not hurt a hair of thy head; go, says he, lifting up the sash, and opening his hand as he spoke, to let it escape; go, poor devil, get thee gone, why should I hurt thee? This world surely is wide enough to hold both thee and me."

Sympathy with dumb beasts, and in their afflictions reacts upon us and makes us kind with one another. If you have once associated in agreeable companionship with a noble, intelligent and cultivated horse or dog and have their sincere friendship, evermore you will think better of the whole races of horses and dogs and of all created life everywhere. You can understand the emotion of Lord Byron at the grave of his favorite dog:

"To mark a friend's remains these stones arise;
I never knew but one—and here he lies."

It is good for us to show respect to the rights of animals and to gain their deathless regard. But there is more than that in it, we thus manifest a regard for their Creator and His great purpose in creation.

When I began this paper the fundamental thought with me, was the daily report of wrong doing, a prevalent disregard of rights of person and rights of property, and that education in morals was the surest method of improvement. That there was and is a vast eclipse of heathen darkness in our midst, made more dark in seeming, because of the light manifested. We can never forget the prayer, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

"Man's inhumanity to man Makes countless thousands mourn."

This ignorance and depravity is not intellectual, it is moral ignorance, it is untrained conscience. It is a lawless unrestrained spirit abroad in the land for which public education ought to find a remedy. Republican institutions cannot survive without moral education. Religion was the foundation upon which our government was established, and upon this foundation with the blessing of God it must stand or it will fall, overwhelmed by the moral darkness and ignorance of Goths, Vandals and Huns, not from abroad, but reared within itself, consuming its own heart and life, in moral degradation which is moral ignorance. Russia shows us a spectacle of lawlessness, anarchy.

Let us teach respect for persons, for property, and reverence for law, the consummate flower of our civilization.

If you are contemplating the purchase of a piano, a good precedent to go by is that established by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC in selecting forty Stieff pianos for their school this year. THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC is the largest institution in the world for the teaching of music. Their judgment on a piano is expert.

THE STIEFF piano manufacturers make a specialty of building pianos for schools. Why? Because they have to stand a severe test and the STIEFF has stood this test for the past fifty years. Why not profit by the example set by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC? If you do you will make no mistake.

"THE KING IS DEAD" LONG LIVE THE KING"

Mayor Weed Delivers a Valedictory Mayor Warren, an Inaugural

Final Meeting of Aldermen of 1905 and Inauguration of Board of 1906

The final meeting of the board of 1905 was held at two o'clock Monday afternoon at City Hall. In the absence of President Saltonstall Vice President Carter was in the Chair. Present, Aldermen Bishop, Bosson, Bowen, Brown, Cabot, Day, Dennison, Doherty, Ensign, Hunt, Palmer, Stone, Underwood, Weston and White. Absent, President Saltonstall, Aldermen Baker, Ellis, Riley and Webster.

The annual report for 1905 of the City Treasurer, with endorsement of Accountant A. D. Albee, was received.

Notice of hearing to confirm metropolitan sewer apportionments was read and filed.

Report of the Select Committee on Early Records was received and referred to the next city government. The resignation of Alderman Ensign from this committee was received and accepted.

Vice President Carter presented the regrets of President Saltonstall that an important business engagement prevented his attending the final session of the board, and his thanks for the courtesy with which the members of the board had treated him.

A committee consisting of Aldermen Ensign and Brown were appointed to escort Mayor Weed to the aldermanic chamber in accordance with the invitation extended by the board at its last meeting.

Mayor Weed then appeared under escort of the committee and the City Messenger and delivered a valedictory address.

This address will be found in full in another column.

At the conclusion of the address the mayor retired under escort of the same committee.

An order presented by Alderman Ensign expressing the thanks of the board for the address of Mayor Weed and ordering it printed was adopted and at 2:55 P. M. the board adjourned.

The board of aldermen for 1906 convened at three o'clock on Monday afternoon for the inauguration services.

There was a large attendance, with many ladies noticed in the audience. Among those present were noted Messrs E. B. Haskell, Seward W. Jones, Rev. G. G. Phipps, Dr. S. L. Eaton, Wm. C. Strong, ex aldermen Riley, Dennison, Brown, Ensign, N. H. Chadwick, F. A. Hubbard, O. M. Fisher, Geo. Hutchinson, W. F. Harbach, Dr. F. M. Lowe, ex councilmen A. S. Weed, Geo. M. Weed, Chas. E. Hatfield, H. H. Read, E. P. Hatch, Dr. F. G. Curtis, Capt. S. E. Howard, C. S. Luitweiler, H. C. Daniels, Geo. B. King, Representative J. F. Lathrop, E. O. Childs, Jr., F. D. Frisbie, Frank R. Moore, Chas. Esty, W. H. Mague, T. J. Lyons, Dr. C. H. Newhall, H. R. Mason, Dr. J. R. McLaughlin, D. W. Eagles, H. C. Fisher, Joseph Byers, L. M. Dorr. Among the many ladies present were noticed Mrs. A. R. Weed, Mrs. E. W. Warren, Mrs. J. F. C. Hyde, Mrs. F. A. Day, Mrs. W. P. Ellison, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Bouve, Mrs. Trickey, Mrs. C. S. Ensign, Mrs. C. S. Ensign, Jr., and Miss Ensign.

Alderman elect Hunt was chosen temporary presiding officer, and the roll of the members and members elect was called by the City Clerk. All responded with the exception of Alderman Ellis and Alderman elect Webster.

Alderman Cabot and Alderman elect Doherty were appointed a committee to inform the Mayor and the Mayor elect that the board was ready for the inauguration ceremonies.

Mayor Weed, Mayor elect Warren, Rev. Dr. Geo. T. Smart, Judge John C. Kennedy, ex mayors Fenno, Bothfield, Cobb, Wilson and Pickard, Senator Dana and Representative Lowell then appeared under escort of the City Messenger and were received in due form.

City Clerk Kingsbury then announced the election and acceptance of Robert S. Gorham, William A. Knowlton, Herbert E. Wells and Herbert Stebbins as members of the school committee.

Rev. Dr. Smart offered prayer. Judge John C. Kennedy then administered the oath of office to Mayor elect Warren, and the oath was then administered to the aldermen elect by the new mayor.

After the signatures of the new members had been secured to the oath, Mayor Warren delivered his inaugural address which will be found in full in another column.

The next business was the election of a President, Mayor Warren in the chair. On motion of Alderman Cabot, Alderman Albert P. Carter of Ward Two was elected to that position by acclamation and was escorted to the chair by Alderman Hunt.

Mayor Warren and the invited guests

then withdrew under escort of the City Messenger and the board proceeded to the election of a Vice President. Alderman George H. Ellis of Ward Three being elected by acclamation on motion of Alderman Day.

City Treasurer Francis Newhall, and Clerk of Committees John C. Brimblecom were then unanimously re-elected for terms of one year and City Auditor Benjamin F. Otis was also re-elected, his term of office being for three years.

The aldermen were then assigned seats as chosen at the caucus.

Petitions of Henry E. Bishop for damages caused by defect in sidewalk and of C. A. Butterworth for $500 damage for removal of trees on Chase street were referred to the Committee on Claims.

Petitions of Frank A. Childs, Henry H. Read and Edward F. Barnes for renewal of Auctioneer licenses were granted.

Petition of James Doherty for a newsboy license and of the Telephone Co for relocation of poles on Dedham st. were referred to the Committee on Public Franchises.

Hearings were ordered on Feb. 5th on petitions of the Telephone Co. for pole locations on Greenwood st., Brookline st., and attachments on Ward st. and on petition of the Gas Light Co for poles on Border st.

On petition of Fred H. Cole to locate a gasoline tank on Washington street, ward 3, a hearing was assigned for Feb. 5th, notice of same to be advertised in one newspaper at expense of the petitioner. In answer to an inquiry of Alderman Weston if other persons were not selling gasoline in the city without a license, the President stated that he was informed that the Chief of Police was investigating the matter.

These orders were then adopted: Adopting Rules and Orders of the board of 1905; referring all unfinished business to appropriate committees; for appointment of select committee to consider Mayor's address (Aldermen Stone, Day, White, Holmes and Burr appointed); for appointment of committee on Kenrick fund (Aldermen Cabot, Doherty and Converse appointed); and establishing office hours for City Hall.

These orders were referred to the Finance Committee and subsequently on favorable report of that committee, were adopted. Authorizing publication of Mayor's address; for payment of discharged laborers in Highway, Sewer and Water departments, $500. in each case; authorizing refund of excess deposits on account of water services, $500; authorizing Treasurer to borrow, $800,000 on temporary loans; authorizing bell ringing on Feb. 22nd; granting $756,302.65 for certain fixed charges and salaries and $7,930 for the Water Dept. for 1906; granting $40,735. for city expenses to Feb. 15 and $2,700 additional for the Water Dept. and authorizing certain treasury receipts to be credited to appropriate accounts.

On favorable report of the Finance Committee $212. was appropriated for payment of certain bills of the Health Dept. of 1905.

A recess was taken from 4:22 to 4:57 o'clock for the meeting of the Finance Committee.

On motion of Alderman Weston it was voted to discontinue the publication of the proceedings of the aldermanic meetings and the Mayor was requested to cause one copy of the notes taken by his assistant to be filed with the City Clerk.

During the session President Carter appointed these committees:—

Claims—Aldermen Bishop, Hunt, Underwood, Bosson and Hall.

Finance—Aldermen Day, Ellis, Bosson, Burr, Holmes, Converse and Hall.

Public Franchises and Licenses—Aldermen Palmer, Webster, Bishop, Weston, Underwood, Doherty and Carter.

Public Works—Aldermen Hunt, Cabot, Bowen, White, Stone, Clarke and Beck.

Rules, Ordinances and Legislation—Aldermen Weston, Stone, Palmer, Cabot and Bowen.

At 5:16 P. M. the board adjourned until Feb. 5 at 7:45 P. M.

SCHOOL BOARD

The annual meeting of the School Committee was held on Monday, January 8, at 7:50 p. m.

Capt. Howard called the meeting to order.

Present—R. S. Gorham, F. H. Tucker, W. A. Knowlton, H. E. Bothfield, Marcus Morton, Albot Bassett, F. E. Howard, H. E. Wells, Cora S. Cobb, Herbert Stebbins, J. L. Caverly, A. A. Tilney, W. E. Parker.

Mr. Parker was appointed teller to count votes.

The Board proceeded to vote for a permanent secretary. All votes were for Mary E. Sherwood and Mrs. Sherwood was declared elected.

The election of permanent chairman was then in order. Capt. Howard had 1 and Robert S. Gorham 12. Mr. Gorham was declared elected.

The chairman stated that he appointed the same sub committees as last year, substituting Mr. Stebbins for Mr. Smith, and Mr. Carter for Mr. Saltonstall, and the appointments were confirmed by the Board. The Committees are as follows:—

Teachers—Mr. Gorham, chairman, Mr. Caverly, Mr. Bassett, Mr. Howard, Mr. Knowlton, Mr. Wells, Mr. Parker, Mr. Stebbins.

Mr. Bothfield presented the following order which was passed:—Ordered, That $50 be allowed the superintendent for horse hire for the current school year, and until otherwise ordered; the entire amount to be paid in five monthly installments beginning February 1, 1906.

The following order offered by Mr. Bothfield, was passed: Ordered that the secretary be and hereby is authorized to prepare and have printed 600 copies of the School Manual for 1906.

On motion of Mr. Parker, duly seconded, it was voted that the rules and regulations of last year be adopted as the rules and regulations of this Board, until otherwise ordered.

On motion of Mr. Tucker, duly seconded it was voted that all unfinished business be referred to the appropriate committees.

The following matters, referred at the December meeting to the Committee of 1906, were referred by the Chairman as follows:—Washing floors in school buildings to Committee on School Houses; continue same special committee on matter of school house needs, H. E. Bothfield, chairman, S. E. Howard, W. E. Parker; Revised Course of study in high school to Committee on Text-Books and Courses of Study; to same committee, Father Kelley's letter as to text books in the high school; to Committee on rules and regulations, suggested amendments to the rules and regulations and printing new edition of same.

The rule was suspended, and on motion of Mr. Tucker, duly seconded, the following order was passed:—Ordered, That the superintendent be authorized to expend not exceeding $500 for additional gymnastic equipment for the High School, the same to be paid from appropriation for incidentals.

Mr. Bothfield presented the following, which was passed:—

That the Board of Aldermen be requested to appoint a committee of three to sit with a similar Committee of the School Board, to consider jointly the need of new school houses in the city, and to report to both bodies.

Fountain Needed.

A public drinking fountain for the use of man, horse and dog, and also for steam automobiles, is needed on Commonwealth Avenue, Newton Centre. There is at present no drinking fountain between Coolidge Corner and Normbega Park.

It is proposed to erect such a drinking fountain at the junction of Commonwealth Avenue and Centre Street and a public spirited citizen has subscribed $5000 for this purpose. The City of Newton can be depended upon to do the necessary work of installing such a fountain and would provide for the maintenance of the same, and in addition it is hoped will appropriate from $50 to $100.

The Newton Cent Improvement Association has undertaken through a special committee—to raise the balance by popular subscription. The cost will vary from $150 up, depending upon the size, ornamentation, etc.

It is hoped that there will be a liberal response from public spirited citizens, in order that a fountain may be erected which will be a fitting ornament as well as an useful adjunct to this prominent corner.

Subscriptions may be sent to any one of the undersigned.

Mayor Weed Delivers Interesting Valedictory to 1905 Aldermen

Important Suggestions Regarding City Matters and a Strong Plea For Economy

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen:

In accepting this opportunity of addressing you again before the close of my term of office, I wish to assure you of my appreciation of your courtesy and of the kindly words in which your invitation was expressed. Two years ago I was heartily in favor of such an address from my predecessor, believing that out of his experience he might make valuable suggestions concerning the welfare of the City and that he might also be in position to speak freely then of some matters of which he could not have spoken before without embarrassment and danger of misconception. The result proved that suggestions were made by him upon which action has since been taken to the manifest advantage of the City. For similar reasons I do not feel that I can consistently, or indeed wish to avoid the task of making to you certain suggestions for whatever they may be worth, which are the result of my own experience.

The present city charter has been in force for eight years, and there has been ample opportunity to discover its virtues and its defects. It speaks well for the wisdom of those who drafted it, that the defects which have been discovered have been in minor details, and that the amendments to it which have been enacted by the Legislature have been for the purpose of making the different parts of the municipal machinery move together more smoothly and efficiently, and not for the purpose of making any radical change in the machinery itself. In the three features which distinguish this charter from its predecessors, namely: a city council of one board, the complete divorce of the legislative and executive branches of the government and the vesting of the executive responsibility in the Mayor, this charter has been proved by experience to be sound in theory, and has been the model for some of the most recent city charters enacted by the Legislature.

One provision of the charter has, happily, never been put to any practical test, and the limitation which it places upon a complete executive responsibility on the part of the Mayor has, not unnaturally, escaped attention. I refer to the provisions relative to the removal of executive officers. In Section 15 it says: "The executive powers of the city shall be vested solely in the mayor, and he may be removed by him either personally or through the several officers or boards of the city in their departments, under his general supervision and control." It then proceeds to state the method of appointment of these officers and boards and their terms of office, which are until they resign or are removed, save only in the cases of the assessors, assistant assessors and overseer of the poor. In Section 16 it says: "The mayor may, in writing, suspend any executive officer or any work, and he shall at once report his action and his reasons therefor to the board of aldermen. The suspension of any such officer shall, in fifteen days after said report is made, be a removal unless within that time he asks for a hearing before the board, which shall forthwith be granted, and upon conclusion of such hearing the board vote that the mayor's suspension be not sustained, in which case the officer shall at once be reinstated."

It is hard to escape the conclusion that, if a mayor undertakes to suspend such an officer and the latter demands a hearing, the hearing must proceed and be decided by the board on the reasons assigned by the mayor for suspending such officer and these reasons must be established, not by hearsay, opinion or conjecture, but by such evidence as is admissible to establish facts in courts of justice. It follows that, however well grounded his judgment of the officer's fitness to continue longer in office may be and however necessary action may be for the good of the public service, he cannot safely act unless he has first found reliable legal evidence to establish his contention. The difficulties in the way of procuring such evidence, especially where the charge is of incompetence alone, are so great that rather than run the risk of a public humiliation, a mayor might well prefer the embarrassing alternative of continuing in office an incompetent and unfit official. And in any event the forcing of a mayor to assume the role of a public prosecutor of an official directly responsible to him is neither dignified nor appropriate.

The present provisions of the charter were undoubtedly inserted for the purpose of protecting worthy officials from irresponsible mayors. While no one can believe more earnestly than I in protecting these officials from political reprisals and in continuing them in office indefinitely so long as they are honest and efficient, yet in our dread of what an irresponsible mayor might do, there is danger that we may paralyze the executive responsibility of a good mayor. As matters now stand, by this charter the executive officers have more protection than their own subordinates appointed under the Civil Service. If it is deemed unwise to give the mayor the absolute power of removal, at least some change should be made, and either appointments should be for a limited term of years or preferably as in the 1882 charter, the mayor should be given the power of removal subject only to confirmation by the board.

One year ago at the City election, when for the first time there was no opportunity to vote for a mayor, there was but one contest, and that for a ward alderman. The result was a general lack of interest in the election in all of the other wards. And yet all of the complicated machinery of the present laws for the holding of Primaries and Elections had to be set in motion at an expense of over $2500 of the public moneys, not to speak of the time and effort of those who saw to it that proper nominations were made. The present charter contains skillfully devised provisions by which it shall never be possible for the terms of office of all of the aldermen or all of the members of the school committee to expire at the same time. While it is certainly desirable that there shall be holdovers in both of these boards, yet experience seems to demonstrate that, whatever the terms of office, there is little likelihood of there not being such holdovers. Sixty-four men have served as aldermen since the present charter went into effect in January, 1898. Of these three died in office, and a fourth served but the unexpired term of one of these three. Ten served one year, but five of them are members of the present board and will presently qualify for a second year of service. Sixteen served two years; thirteen, three years; thirteen, four years; five, five years; three, six years; and one, seven years, and the last three presiding officers of the board have each served for two successive years. Thirty-three men and women have served as members of the school committee. Four have served one year or less, and one of them is still in office with two more years to serve. Six have served two years, and four of them are still in office with one more year to serve. Thirteen have served three years, and two of them qualify today for another three year term. Five have served four years, and two of them are still in office with two more years to serve and another qualifies today for three years more. Two have served five years, and one of them is still in office with one more year to serve. Three have served six years, and two of them qualify today for three years more.

In view of these considerations there seems to be no good reason why there should not be biennial instead of annual city elections, making the terms of office of the aldermen and members of the school committee two years, to conform with that of the mayor. If it is deemed of great importance to guard against a possible lack of continuity of either of these bodies, the terms of office of aldermen at large might be made four years instead of two, and of school committee members four years instead of three. Aside from the expense and bother which such a change would save, I believe that it would be a distinct advantage to any mayor to feel that the men who are sworn in with him when he assumes office are to continue with him to the end of his term. While this suggestion would require a good many changes in order to carry it into effect, and some legislative aid, there is no practical obstacle to its accomplishment. There can be also but little question that a similar substitution of biennial for annual state elections would be most advantageous to the public interests of the Commonwealth.

It seems perhaps fruitless and possibly academic to discuss the organization of our present city government, when it must be admitted that it has on the whole worked admirably, and that there is little excuse for advocating at the present time any change. But I am confident that many who are familiar with the business transacted by the board of aldermen and the school committee have had occasion to wonder as to their composition is respect to numbers. It is evident that a board of aldermen of twenty-one members is too large for informal discussion and is too small to be swayed by debate. It also becomes more evident every year that there is not enough variety in the business which the board is called upon to transact, to give all of its members or even a majority of them a responsible part in the work of preparation or in its deliberations. It is commonly recognized that men of strength and character are apt to shun offices of this kind unless they have the satisfaction of shaping and directing business of importance, or unless a high sense of duty, aside from any other motive, has enlisted their interest.

What I have said of the board of aldermen applies with equal and even greater force to the school committee. In the neighboring city of Boston, with far greater interests to care for, the school committee this year is composed of five members. Should this experiment succeed it may well offer a sound reason for a similar change here.

In regard to the board of aldermen, my sympathy has always been with the view so well expressed by my predecessor two years ago, namely, that in dealing with the question of appropriations the body having that power should be large enough to represent fully all of the people and all parts of the City, and might perhaps be more numerous than the present Board. But of course such a body would be ill adapted for many of the important and appropriate functions of a board of aldermen, such as granting licenses, and locating streets, sewer easements, street railways and poles, all of which require hearings, and necessarily some smaller body would be needed to perform these functions. Such a compromise between the recognized form of city government and the town form of government will not unlikely be attempted in the near future in Brookline, where the town meeting is becoming impracticable because of numbers, and yet sentiment is against becoming a city. In our own case it certainly seems best to stick to what has proved satisfactory and to allow other than our necessities for a change are greater than our own, to try the experiments. But such experiments should be watched with an intelligent and open-minded interest and with a purpose to take advantage of such progress as others may take in the development of municipal government. While the frame and organization of the government is always an interesting subject for discussion, yet the problems which confront the government and the solution which it is offering for them, are of far greater importance. It is to the credit of Newton that such has been the personnel of the men who have composed its government that these problems have been approached from the standpoint, not of political expediency, but rather of the business interests of the community. And the public, as it has become more conversant with its own municipal affairs, has cultivated to a considerable degree the virtue of civic self denial, so that the standard of aldermanic capacity is no longer based merely on what an alderman has obtained or can obtain from the City for his particular section. But the city form of government and the exigencies of a suburban life and the dispersion of our population over more than a dozen villages, make it difficult for the inhabitants of Newton to keep well informed as to local affairs. And the brief tenure of office in the elective offices tends to over-emphasize the needs and desires of the present and to make it difficult to develop and follow for a series of years any well considered and consistent financial policy.

The fact, however, that the past two years have had the highest tax rates in the history of the City, in spite of the further fact that there was no substantial increase in the appropriations for current expenses, has caused all of us to look with solicitude for the reasons for such conditions and to discuss earnestly the remedy. The immediate cause was not hard to find in the unexpectedly large increase in the state tax and metropolitan assessments and is fully understood, although in order that it may be placed more graphically before you I have annexed a schedule showing these and some other items concerning the finances of the City. But it is not so easy to agree upon the remedy.

The tax rate is of course determined yearly by the aggregate of the taxable property, upon which must be levied an amount sufficient to pay the state and county taxes, metropolitan assessments, city appropriations and judgments against the City, after deducting therefrom the estimated receipts of the city for the year. The state and county taxes and metropolitan assessments are in the nature of fixed charges. While there will be some relief this coming year in the metropolitan water and park assessments, because of a more equitable and just apportionment made by the Legislature and Parks Apportionment Commission respectively during the past two years, yet there is cause to fear that what is thus gained may be soon offset by increases in these assessments. Turning to the other elements which enter into the problem, we are confronted with a property valuation which, so far as it concerns real estate, is in too many instances excessive, and should be diminished rather than increased, saved by legitimate additions from the construction of new buildings. We are also confronted with appropriations for current expenses which are already conservative, and must gradually and inevitably increase with a steadily growing population and municipal plant. There are but two sources of permanent relief left, namely, to find some new source of revenue, or else to reduce the annual amounts necessary to meet the interest, sinking fund and maturing serial bonds of the funded debt by allowing the existing debt to be retired as it matures and by substituting no new debt in its place save only in cases of emergency. This is by no means a new suggestion. Such remedy requires long years of patient self-control to show results, especially when it is remembered that after this year no substantial portion of the debt will mature until 1911. It has also the disadvantage of being negative in character. But the conviction that it is the only sure remedy has grown upon me during the past two years, and was considerably strengthened when I found this past year that the ratio of our net debt to our valuation (the measure of our financial ability) was the highest of any municipality in the metropolitan district and was surpassed by but one other municipality in the Commonwealth. It is to be hoped that the large payment on the water debt this year, although already anticipated in the sinking fund, may yet relieve Newton of this unenviable distinction. It must be admitted that there are many whose opinions are entitled to weight, who look with complacency upon the creation of municipal debts, and who urge that the taxpayers of the present year should not be made to pay for improvements so permanent in character and that the enjoyment of them will extend over a series of years. It is to be feared that to the unthinking such arguments may suggest that there is some sort of financial magic in issuing bonds to provide funds for permanent improvements, by which the taxpayer escapes paying for them altogether. But the taxpayer pays the bill at some time as inevitably as the years come and go, and he pays in addition to the original cost of the improvement, interest charges which may seem small in their semi-annual instalments, but in the aggregate, amount to a surprisingly large proportion of the original cost. This is an important consideration when it is remembered that the taxpayers of today will be to a large extent taxpayers for a good many years to come. It is also one of the inviting features of bond issues that the year which determines what the future years need and must pay for, rarely shares any part of the burden which it has created.

Where an improvement is of such a character that its cost is considerable and its construction must be completed at once, it is of course impracticable to pay for the improvement in one year out of the tax levy, and it must be bonded or not undertaken. But where the improvement is of such character that work is continuing or intermittent, and must in the nature of things extend over a long period, it is at least debatable that in the long run a pay-as-you-go policy is no more burdensome to the taxpayer than the policy of bonding all such improvements. It has besides, the important advantage of leaving the future unfettered to meet its own problems or emergencies which may be entirely different and far more urgent. And this is an advantage which the City has not enjoyed in the experiences of the past two years. In regard to the metropolitan improvements for them, it is perhaps well to bear in mind that the metropolitan sewer loans have a progressive sinking fund, and that after 1910 there will be a material increase in the annual assessments for this sinking fund requirement. There is also a continuing additional appropriation for Metropolitan Parks and Boulevards of $200,000 annually up to and including 1907, and this is adding each year to the already heavy assessments for Parks. And besides there is hanging over us the great Charles River Basin Improvement, and as yet its cost and the apportionment of its cost is indefinite. There can be no doubt that the Metropolitan Parks System and the Charles River Basin are fine in their conception, and already enough has been accomplished to justify the expectations of their projectors. Future generations rather than all the loans have been paid I will not doubt wonder at the boldness of the plans and the generosity of those who were willing to endure a heavy burden service in private residences have become almost as permanent and necessary as water and gas. The initial cost of underground house connections with the street conduits, should they be required, will be so much as to arouse, no doubt, considerable opposition, not only from persons who are using telephone or electric service, but also from the companies who are anxious for new business. But it is certain that the full benefit of placing wires underground in the public streets will not be enjoyed until such underground house connections are required wherever the conditions make them reasonable and practicable. I believe that your Board has it in its power to make and enforce such a requirement. In discussing the welfare of the City, well worth careful study. No mayor has given such attention to the fundamentals

of municipal government and his conclusions are based on both experience and study.His criticism of the restrictions on the removal power of the mayor is undoubtedly caused by the difficulties he experienced in reorganizing the police department a year ago. A situation which we trust, will not occur again.Biennial elections are strongly advocated and the facts all seem to bear out the Mayor's conclusions on this line. It is still an open question, however, if the best interests of the city, are served by the two year term for the mayor. If a return to the former custom of electing a mayor for one year only was accomplished, the evils mentioned by Mayor Weed might possibly be avoided.With several years of experience as an alderman himself, Mayor Weed is amply able to speak upon the work of that body. It is a fact that many students of municipal government are turning to the method, first advocated in this city by Mayor Weeks, and now hinted at by Mayor Weed; that of a large representative body of citizens to appropriate money and a smaller body to act on other municipal problems. The plan is attractive in theory, and while Newton has no pressing need of a change at the present time, there is always the incentive to blaze the way to the Utopia of municipal administration. In this connection, it is well to bear in mind that the city charter authorizes the fixing of the number of the aldermen and their terms of service.The mayor also calls attention in no uncertain language to the metropolitan problems with which this city must deal
in the future and to the heavy burden
of taxation which the present and future taxpayers must bear. The table which is printed in this connection is worth careful study and will surely lead to the conclusion that our representation at the General Court must be from our strongest and ablest citizens. A state and metropolitan tax of rising two hundred thousand dollars demands the utmost care. The high valuation of which the mayor speaks has always been the subject of much comment in the city. It is an open question, however, as to whether the rate or the valuation should be reduced.
It matters little to the real estate owner,
whether he pays on a valuation of $10,000 at the rate of $18, or on a valuation of $12,000 at a rate of $15. The latter rate, however, will be more attractive to holders of personal property, and may lead to the settlement here of many desirable citizens with that class of property. The higher valuation therefore has some advantages which should not be overlooked.With Mayor Weed's ideas regarding the creation of city debt, the GRAPHIC has never agreed, but it has expressed its own views on this subject so often that we will not weary our readers at this time with their repetition. It is sufficient to say that the first duty of this city, with its expensive and extensive plants for water, sewer and highway purposes, is to attract new residents, and that the only way to do this, is to reduce the tax rate. This cannot be done if the tax payers of any one class are unburdened with the entire cost of permanent municipal improvements, whose benefits will reach the next generation.
A proper distribution of this class of municipal burdens over a series of years,
is not only fair, but is a wise policy
under existing conditions.Six members of the board of aldermen of 1905 retired from the public service last Monday. All of these gentlemen, save one have devoted three years and more to the public weal. All of them have rendered efficient service to the municipality and have ever labored
for the highest good of the city. President Salmonstall, long of body and brain,
and frank and forthright in manner, has made an important contribution to the committee his advice and opinions were given the utmost consideration by his colleagues. Alderman Riley has given but two years to the city and there is the utmost regret that he has not been returned. As a member of two important committees, he has rendered valuable service. Alderman Dennison has served three years, two of them as chairman of the Finance committee, the most important committee of the board.
His position has been no sinecure and the results he has brought about are of inestimable benefit to the municipality.
Alderman Brown as Chairman of the Finance committee, has not been unduly burdened with responsibility, as Mayor Weed has been unusually careful in his financial recommendations to the aldermen. Mr. Brown has always been a strong factor in the work of the board
and has sane and positive views on city matters. Alderman Baker from the same ward has been a quiet member of the board but his work on the Public Works committee has been of value. Alderman Ensign, as Chairman of the Claims committee has made a fine record in that usually goes you please body. Its work has been kept well up to the mark and the inevitable legal delays have been minimized as much as possible. As a member of the Select committee on early records, the alderman has also rendered good service.The city should be proud of the men whom it elects to these positions oftrust. They devote time and brain to the municipal welfare which is worth thousands of dollars in the market place of the world. It is given to us without money and without price as the result of high public spirit. These gentlemen who have so ably served us, retire to private life
with the proud consciousness of work
well done, and the community can do no less than to hold them in high esteem.Considerable public interest has been aroused by the GRAPHIC editorial of last week advocating cheaper water and we have heard many expressions of approval of the course we have laid out. The question is a simple one. Reduce the cost of water until the receipts equal the expenses of the department. The abolition of the $1.50 annual meter rental will about offset the estimated excess receipts for 1906 and give partial relief to many takers. Next year when the interest charges will be still further reduced by the elimination of $12,500 on bonds which will be paid next July, it will be possible to advocate a reduction of five cents a thousand gallons in the price of water. The public must understand however, that unless this matter
receives their earnest support, the city authorities will not voluntarily make the proposed reduction. The form which we print on another page will indicate one method of bringing this matter forcibly to the attention of City Hall.So many were unable to read the editorial of last week on this question that we have reprinted it elsewhere in this issue in order that everybody may understand the facts of the case.Speaker Cole has appointed Representative Lowell upon the committee on Rules and chairman of the judiciary committee. Representative Lothrop has a place on the committee on metropolitan affairs.The Newton men have received generous treatment considering that both of them were pledged to Speaker Cole's opponent. Mr. Lowell can do little in the judiciary committee to advance the interests of Newton, save through the influence which that position will give him. It is more a personal compliment than otherwise. Mr. Lothrop has a splendid opportunity on the metropolitan affairs committee to aid the city's material interests at a vital point.In the line with what Mayor Warren hinted at in his inaugural, that the state should maintain the rifle range of the local company, it is of interest to learn that a former Newton boy, Mr. Horton
S. Allen, member of the Common Council of Salem, has introduced an order
into that body calling for legislation
which will require the state to maintain the militia, instead of burdening each city and town with such expense.Prentiss Cummings of Brookline officiated as president pro. tem of the senate yesterday in the absence of Pres.
Dana, who was at the Newton high school ceremonies.—Boston Record, Tuesday.We are fully aware that our Newton schools have a high reputation throughout the state, but possibly our board of aldermen might recent being called by the above youthful appellation.

Y. M. C. A.

Ye Old Tyners met defeat at the hands of the first team on Wednesday evening. The second team and Watertown High played a very interesting game which the Newton boys won by the score of 19 to 23.Next week Wednesday Lynn Y. M.
C. A. sends two teams to play at Newton Y. M. C. A.Watertown High School plays every Friday afternoon in the Newton gymnasium. These games are fast and well played. Brighton High was beaten by a close score last week.Last Sunday Pres. S. M. Sayford gave a splendid address to the older boys. At 3 p. m. next Sunday L. Waters, Boy's Secretary at Quincy will speak. This meeting is for older boys.The senior box ball tournament is nearing a close. M. Ward, L. F. LaRose and Theo. Morton are the players.A minstrel show under the leadership of Emerson Bailey will be given in February.A safe has been put in the office to keep the records of the Association safe from harm.The Business Men's Class grows larger each week. Dr. Geo. S. Butters, Chas. C. Newman and A. H. Watt joined the class last week. Business men are missing a fine opportunity to keep young and strong when they do not take regular exercise.The finance committee, Mr. Allan C.
Emery, chairman, are making an effort to raise the money necessary to carry on the work of the Association for the coming year. Many men have already responded but more ought to give to this splendid work. The number of members and the amount of work done for them has doubled in the past two years and the Association has now become a permanent institution in Newton of which every citizen should be proud.

Little Girl Injured.
A miraculous escape from instant
death was that of Ruth, the eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J.
Wellington, of Church street last week
Thursday night. The child was calling "good night" over the banisters of the third floor of the Wellington residence
to her mother who was on the lower floor, when in some unknown manner
she lost her balance and fell down the stair well to the hall floor, some twenty feet below, striking on her head.
She was picked up unconscious and a physician summoned. No bones were broken, however, and she is now convalescing.

A Narrow Escape.
A bad accident was narrowly averted
last Tuesday evening through the rare presence of mind of Dr. Robert A.
Reid's coachman, Royal Coleman.
Coleman was driving a pair of horses attached to a carriage containing Mrs. Reid and Miss Reid. The ladies had just entered the carriage at Nonantum square and the horses were headed towards Watertown. In starting up, the high spirited animals, hunched suddenly forward, breaking the whiffletree, which dropped around the legs of the animals, made them frantic to run. Realizing the danger Coleman pulled them around
upon the sidewalk, bringing them up against the building, where bystanders
helped to secure them.
Mrs. Reid in leaving the carriage stepped upon her dress and fell to the ground slightly injuring her knees.

Associated Charities.
The annual meeting of the Newton
Associated Charities was held Thursday afternoon in the rooms in Central block, Newtonville. The reports of the secretary, treasurer and from the various departments were given and were of a satisfactory nature. There are 236 registered names on the books of which 146 names are new. The following officers were chosen: President, Charles S. Ensign; vice presidents, Rev. A. S. Twombly, Rev. H. E. Oxnard; treasurer,
John F. Lothrop, 36 Central avenue, Newtonville; secretary, Mrs. Mary R.
Martin; directors to 1909, Rev. A. S.
Twombly, C. S. Ensign, Miss Helen Randall, Dr. D. E. Baker, Hon. E. L.
Pickard, Mrs. Mary R. Martin, Miss Annie P. Wise and Dr. Deborah Fawcett, the latter to serve until 1907 to fill vacancy made by the resignation of Bruce R. Ware.

THEATRES
Majestic Theatre—The Herbert-Mac-Donough-Mitchell trio, who are responsible for the music, book and production of the Majestic Theatre, New York success "Wonderland" have succeeded in presenting a very acceptable offering in the fantasy. The story deals with eight wandering princes, who inhabit
an enchanted castle, and through the aid of Dr. Fax, a specialist in affairs of the heart, they succeed in ensuring the affections of the eight charming daughters of the King of Hearts. The fun is fast and furious, and the production is interspersed with some of the best music Victor Herbert has given us. The cast contains the names of nearly all the principals who helped to make both the other shows great successes. Sam Clipp, Lotta Faust, Bessie Vyan, Elvia Croix
and Harvers and dancing George McKay,
with some half hundred pretty girls,
make up the offering. The Boston engagement is for three weeks starting January 15th at the Majestic Theatre,
with the usual Wednesday and Saturday
matinees.

Annual Meeting.
Catholic Hospital Aid Association was held in Denison hall Thursday evening of last week. An enjoyable musical program was furnished by Miss Adelaide Hyde, Miss Katherine Hayes and Mr. Charles Stuart and an address was given by Hon. Joseph R. Leeson, President of the Hospital Corporation. These officers were re-elected. President, Mr.
George E. Stuart, first vice president,
Mr. Thos. M. Holden, second vice president, Mr. Bernard Early, financial secretary and treasurer, Mr. James R. Con-drin, recording secretary, Miss Elizabeth L. Hyde. Plans were discussed for an entertainment to be given in the spring.
Mr. Edward P. Hatch who has been connected with the First National Bank of West Newton as cashier and president since 1888 has retired as an officer and director of this institution and has been elected a director and president of the Freeman's National Bank of Boston.
During his service at West Newton
Mr. Hatch has seen the bank grow from a small and weak institution to its present splendid proportions, and becoming a strong factor in the financial part of the city. In no small measure this growth has been the direct result of Mr.
Hatch's personality and energy. Mr.
Hatch is succeeded in the West Newton Bank by Mr. Charles E. Hatfield.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

With a journalist in the executive chair of the old Commonwealth, another in the Speaker's chair, Editor Vittum of Beverly on the floor of the House, and Charles A. Gettemy, Gov. Guild's private secretary, it may be said that the State is coming to a realization of her true and most valued possessions. Slowly but surely the old Bay State is digging down to the bedrock of her substantial citizenship, and it will not be long before you, Mr. Editor, may be called to new, if not more exalted service, for the profession should not lose sight of the fact that because a Governor and a Speaker has to be taken from its ranks for the service and good of the State, these chosen ones are any whit above their fellows; if any one should doubt the truthfulness of that statement, he has only to ask Curtis Guild or John N. Cole, either of whom will tell him that they are only kernels of the same kind of wheat that fills the hopper that is feeding the presses with brain products. The State has done well to come to the editorial chair in her hour of need, and the chair responds with alacrity, as it always does to every demand, but the State should remember that the profession only loans Governor Guild and Speaker Cole, upon what is considered as good security, and that the loan will be paid with interest at the expiration of the term of service.

Captain Remington, the efficient Sergeant-at-Arms had command of the forces at the State House Thursday of last week. As he drew on his new Douglas boots in the morning with an emphatic tread that bespoke great things to be done that day, he banged the front door of his house in Somerville, and the neighbors looked out of their windows and remarked as he strode up the street, "The Captain looks every whit a soldier today." As he led the line of distinguished citizens and men of gorgeous apparel with gold lace and glittering epaulets, with as much natural dignity and soldierly bearing as was manifest by General Hancock on the field of Gettysburg.

The inauguration of Governor Guild would have furnished material for an epic poem, if one were to take into account all that led up to the brilliant event of January 4th and could perchance draw from the emotions which must have filled the breast of this patient and manly man. The story that one could tell would vie with the tales of King Arthur's time. Curtis Guild never fixed a date when he should take the oath of office as commander in chief of the proud old Commonwealth, but he is a poor student of current events who failed to note the certainty of the culmination of the public career of the man who has clasped hands with the common people with a sincerity which could not be questioned; one who has brought Beacon Hill into touch with all the hills and valleys of the chiefest of commonwealths in the land. The qualities which will stand out in the public service of Governor Guild will be his patience and his transparent democratic spirit. He is as truly a child of the State, as any Massachusetts man of his day, for he demonstrates clearly what true education and training will do with the citizens where these essentials have a free hand and a fair chance in public development. Massachusetts never makes mistakes in the choice of her chief magistrates, the exceptions prove the rule, and Curtis Guild is not an exception. "Palman qui meruit ferat."

The Great and General Court for 1906 was organized the day before the inauguration of the Governor, with the choice of Mr. Dana as President of the Senate and John N. Cole as Speaker of the House. Martin Lomasney received three votes, and Mr. Cole the balance. It is positively asserted that the votes for Mr. Lomasney were not cast by Fitzgerald men. Fitzgerald was elected Mayor of Boston without the aid of Lomasney, who would rather have seen Speaker Frothingham chosen; but Boston preferred a discredited Irishman for her chief magistrate, and insisted on electing a man whom Congressman Sullivan said was not fit to be Mayor of the City, and about whom Congressman McNary is now answering some questions, asked by District Attorney Moran, which must prove that Fitzgerald is, indeed, not fit to be Mayor, or that McNary is not fit to be Congressman. One turns from a contemplation of the politics of Boston, to legislative matters, with a strong sense of relief, that there is a difference which may be fittingly expressed by the tariff terms "of domestic products and foreign imports."

Heaven grant that the words of President Dana of the Senate may prove true, when he said in his opening address, "We are all here with a common purpose, to serve the Commonwealth to the best of our ability." Emphasis should, of course, be placed upon the words "all" and "ability." The Senate, by the way, has elements of strength and tendencies of weakness in its composition this year. The weakness will be pretty sure to manifest itself and it is to be hoped that the strength will be proper tionately strong. The personnel of the body may be discussed at future times of reflection. The House is an unusually strong body, and if it should bow down to idols of wood, hay and stubble before the session is over, it will be surprising to the man in the gallery. Speaker Cole is a man of tact, firmness and decision, if he should let the House get away from its moorings the surprise will look down upon him with increasing emphasis. Among the able men in the House this year, are Turtle, Walker of Brookline, Luce, Ames of Orange, Norcross, Peabody, Lowell, Ward, Andrews and Seward. Among the old members of the House who will be largely missed will be Schofield of Ipswich, who goes to the Senate as a result of the most phenomenal campaign of the phenomenal elections of '905. A pen picture of the man who turned down James F. Shaw, would reveal one of the interesting characters of recent legislative history.

The committee appointments of both President Dana and Speaker Cole are most excellent, and show a judgment of the capacities and capabilities of the members. The Mayor of Boston delivered a most emphatic kick at the appointment by Speaker Cole of Boston men upon certain committees, but the kick did not come in contact with anything substantial. The only member who feels that he was insulted, is young Phillips of Salem, who was taken off of Street Railways and put near the end of the Committee on Libraries. That was no insult, however, but a remarkable exhibition of discretionary power. A close application to things appertaining to libraries always do young men good. Perhaps if Mr. Phillips had been on Libraries last year he would have profited by reading books that tell of men who achieve wonderful things by keeping their mouths shut. It is too early to discuss matters of legislation that are likely to come before the Great and General Court this winter. The liquor laws, which are to be considered by a comparatively able committee; the insurance matters, that are bound to forge to the front this winter; metropolitan affairs, that always come in for a large share of attention; taxation, elections, and many other subjects that will from time to time come to the front. The liquor committee will get to business as soon as any committee, perhaps, and in all probability will be at it before these lines are read, for already the eleven o'clock, the screen and other laws, are inside the portals. The reader ought not to get an idea that the landlords of the five hotels in Boston who threw up their hands at the approach of a sensational District Attorney, are sinners above their fellows. If the Kingdom of Heaven should be closed against them finally, it will be found that many other Boston landlords and liquor dealers may be outside the gates.

Edgar J. Bliss.

Several complaints have come to State Superintendent Kirkland concerning persons who have made exorbitant charges for destroying brown-tail moth nests on private estates, and more particularly concerning those individuals who have done poor work against the moths on such estates. Numerous cases have been reported to the State office where contractors who cleared trees of brown-tail moths neglected to destroy the gypsy moths; in other cases brown-tail moth webs have been left in large numbers on the ground without burning them. To prevent such impositions on the public, Superintendent Kirkland suggests that, in cases of doubt as to the cost or quality of work done, it will be well to withhold payment until the work has been examined by a State inspector, or preferably by the local superintendent in charge of the town work. There are numerous reputable contractors doing work against the moths and a list of the same may be obtained by applying to the office of the State Superintendent at 6 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. Any payment of money obtained under false pretences in connection with moth work should be promptly reported to the State Superintendent, who will assist in prosecuting the case where sufficient evidence can be obtained.

Coming Attractions

Tremont Theatre—Marie Cahill, star of "Molly Moonshine," the Royle-Hobart-Hein musical play, which will be seen at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, commencing Monday, Jan. 15, after a ten weeks' run in New York City, and who has earned the expression, "The Quiet Comedienne," was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. Shortly after her "baby carriage days" she went upon the stage in a little Brooklyn theatre where Harley Merry, the famous scenic artist was conducting a stock company. The first musical play in which Miss Cahill took part was Charles Hoyt's "A Tin Soldier." From the date of this appearance Miss Cahill's success was practically assured. She became a star as the result of her work in "The Wild Rose" in which she sang "Nancy Brown" and caused the whole company to be taken to Newport for a single performance by Mrs. J. J. Astor. Under the management of Daniel V. Arthur she made her first appearance as a star in the musical comedy, named "Nancy Brown." Miss Cahill is responsible for the success of the song "Under the Bamboo Tree." At the commencement of this season she became the star of the musical play, "Molly Moonshine" by George V. Hobart, Milton Royle and Silvio Hein.

Keith's Theatre—Even those who think they do not care for the entertainment and amusement of animal acts will be agreeably surprised if they visit Keith's the week of January 15. It will be the debut in Boston of Prof. Hermann's wonderful troupe of dogs and cats, who have been given the highest praise from critics and the public generally in the other houses of the Keith circuit where they have appeared. Everybody knows, from domestic experience, how untamable an animal a feline is, and it will be all the more astonishing to witness how much Hermann has succeeded in accomplishing. The dogs and cats together present a little sketch and introduce a clever canine who poses for such a length of time without a tremor as to make most patrons believe he is dead. There will be a big grist of mirth-provoking material in the surrounding show, and a new European illusion. Included in the list will be Emil Boeh, Jane Elton and company, in the comedy sketch, "Mlle Ricci"; Matthews and Ashley, in an original conversational specialty, entitled, "A Smashup in Chinatown"; Sydney Grant, a former Boston boy and one of the brightest monologists in vaudeville; Toto, the mysterious musician, in which a dummy is made to appear to play on the piano; Lillian Tyce and Irene Jermon, the Irish girl and the dainty singing comedienne; the Madcaps, a skilful trio of acrobatic dancers; Dora Polletier, a pleasing vocal comedienne and mimic; Musical Bachin, novelty instrumentalist, and Zinello and Bontelle, in a mirth-provoking sketch. The usual list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be shown in the kinetograph.

Castle Square Theatre—With the production of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Castle Square Theatre next week will come the third classic revival of the season at that house. Months have been spent in preparing a new acting version of the famous comedy, and the result will be that the Castle Square audiences will see the play without the many omissions of the scenes and characters so frequent on the modern stage. Every one of its five acts will, moreover, be set with scenery especially designed for this production, and every scene will represent artistically and realistically the streets, the houses, the canals and the palaces of Venice. Portia's home at Belmont will be strikingly and beautifully set, and the dual court wherein Shylock is tried for conspiracy against Antonio will be a faithful copy of an actual Venetian scene. All the scenes will, in fact, reproduce accurately the Venice of the time of the play. Playgoers who remember the fine performances of "Much Ado About Nothing" at the Castle Square some three months ago, will have no difficulty in expecting an equally good interpretation of "The Merchant of Venice." Shylock will be played by Mr. Waldron, Bassanio by Mr. Mackay, and Portia by Miss Kemble.

Dinner to Rev. Mr. Sullivan.

At the Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, Monday evening a party of 35 gentlemen gathered, the occasion being a complimentary dinner tendered to Rev. Edward T. Sullivan by the Mens' Club of Trinity Church. The arrangements were in charge of Col. James E. White of Gov. Guild's staff. The banquet room of the clubhouse was prettily decorated for the occasion. Dr. J. B. Powers of Newton Centre presided and Col. White was toastmaster. Among the speakers were: President Wakefield of the Dedham Episcopal Club, Charles E. Kelsey, treasurer Frank H. Ratcliffe of the Boston & Albany Railroad, Commander Henry Hume of Charles Ward Post G. A. R., Henry J. Ide and F. R. Johnson. Rev. Mr. Sullivan responded at the conclusion of the exercises with a graceful address.

Cor. Washington St. 100 Feet From New Henry Siegel Company Store.

Contributions for this department are earnestly solicited and should be sent to Miss Grace M. Burt, 94 Charlesbank Road, Newton, as early in the week as possible and not later than Wednesday in order to insure publication the same week.

The regular meeting of the Monday Club of Newton Highlands was held on January 9 with Miss Thompson of Lake-wood road. The papers on "The City Across the Tiber," "Notable Palaces," "Leo XIII" and "The Palatine Hill" were much enjoyed by the large number present. Refreshments were served during the social hour. The club will meet with Mrs. Robbins of Dickerman road next week.

The quarterly meeting of the Executive Board of the Newton Federation will be held on Monday, January 15 at 10.15 A. M. at the New Church parlors, Newtonville. The members of the Federation are reminded that any one is welcome to attend these meetings, even though she is not a regular delegate. It is desirable that there be a large attendance at this meeting as plans for the Federation Bazaar will be discussed. The director of the Bazaar has requested that the clubs in the Newton Federation take charge of the apron and useful article table.

Plans are under way for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the West Newton Women's Educational Club. Invitations have been sent to a large number of outside club women.

Social Science Club is soon to celebrate its twentieth anniversary.

The Social Club at Nonantum is doing a grand work along educational and philanthropic lines. The various classes meet in the evenings at the Jackson school and are as follows: Monday, Glee Club, taught by Miss Martin and Miss Gammons; Tuesday, dressmaking, Miss Nickerson and the Misses Ball; Wednesday, Cooking Club, Miss Sherman, Miss Cheaney and Miss Speare; Thursday, millinery, embroidery, Miss Hurd, Miss Dean, Miss Wakefield, Miss Learned. Friday evening is spent in a social way with Miss Hackett in charge. The Mothers' Club in charge of Mrs. Meserve, is another feature and will hold its first meeting Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at which time plans will be considered for the coming year.

At the Churches

A meeting of the Helper's Division of the Young People's Society will be held next Thursday afternoon in the parlors of Eliot church. The subject to be considered is, "Our Opposite Neighbors in the Flowery Kingdom."

The prayer meeting of the Young People's Society at the Immanuel Baptist church Sunday evening will be in charge of Mr. Harold Moore. The topic will be, "What Christ Taught About Money and its Uses."

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Newton Methodist church was held Monday evening with Mrs. A. H. Barber on Newtonville avenue. An interesting program was presented under the direction of Miss Gladys Barber.

The class in history of the world's religions at Channing church, which meets Sundays after the morning service, is taking up the "Religion of Israel."

At the recent annual meeting of the Congregational church at Newton Highlands the following officers were chosen: Deacons, Sanford E. Thompson and William Strong, the latter to fill the vacancy made by the death of Deacon Eaton; superintendent of Sunday school, J. Weston Allen; clerk, William B. Wood; treasurer, Sanford E. Thompson; chairman of standing committee, Edgar W. Warren.

As an appropriate ending of the week of prayer services the meeting at the Immanuel Baptist church this evening will be a prayer meeting and the topic will be, "Enlistment for Service."

The ladies of Eliot church are arranging to pack the annual Dakota barrel. Gifts can be left with Miss Speare at 27 Wesley street.

Next Monday evening at the Newtonville Methodist church the Sunday school will observe "Parents Night." All the parents of the Sunday school will be invited.

The monthly supper and social was held in the parish house of the Universalist church, Newtonville, Thursday evening. Supper was served at 6.30 and was followed by a pleasing entertainment and a social hour. A business meeting of the Sewing Circle was held in the afternoon at which the pastor made an address.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society held a meeting in the parlor of the Immanuel Baptist church last Wednesday afternoon. The topic from "Christus Liberator" considered was "The Nile Country and Northern Africa."

At the meeting of the Woman's Association at Eliot church Tuesday afternoon Miss De Busk gave an interesting address on "New Mexico."

The Week of Prayer services at the Newtonville Methodist church have been well attended. Interesting sermons were given, Tuesday evening by Rev. Dr. C. F. Rice, presiding elder; Wednesday evening, Rev. Dr. R. L. Green of Waltham and Thursday evening, Rev. Dr. Harrington of Waltham.

The subject at the mid week devotional service at the Central church, Newtonville, this evening will be, "The Prayers of Jesus."

At Grace church last Sunday evening there was special Epiphany music, carols and anthem. The sermon was by Rev. J. E. Bullitt of Cambridge.

The collection at Eliot church on Sunday will be for the Congregational Education Society.

The Young People's Society connected with the Central church, Newtonville, have chosen the following officers for the coming year: President, Miss Estella Hamilton; vice president, Harold Billings; secretary, Eleanor Nagle; treasurer, Robert W. Hayden.

In the parish house of Grace church Wednesday the Christmas tree for the Mothers' meeting was held. The chapel services were at 8, supper followed at 6 and the tree exercise was at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Harriet A. Coffin Dead.

Mrs. Harriet A. Coffin, the widow of the late A. Bigelow Coffin, died last Friday night, quite suddenly from heart trouble at the home of her nephew, Mr. Howard B. Coffin, on Bellevue street, Newton. Mrs. Coffin was eighty years of age and has resided in this city for about five years. She is survived by one son, Mr. Edward A. Coffin, treasurer of the American Loan and Trust Co. of Boston. Funeral services were held from the Coffin residence on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Rev. A. L. Hudson of the Channing church officiating. The Weber quartet sang and there was a large attendance of friends. The interment took place at Newburyport on Monday.

The Farlow park rustic bridge is progressing satisfactorily and the substantial way in which it is being built guarantees many years of service.

its prudential affairs naturally excite our chief concern. But it should never be forgotten that the enforcement of law and order depends primarily and almost wholly on the municipal authorities. The inhabitants of a municipality have a right to expect from these authorities a wise and impartial administration of the laws. There can be nothing more puzzling or disheartening to an executive official, however, than to find some persons claiming immunity from the consequences of wilful violations of laws the enforcement of which they themselves are demanding against others. Such immunity is profitable to the convenience and property interests of the persons claiming it. And yet it is but another phase of a growing spirit of respectable lawlessness of which there has been such startling revelations this past year in another State. It is only necessary to state this proposition in the abstract, to make it evident how demoralizing and open to abuse is the application of such a doctrine to the concrete case. The law itself should be the only standard for the exercise of authority by public officials and for governing the conduct of private citizens, and not the mere caprice of any man or set of men. And public attention cannot be too often directed to the closing words of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the Commonwealth: "To the end it may be a government of laws and not of men."

In closing I wish to express to you my appreciation of your confidence and support throughout the past year. Our official relations will presently cease, but I trust that the cordial and friendly relations begun here may continue. For my own part, I have lived in Newton since I was a mere child, I was educated in the Newton schools, and I have no expectation of ever living elsewhere. The present and future interests of the community are, in small measure it may be, yet nevertheless my interests. I shall always be grateful to the citizens of Newton for giving me so important an opportunity for service to the community. Speaking not only for myself but for those of you who, within a few minutes, will become no longer servants but once more rulers, I think I may properly and not immodestly say that we entered this City Hall good citizens, but I am confident that we will leave it today far better citizens. For there is nothing like responsible service to arouse a genuine and earnest loyalty to the public interests. To us above all others those who remain and those to whom the door of opportunity will presently open, have a right to look for sympathy and support in every worthy effort they shall make for the welfare of the City.

Ryan-Sheridan.

Mr. Michael D. Ryan, a former well known professional athlete and now a member of the Metropolitan Park Police was married Monday evening to Miss Mary Elizabeth Sheridan daughter of Frank Sheridan, at the parochial residence of St. Patrick's church, Watertown. Rev. Father John S. Cullen was the officiating clergyman. The bride wore white mousseline silk and carried bride roses. Her maid of honor was her sister, who wore crepe de chine and carried pinks. The best man was Dennis T. Ryan, brother of the groom. A reception followed at the bride's home on Cuba street. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan are in New York and Canada on their wedding trip.

Unitarian Club.

The January meeting of the Unitarian Club takes place next Thursday evening and will be "Ladies Night." A reception will take place from 7.45 to 8.30 followed by an address by Mrs. Francis Hatcheller of Worcester on "Court Life of Europe." Music and refreshments will follow the address. Additional guest tickets and tickets for the public can be secured from Mr. Bruce R. Ware, 105 Church St., Newton, at twenty five cents each.

The GRAPHIC's campaign for cheaper water is finding many supporters throughout the city.

Imported Hats and Bonnets.

Mrs. CAROLINE'S
480 Boylston Street, Boston.
A USEFUL CHRISTMAS GIFT.

If you are contemplating the purchase of a piano, a good precedent to go by is that established by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC in selecting forty Stieff pianos for their school this year. THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC is the largest institution in the world for the teaching of music. Their judgment on a piano is expert.

THE STIEFF piano manufacturers make a specialty of building pianos for schools. Why? Because they have to stand a severe test and the STIEFF has stood this test for the past fifty years. Why not profit by the example set by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC? If you do you will make no mistake.

How's Your Hair?

We beg to announce to the people of Newton that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M. D., England's most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name of Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives a live and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cornelia Stevens, 8 Smith Ave., Boston, Mass., says: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that I was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff scales or any scalp troubles try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Albert Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. Sold by Arthur Hudson, 286 Washington St. Price 50 cents

Auxiliary Minstrels.

Seldom has Norumbega hall been filled with larger audiences than those on Monday and Tuesday evenings when a minstrel show was given by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Newton Veterans Firemen's Association. The program was of more than ordinary merit and its success was largely due to the work of T. Clifton Nutting, director; Wilbur H. Howard, stage manager; D. William Lynch, costumer; Henry R. Marsh, music; the executive committee in charge, Mrs. Eva C. Fogwill, chairman, and Mesdames John Gaw, Catherine Ryan, Stephen Smith, Addie Chick, Charles Boulton and the officers of the association; Mrs. A. J. Grover, president; Mrs. E. C. Fogwill, first vice president; Mrs. Bolton, second vice president; Miss Mary Ryan, secretary and Mrs. Elizabeth Goding, treasurer. The interlocutor was Daniel F. Reardon, the bones, Hugh Fogwill, Thomas F. Collington, John F. Kelley, the tambos, Harry Allen, Daniel L. Kinslea, Bert Ryan and the soloists were the Misses Jennie Farrell, Elizabeth H. Roche, Sadie L. Brown, Kathryn F. Ryan, Elizabeth K. Rotchford, Annie V. Lyons, Master George Merrill, Thomas F. Lyons and William F. Fogwill. The Andion Male Quartette, which added much to the evenings pleasure, consisted of Eliot H. Morton, first tenor; Howard E. Cole, second tenor; Lester A. Hall, first bass and H. Thayer Burrison, second bass, add lotothop.

Among Women

The regular meeting of the Auburndale Review Club was held Tuesday, January 9 in the Congregational Chapel. Mrs. Marion Craig Wentworth was the lecturer, and her subject was the "Power of insight in Browning's poetry."

The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will hold a whist party at Mrs. W. F. Hadlock's, 320 Lexington street, Auburndale, Wednesday, January 17, at 4.30 P. M.

At the Social Science Club on Wednesday morning Mrs. William C. Bates gave an interesting and thoughtful paper on "Three Old Bricks and their Significance." The three bricks were from ancient buildings and typified one the Pilgrim, and another the Puritan civilization, while the third was from the Old State House in Boston. Mrs. Bates has made exhaustive research in order to find out particulars concerning the early industries of the colonists. While some of the bricks used by the colonists had been brought over from England, as had her Puritan brick, but very early the art of brick making had been introduced. She exhibited several curious specimens besides her three particular ones, among them being an old Dutch one, very different in composition from the others. Mrs. Hornbroke showed a portion of one which she had brought from the Dudley Castle in England, which is all of one thousand years old. Mrs. Sweet read an account of the early customs in regard to the use of tea as a beverage. Mrs. Stone read a sketch of early days in Dorchester. From it was learned that Dorchester was the first town to carry on its public schools by means of direct taxation. Mrs. Elliott told of the ancient grist mill in Watertown, some portions of which have been standing since 1634, while it has been in active use until within less than ten years ago. The morning was of unusual interest and had a delightfully antiquarian flavor. Mrs. Bates mentioned the total lack of any adequate history of Massachusetts and told what difficulty she had had in finding out some facts and appealed to the Social Science Club to inspire some of its friends to set to work to fill this great need.

MAYOR WARREN

Inaugural Address to Aldermen of 1906Brief Review of Departments Without Recommendations

Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen:—

It is five years since I sat for the last time in the Board of Aldermen, and it is a great pleasure for me to once more enter the service of the City of Newton.

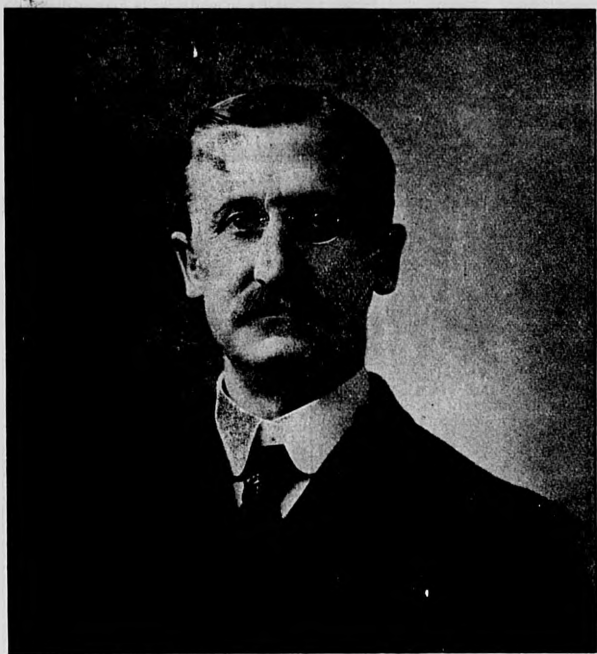

In assuming the office of Mayor I desire to thank the citizens for the confidence shown by my unopposed election, and to assure them of my best efforts for the good of the City during my term.

It is a great satisfaction to me that I have had no requests made of me, nor have I promised anything to anyone, so that nothing stands in the way of administering affairs as it may seem best.

Of the excellent and painstaking services of my immediate predecessor I cannot speak too highly; he has been indefatigable in his efforts for the good of our City, and his record will be very hard to approach.

Not having been in close touch with the details of municipal affairs for several years, it does not seem proper to make specific recommendations relative to the several Departments until such time as I can intelligently do so.

The prosperity of our beloved City rests largely with you, and if our tax rate is not to become so high as to stop its growth, it behooves you to watch well the matters that come before you, and to strictly insist that no appropriation be made beyond what is provided for in the budget, unless in case of extreme necessity. As each $6,400 based on last year's valuation means an extra ten cents to be added to the tax rate, great care should be taken.

MAYOR WARREN.

The financial condition of the City Treasury December 31, 1905, was as follows, viz.:—

Water Debt	$1,610,000 00	$638,203 17
Sewer Debt	1,383,000 00	592,025 82
Washington Street Debt	1,028,000 00	129,698 63
Highway Widening Debt	90,000 00	17,798 65
School Debt	808,800 00	215,096 32
Boulevard Debt	524,000 00	221,677 91
Public Park Debt	29,000 00	26,017 49
City Debt:
Drainage	$36,500
Fire	26,500
Miscellaneous	184,400
Highway	77,000
	324,400 00	132,157 48

$5,857,200 00 $1,972,675 47

Less Sinking Funds 1,972,675 47

Net Debt $3,884,524 53

The following new serial 3½ per cent. bonds have been issued during the year 1905, viz.:—

Water, $30,000, due Nov. 1, 1905, to Nov. 1, 1934.
Park, $4,000, due April 1, 1906, to April 1, 1909.
Sewer, $10,000, due July 1, 1906, to July 1, 1915.

The following items of debt have matured and been paid during the year 1905, viz.:—

Jan. 1, Appleton Street note	$4,600
May 1, Rice School note	11,000
May 1, Wade School (Serial)	5,500
June 1, Water (Serial)	2,000
June 1, Sewer (Serial)	2,000
June 1, High School (Serial)	2,000
July 1, Sewers (Serial)	2,000
July 1, Water Bonds	600,000
July 1, Boulevard (Serial)	1,000
Oct. 1, Appleton Street note	6,500
Nov. 1, Water (Serial)	1,000

$637,600

The following items of debt will become due and payable in 1906, viz.:—

April 1, Park (Serial)	$1,000
May 1, School (Serial)	5,000
June 1, Water (Serial)	2,000
June 1, Sewer (Serial)	2,000
June 1, School (Serial)	2,000
July 1, Sewer (Serial)	3,000
July 1, Water bonds	250,000
July 1, Boulevard (Serial)	1,000
July 1, Engine House, No. 3, note	10,500
Nov. 1, Water (Serial)	1,000

$277,500

During the past year the following sums were paid the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to meet Newton's assessments for its proportion of sinking fund interest and maintenance charges, viz.:—

Metropolitan Parks	$37,088 48
Metropolitan Sewers	64,430 93
Metropolitan Water	10,699 51
State Highway Tax	4 91

$112,223 83

This is an increase of $13,556.65 over the amounts paid on these assessments in 1904, the principal increase being in the Metropolitan Sewer Assessment.

There is reason to suppose that the Metropolitan Sewer Assessment reached its maximum last year and that there may possibly be some slight decrease in the amount of the assessment for the present year, due to the decrease in maintenance charges because of the operation of the Ward Street Pumping Station. There will be a substantial decrease in the amount of the Metropolitan Park Assessment for the present year, by reason of the reapportionment of this assessment which was made this past year for a period of five years beginning with the year 1905. As this reapportionment was not finally determined before July 1, 1905, the assessment for that year was made and paid on the old basis. This year the City will be entitled not only to have the assessment determined on the new basis, but to have a rebate of the excess amount paid last year. By the provisions of Chap. 465, Acts of 1903, authorizing the Charles River Basin, it was provided that the Commissioners next appointed for the purpose of apportioning the expenses of maintaining the Metropolitan Parks System should also determine as they might deem just and equitable, what portion of the total amount expended on the Charles River Basin and the construction of the dam should be apportioned to the cities of Boston and Cambridge, as the cost of the removal of Craigie Bridge and the construction of a suitable bridge in place thereof, and the remainder of the cost of the Charles River Basin should be considered and treated as part of the cost of construction of the Metropolitan Parks System. The Commission which was appointed last year to apportion the expenses of maintaining the Metropolitan Parks System determined that this work had not proceeded far enough to enable them to determine what portion of the expense should be borne by the cities of Boston and Cambridge and what portions should be borne by the Metropolitan Parks district. There is reason to fear when this apportionment is finally made, that there will be a substantial increase in the Metropolitan Parks Assessment. It is to be regretted that the amount of this burden cannot be known at once, and thereby a more effectual check be placed upon any possible excessive expenditures for this matter.

In regard to the Water Assessment, there will also be a substantial reduction because of the fact that the Act passed by the Legislature two years ago, apportioning two-thirds of the annual expense to the several cities and towns of the district on the basis of water actually consumed instead of on the basis of population, did not become operative until this year.

The State Tax for 1905 was $80,400, as against $50,250 for 1904. There is reason to hope that the State Tax has reached its maximum, and while there may be no substantial reduction this year, in any event there will be no increase.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The Grade Crossing Construction, begun by the City in November, 1904, has been prosecuted with vigor by the City forces. The work within the lines of the railroad location is being done by the Railroad Company and the remainder by the City. The change in the track grade naturally divides itself at the new Rogers Street crossing, and on account of the desirability of dispensing with the Boylston Street trestle at the earliest possible date, the work west of this point through Newton Highlands was first undertaken. Trains were run on a single temporary track on the south side of the location until September 17, 1905, when the north track was laid at the new grade. The south track was completed and trains run over the two depressed tracks through Newton Highlands on December 14 following. It was expected that the new bridges at Walnut Street and Boylston Street would be in place during the fall, but owing to delays in letting contracts and delivery of materials, they are not yet completed; temporary bridges have been placed at these two crossings. Land damages on nearly all the properties at Newton Highlands affected by the changes have been settled, also some at Newton Centre.

There had been expended December 1, 1905, the date the accounts were made up for the last auditing, as follows:—

City of Newton	$128,254 97
Boston and Albany Railroad	164,524 04
a total of	$292,779 01

The work is about half completed; that portion through Newton Centre will be finished during the Summer of 1906, and it is expected that the abolition of the crossings through Newton Highlands and Newton Centre will be fully accomplished by the Spring of 1907. Under the decree for the abolition of these crossings the City is required to pay one-half of the cost of widening and deepening Hammond Brook and $5,000 towards the widening of Walnut Street and only the remaining portions of the expenditures for these two parts of the work were to be included in the general cost of abolishing the crossings, of which the City is ultimately to pay ten per cent. Both the Hammond Brook work and the widening of Walnut Street have been completed, and at the last auditing it was determined that the City's share of the cost of widening Hammond Brook was $10,427.85, and that this amount, together with the $5,000 contributed towards the widening of Walnut Street, will not be reimbursed by the Commonwealth or Railroad Company. At the present time these sums are carried in the Grade Crossing Account. Certain other items have been included in the account submitted at the auditions, about which a question has been raised, and upon which action has been suspended by the Auditor. Most of them relate to the cost of preliminary surveys made a number of years ago, prior to the time when the proceedings upon which the present decree is based were begun. The total amount of the City's share of the general expense of abolishing these crossings, up to December 1, 1905, was $28,194.30, which is to be apportioned by the State Auditor over the next ten years, and bears interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum from the date of the several decrees confirming the auditions. The first installment will become due the Commonwealth on December 10th, 1906. The exact amount cannot now be definitely determined as there may be during the coming months further additions to the amount already charged to this payment. This installment with the interest, will probably not exceed the sum of $6,000, to be provided for in this year's tax levy.

ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT.

Unusual demands have been made on the forces of this Department during the present year. In addition to the usual routine work, there has been the laying out and supervision of the grade crossing construction, the investigations preliminary to the report on the extension of the Water Works for an additional supply, the collection and classification of data relative to the apportionment of expenditures for Metropolitan Parks and Metropolitan Sewers during the period between 1905 and 1910, and the reports upon the engineering features, as affecting the City of Newton, involved in the consideration of these apportionments by the Special Commissions appointed for that purpose. Much work has also been done in conjunction with the Law Department in preparation of plans and furnishing estimates for use of the City Solicitor in adjusting damage claims on account of grade crossings as well as in other important cases.

WATER WORKS.

Numerous test wells have been put down in the Water Works land in Needham. Complete surveys of the ground water and underlying strata in this collecting area have been made and much valuable data collected during the period of low water and large consumption which will be used by the Water Commissioner and City Engineer in their pending report and recommendations for additional works to increase the supply.

STORM WATER DRAINS.

Substantial progress has been made each year in carrying out the plans for storm water drainage separate from house sewage. The Statutes now require that all cities in the Metropolitan Sewer District shall construct drains in the future on the separate system, and results show the wise forethought of past Newton Boards of Government in proceeding along this line, even before this Statute was enacted. The final outlet of all storm water from the City is into the Charles River, to which the water is conducted by the various brooks flowing through the City. Large expenditures have been made in the past for improving these brook courses, some work having been done on each, and with possibly two or three exceptions, the sections of brooks passing through land where damage might result from an occasional overflow have been treated and made of a sufficient size to carry the extreme floods. Some work of this character still remains, and with the growth of the City, other sections will have to be considered.

Besides the improvement in the brook channels, work is being systematically done each year under the appropriation for new drains, on the construction of large trunk drains for conveying the storm water to the brooks.

WATER DEPARTMENT.

Although the mains have been extended but little the past year, only about one-half mile, yet considerable work was made necessary by the change in street grades at Newton Highlands and the enlarging of the Hammond and South Meadow Brooks. Ninety new services have been laid and forty renewed, the total length being 10,500 feet.

The water mains of Newton are being affected to some extent by the return to the Power Station of the electric current used to operate street cars. It is intended the coming year to have tests made at several suspected points to ascertain the amount of current which is being carried.

The new 6,000,000 vertical Barr pumping engine has been in operation about seven months, and it is expected that the duty trial will take place within a few weeks. The pump seems amply strong and is doing its work smoothly and well. Until the official trial, however, it will not be known whether the engine will equal the duty which the builders guarantee, but from our own tests we are satisfied that it will at least nearly do so.

Payments amounting to seventy-five per cent. of the contract have been made, and the balance, $6,250, will be due upon the satisfactory completion of the test. The contract provides for a forfeit in case the duty is not equalled, and the City is protected by a $10,000 bond.

The pumping station has never been adequately lighted, but with the horizontal engines formerly used this was not absolutely essential. After the vertical pump was installed this lack of light became a real danger, and a contract was made for a generator and Pelton motor, to be operated by water pressure from the City mains, the discharge flowing back into the pump well, so that not a gallon would be wasted. The building has been wired for ninety lights, and the complete plant will probably be installed early this month.

Expenditures for both maintenance and construction during 1906 will probably be the smallest for many years.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

Expenditures for the year amount to about $260,000, divided on the work as follows:

Highway Division	$136,000 00
Street Lighting Division	54,600 00
Street Watering Division	17,000 00
Moth Work	1,800 00
Sewer Work	45,000 00
Boulevard	1,500 00
Land Damages	4,400 00

RESURFACING.

The sum expended on new macadam is about $6,000 and the amount surfaced about 135,000 square yards.

DRAIN WORK.

New drains have been constructed in the following streets: Reservoir Avenue, Grove Street, Auburn Street, Omar Terrace, Walnut Street and Manet Road, exclusive of the grade crossing drains, at a cost of nearly $10,000.

CONCRETE.

Over 20,000 square yards of sidewalks and crossings have been laid and repaired. The amount expended has been about $14,350, which also covers repairs on plank and gravel walks.

PARK DIVISION.

About $800 have been expended for trees, and the regular works on Parks has been done, the whole amount of the appropriation, $5,000, used.

STREET LIGHTS.

There are 139 miles of accepted streets and 62 miles of unaccepted, making a total of 201 miles, which are lighted as follows:

194 arc lights.
1 bridge incandescent.
1,103 street incandescent.
983 gas lights.
130 oil lights.

SEWER DIVISION.

About one and one-half miles of sewers have been built in 1905, a large portion in the Highlands and Centre districts. The total length of sewers in use is 100 miles. The cost for the year has been about $45,000, divided as follows:

Maintenance	$6,800 00
House Connections	6,500 00
Sewer Extensions	31,700 00

CHARITY DEPARTMENT.

A change was made in 1905 from a Board of seven Overseers of the Poor to a single head, one Overseer only, being responsible for the dispensing of charity throughout the entire City.

The result has been satisfactory, with a saving of several thousand dollars to the City.

It is of interest to note that a short time ago there was received from an unknown source $4,300 in settlement of expenses incurred by one who had been an inmate of the Almshouse for twenty-three years.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

The most important work done by the Board of Health the past year has been the inspection of out of town milk farms, with the object of bringing them up to the Newton standard. The Board having no direct jurisdiction over such farms it was found necessary to notify the owners that unless they complied with the Newton requirements the sale of their milk in Newton would be prohibited. In all one hundred and twenty-seven farms were visited and with one exception all conformed to the requirements, or made such changes as were needed.

The death rate for 1905 was about 13.02 per thousand.

Not more than the average of contagious diseases have been reported. A great decrease in typhoid is noticeable, the average for the past five years being forty, while last year only twenty cases have been reported. When it is remembered that typhoid was epidemic in many places during the autumn of 1905, Newton is to be congratulated.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

During the year 1905 this department was reorganized. A new Lieutenant was appointed to fill a long existing vacancy. The Inspector was raised from the rank of Sergeant to that of Lieutenant and he now holds a rank in this department equal to that of officers in other cities doing similar work.

The so-called three-shift system was put in operation, giving the City continuous police service. Heretofore a greater part of the City was unprotected after three o'clock in the morning.

The four circuits of the police signal system will soon be in perfect working condition, thus enabling the officers in charge at Headquarters to be in communication with officers in every part of the City.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

This department has answered three hundred and forty-nine calls during the past year. The following will show the value of buildings and contents at risk, with the estimated insurance and loss on the same:

The property at risk was valued at	$805,180 00
Estimated loss	30,622 23
Insurance	487,650 00
Insurance paid	34,873 23
Assessed value of buildings and contents	514,560 00

Employees.

Thirty-four permanent and fifty-nine call men.

Forty.

Apparatus in Service.

Three steam fire engines, two chemical engines, eight hose wagons, two trucks, one of which is equipped with two thirty-gallon chemical tanks. The hose wagon located at Newton is also equipped with one twenty-five gallon chemical tank.

SCHOOLS.

A comparison of the cost of schools and the number of pupils during the past two years is as follows:—

Year.	Cost.	Pupils
1904	$239,300 73	5,803
1905	241,040 42	5,978
Increase,	1,739 69	175 Increase.

Vacation School.

This school came last summer for the first time under the direction of the School Department. It opened July 10th, and continued for six weeks, one session each school day. The total enrollment was 336, with an average attendance of 263, the expense was $865.20. The nature of this school is somewhat different from the regular schools, being largely industrial, sewing, cooking, basketry, woodworking and physical training being taught. The results have been satisfactory.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS DEPARTMENT.

The Ralph Waldo Emerson School was finished and occupied the second week in May, and a branch library in same building fitted and occupied in October. The Fuller Warren System has been removed and modern plumbing installed in the Roger Wolcott School. Two more rooms have been fitted in the Horace Mann building, for evening school. Election places have been provided in Police Station No. 3 and in the old Ash Street school-house.

VOLUNTEER MILITIA.

Claffin Guard, Company C, 10th Reg't, Inf'y, M. V. M.

The City has for many years made appropriations for Army expenses, which include items for repairs of building, heating, lighting, janitor and rifle range. In return the City has received from the State the rental of four hundred dollars annually,—the maximum authorized allowance. Under Section 122 of the Militia Law passed by the General Court of 1905, the State assumes the reasonable expenses incurred for services of janitor, lighting and heating, as certified by the Mayor and Aldermen. The Adjutant-General is authorized to allow twelve hundred dollars annually as rental to each city and town maintaining an Army, provided, however, that the allowance shall not exceed four per cent of the cost of the Army. This rental based upon the assessed valuation of thirteen thousand, five hundred dollars for our Army property, will in future amount to about five hundred and forty dollars and the City will be reimbursed for heating, lighting and janitor. The matter of rifle range expenses now devolving upon the City should also be assumed by the State. An intimation has been made that the law can be properly construed to cover this item; in case of failure, however, doubtless favorable legislation will be obtained in relation to it.

After a service of ten and one-half years, Captain Ernest R. Springer of the Company has recently resigned from the militia on account of removal from the State and received an honorable discharge with rank of Major. He commanded the Company during its tour of duty in the United States Volunteers of the Spanish War and has faithfully given of his time and ability with the command in days of peace. He is succeeded by Captain George R. Guilford, who has seen eleven years of militia service. The other commissioned officers are First Lieutenant George H. Daniels and Second Lieutenant George S. Coulter, both of whom have risen from the ranks.

At the last tour of duty in camp of instruction, fifty-eight men and three officers were present. Every Monday evening is devoted to drill at the Armory and the young men of the Company are deserving of generous encouragement for subjecting themselves to the discipline of the service so absolutely essential to the making of good soldiers.

IN CONCLUSION.

I trust that the high standing of your Board in the past will be maintained, and that you will all labor for the welfare of the whole City, bearing in mind that you are here for the interests of the entire community and not for any one precinct or ward.

Plea for Cheaper Water

NEWTON GRAPHIC

HON. EDGAR W. WARREN,
Mayor of Newton,

Sir:—

Please investigate the financial conditions of the Water Department with a view, if feasible, to abolish the $1.50 annual charge for meter rental.

Name,.....
No. Street,
P. O.

Sign the above form or something like it and mail to Mayor Warren, City Hall, West Newton.

Reprinted from last week.

While the GRAPHIC has repeatedly urged a reduction of the water rates in this city, it is fully aware that public opinion is the only factor which can bring about that desirable result. In another column we print a coupon form of letter to the new mayor which will bring official attention to this subject, provided our readers will manifest that interest in their own affairs, which is naturally to be expected. The facts in this connection are briefly as follows.

The expenses of the water department as stated in the annual appropriation order are $118,043. To this Mayor Weed claims that $3000 should be added for items which have been erroneously charged to water construction account. Without examining this claim in detail, we accept the mayor's statement, making a total city charge for 1906 of $121,043. To this should be added the assessment for metropolitan water which will amount to some $5,000, making a total expense for water maintenance of $126,043. The estimated water receipts on the basis of present charges are $131,000, leaving a margin of $5000 to the credit of the water department. If this balance of $5000 could be devoted to lowering the general tax rate, the GRAPHIC would not agitate the question of reduced rates at the present time, but in consequence of a statute passed in 1895 for the government of the metropolitan water district, any excess receipts are to be applied towards main extensions and other charges for permanent improvements which in this city at least always, and very properly, have been paid for from the proceeds of bond issues. The application of this surplus towards this purpose will not benefit the tax payers of 1906. Consequently the GRAPHIC is urging that the cost of water be cheapened in order that the persons who pay the bills may receive the benefit of the reduced expenditures in the department. This can best be accomplished by the abolition of the meter rent charge of $1.50. Such abolition would reduce the receipts by about $9,000, and as the estimate of $131,000 is a conservative one, it is fair to assume that the receipts and the expenditures in such event, would nearly balance. This meter rent charge can be abolished by order of the mayor. Send in your request therefore to the mayor and help impress him with the fact that the public are interested in the question.

Correspondence

Rock Rapids, Iowa, Jan. 1, 1906.
My dear overworked Editor:

I have just eaten the best dinner I have had this year and have also read the GRAPHIC. I find that by eating 3 or more meals a day and reading the GRAPHIC each week, I can keep in touch with my friends in Newton. When I receive the GRAPHIC I immediately stop the train-of thought I may have been pursuing—and proceed to find out "who, and where it happened." For some time however it has been dawning upon my slow mind that it is quite the proper thing for wandering Newtonites to send in occasional letters to their friends, describing their wanderings, in the hope that the aforesaid friends will have the account printed in the GRAPHIC. Now I am wandering—as any casual reader can see—so I send this brief letter of several columns not to one of my friends for I have none too many, but to you direct, hoping thereby to enable you to save your valuable plate matter for next Summer, when everybody will be away on their vacations except the storekeepers who must worry along on credit until the Auto Fall dies down or rich relatives die off. I have now been away from Newton eleven weeks and yet I notice that the Postoffice there is still doing business. During this time I have given my Yankee programs in sixteen different states, although the majority of the dates have been in a state of uncertainty, as to how these folks west of us would like my work. They are evidently pleased—now it is over—for it is not unusual for the entire Lecture Course Committee to come to the depot with me the morning after, and feelingly express their satisfaction as they see me off. Last week I was in Central Minnesota where the farmers raise wheat and where not many years ago the Indians raised the farmer's hair. At Morris, Minn., I gave an entertainment at the government school for Indian children, but while they appreciated my pictures, I think they were disappointed at the appearance of the back of my face. It is certainly true that the average American head of today offers very poor inducement to the younger generation of red men. They undoubtedly thought I was a survivor of the Custer massacre. They are bright children and while I joked they never smiled, which proves they are becoming more and more like the semi-civilized tribes of Massachusetts. Three tribes are represented in the school, Sioux, Chippewa and Crow, but to me they all looked like Crows. When I saw how motionless they were throughout my performance, I came to understand why tobacco dealers have statues of Indians at their doors. Nothing but an Indian, and a wooden one at that can stand the smell of cigarettes.

Of course I often have white audiences that never interrupt me, but at Miltonvale, Kansas, when I had completed and "framed" my masterpiece, "The Old New England Home" a young man about 82 years of age jumped up and shouted "Say! Mister can I have that picture?" He came from Connecticut over 40 years ago. He got the picture. I afterwards learned that he was deaf as a post and consequently enjoyed my lecture immensely.

Yesterday I "put up" (that is correct) at an apology for a hotel in a small town nine miles from here. First I put up with its mean accommodations and finally put-up city rates. It was a queer thing to call a hotel. It had no fire escapes, and as far as I could see needed none for there was no fire. It must have escaped last Summer when the windows were open. The bill of fare was varied, i.e. the waiter who was also the porter, varied it as much as possible. At dinner I could choose between steak and bacon, but at supper time I could have either bacon or steak: this morning a change was made for bacon only was announced. Perhaps my nature has not changed since I struck the west, but I have eaten so much pig out here—it is pig or nothing in some places—that I have been obliged to purchase a pig-iron safety razor to keep the bristles back.

Of course they have the best kind of pig here but it is getting to be a bore. Winter has just set in in Iowa. Last night the cash register froze up in that bum hotel and I could see no change this morning. A few weeks ago I was rather sensitive to the cold, but am now hardened to frosts.

Iowa impresses me as one of the really great states in the Union. The traveler may journey North, South, East or West, in this state and reckon the distance with certainty for every two miles is made sacred by a little white school house (I want this to be read) where the principles of liberty, and true culture are taught. Iowa's percentage of illiterates is only 2.3 per cent, ranking first among the states while Massachusetts ranks twenty-third, with 5.9 per cent. The only indication of the superior wisdom of Massachusetts people is their willingness to pay but about one-half as much for one of my "efforts" as the Iowa people cough up without a murmur.

I find a large number of New England people who came out from the "rock bound coast" some years ago, that they might pick up a decent living, and with few exceptions they appear to sympathize with me.

I was in Montevideo, Minn., one night last week and as I was arranging my outfit on the stage the janitor of the opera house said "Jedgin from yore took you, you must be an easterner," he was also and had served an apprenticeship building stone walls in Vermont. "That evening I had occasion to send for an electrician who neatly did the required work, and as he finished I offered him a nice round coin. "Say!" said he, "You're from Maine aint yer?" So was he and strangest of all would not accept the coin. Next morning I stepped into an office opposite the entrance to the opera house, to enquire for a key and there I found a lawyer—Smith is his name—who had been born in New Hampshire yet had been wise enough to go to my native town in Maine for his wife. Mr. Smith proved to be the Mayor of Montevideo, so everybody of importance from the janitor down to the Mayor had Yankee blood and breeding.

I even suspected that the hotel landlord did, when he overcharged me, and at the depot my suspicions were verified when I learned that he was a way-downer from Bangor way. I think of so many interesting experiences that I hardly know where to stop writing, but doubtless your trained editorial blue-pencil eye has discovered a number of good places. I spent four days in Colorado for my health and 1905 taxes. I saw the sun rise on Pike's Peak but saw it from Colorado Springs, believing that there was room for but one of us on the peak at the same time. The Sun was very bright. I was also down in the sugar-beet section of Colorado where vast irrigating enterprises equal to those of Wall St., are undertaken. I understand that Arluckle is in the swim in both places. From there I went to Nebraska the home of Bryan and other things. I found it very windy there. Near North Platte I saw Buffalo Cody's Rest Ranch where he will go if he gets his divorce. I gave a show at Sidney which was formerly the jumping off place for adventurers bound for the Black Hills. Some of the saloons are there yet.

Kansas interested me, for in it I found a place called Newton, I ate my Thanksgiving dinner there. I was thankful because Newton, Mass., is a better town to live in. At Wichita I saw the repaired mirrors, fixtures, etc., which were damaged by Carrie Nation. I also saw a number of young men whom the Wichita outlaws had damaged beyond repair. I went into the edges of Missouri, demonstrating in Kansas City and St. Louis. My audiences at the latter place were quite German, but they laughed at me as others have done.

The sun was shining in St. Louis but the colored population was so much in evidence that I thought we might have a shower any minute. Even now I believe a storm is brewing there because of the opposition of the brewing interests to some reforms projected by the Folk. The lid is down but is not locked. As in other American cities, the voters have not got hold of the right key. Federal and State interests must be one in action to prohibit saloon corruption, as well as in R. R. rate legislation. The President knows this but ran out of ink before he got to the subject. When I write again it will be later, meantime I expect to "Star" from Los Angeles to Seattle and see something of our great Northwest. Everyday I meet amusing people, but none can compare with my Newton friends. Do not let them forget me just because I was short-sighted enough to pay my bills before leaving home. At first I contemplated sending this enlightening epistle to your deadly rival the Tin Horn Messenger but hearing of your enterprise and public spirit in issuing a cook-book I believe you are entitled to everything you get from me.

Very truly yours,

Pitt F. Parker.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

Pursuant to a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Alden C. Belges to Francis J. Garrison, as surviving trustee under the will of Samuel I. Urbin, dated September 28th, 1904 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 3122, Page 8, for breach of the condition of said mortgage and to foreclose the same, will be sold at public auction on Monday, January 29th, 1906, at twelve o'clock noon, upon the premises hereinafter described, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, and therein described substantially as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in that part of said Newton, called Auburnville, bounded and described as follows:—Northerly by the line of lot seventy (70) feet; Southerly by land now or late of Ira Potter, one hundred and ninety-five (195) feet; Southerly by land now or late of said Potter, seventy (70) feet; Northerly by land now or late of Blaisdell, one hundred and ninety-five (195) feet. Containing thirteen thousand six hundred and fifty (13650) square feet more or less. Being lot numbered one (1) on a plan by E. Woodward, dated December 3, 1904, and being the same premises conveyed to me by the grantee herein by deed of even date and to be recorded hereafter, in and to be given to secure a part of the purchase price.

It is getting a trifle tiresome to continually read in newspapers about the corruption of the Massachusetts legislature, even some of the papers of the State indulge in this habit in a manner which indicates extreme ignorance and extraordinary stupidity. The latest example, however, comes from New York City, where we find, in the columns of the Press of recent date, the following paragraph:

"We doubt if the general average of morality in Massachusetts finance is higher than it is in New York. We have evidence from Mr. Lawson to the contrary. The Massachusetts legislature is notoriously corruptible. But the Massachusetts laws have put beyond the reach of the dirty hands of the political grafters and high financiers, the fund for the widows and orphans, and no legislator was so bold as to brave the wrath that would have been visited on anyone daring to tamper with those laws."

This fling at the legislature of this State is evidently based upon the repeated assertions of Mr. Thomas W. Lawson of whom the people of Massachusetts hold certain well defined and crystallized opinions. The New York Press seems to be inoculated with numerous unauthenticated and visionary ideas that Mr. Lawson is a person whose expressions should be taken seriously, and whose opinions are entitled to thoughtful consideration. The New York paper apparently needs revision as much as "Frenzied Finance" and it should get itself clothed and in a right mind regarding the creator of Everybody's Magazine. Mr. Lawson is a person who skips the wash tub and hangs out his linen as it comes out of the soiled clothes basket. He makes more bids and has fewer takers than any other man connected with the gilded age in which he lives. He drives nearer the edge of the precipice than any good driver would think of going, and he invites disaster as freely as he talks about corruption on Beacon Hill.

It has been said before in this column, that there never was a corrupt legislature in Massachusetts, although there never was a session of the legislature in which a corrupt legislator could not be found. Had as it has been in the past, Mr. Lawson never yet has been a member of that body. Of course, nobody could tell what would happen if that bolt should fall. The next time that the Press gets busy with the Massachusetts legislature, it had better go to some other authority than the alleged owner of Dreamworld.

The Boston Post, an excellent Democratic newspaper, by the way, discussed editorially the other day the famous eleven o'clock law, and pointed out that by an error in the placing of a semi-colon during a later revision and codification of the statutes, this change was brought about. Undoubtedly the present legislature will have to deal with this matter, and the discussion, both in the press and in the legislature, should be marked by a reasonably degree of intelligence and familiarity with the facts in the case. The facts are exactly the reverse to those stated by the Post, and Mr. Grozier, usually a careful and considerate writer, entirely mistakes the situation when he discusses the semi-colon law. Without going into the details, the legislature at no time during the progress of the bill until it finally went to the Governor, made an error or as it is sometimes said, committed a blunder. The legislative body which enacted the so-called semi-colon law, put the semi-colon just where it intended to place it, and it intended that the famous punctuation point should act exactly as it has in regulating the sale of liquor. Incidentally, attention is called to the title of the Bill, which reads: "A Bill to Prohibit the Sale of Liquor after Eleven O'clock at Night." That fact, if no other proof existed would be sufficient to establish the intention of the legislature that enacted the law, and once for all put a stop to all talk about the semi-colon being put where it was never intended to be placed. Again, incidentally, it might be mentioned, that the Court in the Fall River case, called attention to the matter and pointed out that the intention of the legislature was plain that the sale of liquor must cease at eleven o'clock. In short, it would be just as consistent for the legislature intended that the sale of liquor should not commence until seven in the morning as it is for the liquor people to contend about the eleven o'clock error.

Letting alone for the moment, what the conditions at present call for, it is perfectly evident that the liquor interests are making a mistake in clinging to the exploded theory, that in some transcribing of the Bill, somebody put the semi-colon where it was never intended it should appear, by the legislative body which created the law.

The Springfield water question is already under way in the legislature, the water committee having paid its first visit to Springfield last Friday. The Springfield water question is too familiar to be acquainted with State House affairs to require extended mention here, but for any who have not followed legislation the past few years, it might be briefly summed up as follows: The Springfield side of the matter is, in short, that the present supply is inadequate and unfit for use. Some go so far as to say that the use of the water is a menace to public health and the City seeks legislation to enable it to take what is known as the Middle Westfield River for a water supply. This attempt by Springfield is desperately and energetically fought by the Town-City of Westfield, and the towns lying along the bank of the river. Heretofore Springfield has been defeated in its attempts. This year she comes up smiling and again eager for the fray.

There is much to be said upon this matter, and from time to time the discussion may be alluded to in this paper. A water supply is always a vital matter, and the fair city of Springfield, as she lies upon the banks of the Connecticut river, is a mighty alluring settlement, with her attractive homes and their more attractive occupants. One is inclined to concede that this noble Western Massachusetts metropolis should not be deprived of anything which will enable her to add to her ability to provide health, peace and happiness to those who dwell within her borders, and to the wayfaring man who may from time to time sojourn within her gates. But the Connecticut River has an under current, and the Springfield water question has an under current as well, and it is said that the upper and the under currents of this question cannot mingle any more than can the waters of the Connecticut and those of the Hudson, because there is too much between them.

The new District Attorney of Boston, whom the Springfield Republican calls "James B. Moran," had a dizzy turn the other day, and when he recovered he became possessed with the idea that he has authority over the highest office in the State. Before he had hardly gotten out of bed in his recovery, he sent to Governor Guild a letter, directing him to remove the Savings Bank Commissioners from office. The letter that Moran sent to the Governor was as curious as it was impudent, and the manner in which this second-rate lawyer who occupies the office of the District Attorney of Suffolk County was turned down by the Governor was cut to measure. Moran said that the Governor was hiding behind Parker. If there is only someone behind whom Moran can hide, it will be a very welcome asylum, if he keeps up at the present pace.

At the same time, it would not be a bad idea, before the tariff is revised, to revise the Commissioner service of Massachusetts. There are men drawing pay as commissioners in this state who are simply dependents upon the tax payers. They could not earn their living as floor walkers in a department store. There are a few first-class men in the service, but unless something comes along, like this Provisional Bank business, to drive them in their resignations, the Commonwealth will doubtless have to care for them until she is asked to pay the balance of their salary for the unexpired year in which they expire.

Reciprocity in Canadian Furs.

In connection with the agitation for reciprocity with Canada it is interesting to note that while Canadian raw furs are admitted into the United States duty free, last year was the first to see a Canadian fur house establish a branch in this country. The first Canadian house to take advantage of reciprocity in furs, although long established in Canada, is the Dunlap, Cooke Company, Limited, 107 Tremont street, which is incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts.

The January meeting of the Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A. R. was held at the house of Mrs. Ellery Peabody on Perkins street, West Newton, on Monday afternoon, with Mrs. John Avery as assisting hostess.

The business of the afternoon included the appointing of delegates to the National Convention, after which Mrs. George Royal Pulsifer sang in her usual charming manner two very unusual charming songs.

A short paper was then read upon the life of "Joanna Aspinwall" who was the ancestor of the Chapter Regent, Mrs. Arthur Friend.

After more delightful songs by Mrs. Pulsifer, the usual social hour was enjoyed, with dainty refreshments.

On Monday evening Cambridge Latin Chess Club sent W. B. Durant, Jr., R. Parker and S. Royce to compete with E. R. Field, Robert Gilfeather and Fred S. Brown, the representatives of the Chess Club of the Association. The match was won by Newton, score 6 to 3. One of the Cambridge players who was very slow in making moves, made the remark, "What if this should be a draw game?" The reply came quickly, "We sleep nights." The match was over by 10:30 and all got their sleep.

Walter C. Wrye, Auditor.

The Sunday Club banquet was a great success. Mr. Allan C. Emery was the speaker of the evening and told of some of his experiences when traveling in the West. The club members were out in full force and enjoyed a pleasant evening. The topic for discussion next Sunday afternoon will be "How to observe the Sabbath Day."

Basket Ball is drawing large numbers each week. Next week the teams play away from home and there will be no game in the gymnasium.

Rev. F. B. Matthews will read a story entitled "The Arizona Waif" at the meeting for older boys next Sunday afternoon at 3 P. M. This meeting will be especially interesting and is open to all over 12 years of age.

Four members of the First Aid Class took the examinations given by the National First Aid Association of which Clara Barton is president. Joseph Howard stood highest with 98 1/2 per cent. The other members were C. V. Moore, Wm. Wharton and Walter Secord.

On Saturday night Jan. 13th the first of the monthly handicap meets was held with about 20 men in the events. It was only after the closest and most exciting kind of competition that C. V. Moore was able to carry off first honors with 14 points to his credit. Percy Morton was second with 12 and Walter Moore third with 10 1/2 points. The 20yd dash brought out 16 of the fastest men and after six preliminary heats had been run off C. V. Moore and Percy Morton on scratch, Walter Moore at 1/2 foot and Theodore Morton with 3 feet lined up for the finals. Walter Moore captured first place in 2 4/5 seconds record time with C. V. Moore 2nd.

The high jump was also won by W. Moore with a 5 inch handicap, jumping 5 feet 3 inches. Chester Wilson second from scratch took 2nd place with a jump of 5 feet 2 inches.

Harold Barber broke the Association record by clearing 5 feet 7 3/8 inches in an exhibition jump. Percy Morton won the 300 yard dash from scratch in 38 4/5 seconds. J. G. saw second in the same time from the 6 yard mark. S. Craig third in 39 2/5 seconds.

After the 12th shot put which was won by Leon Weaver, C. V. Moore endeavored to break his own record of 2 17 2/5 seconds for the half mile. His first quarter was covered in 64 seconds and it looked as if the record was sure to go but the best he could do was to equal his former record.

The meet was a success but a much larger entry list is expected in the February meet.

Silver Medal Contest.

The Double Silver Medal Contest was a grand success held under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of West Newton in the Baptist church Thursday evening the 11th; every seat was taken. Very pleasing music was furnished by the Columbia Band, Mandolin and Guitar Club. In Class A there were 7 boys and girls about 11 years of age; the silver medal was awarded May Robblee who recited "Archie's Christmas Gift." Class B contained 6 contestants whose ages ranged from 13 to 15. The medal was captured by Miss Clara Bruce, her recitation being "Dat Boy Fritz." It was the unanimous opinion of the audience that all did remarkably well and the judges, Rev. C. M. Southgate, Miss Emma F. Larabee and Mr. John Keith found it a difficult task to come to a decision. After appropriate remarks in which he advised them all to try again the medals were presented by Rev. C. M. Southgate. The remaining contestants were agreeably surprised at receiving a book containing selections from Mary A. Livermore's writings. Previous to the contest, Dr. N. Louise Rand, local Supt. of W. C. T. U. Medal Contests stated that this was the first of a series of contests in which it is expected all ages will enter; classes for boys, young men, middle-aged men, girls, young ladies and silver-grey ladies are now being formed. Anyone wishing to enter a contest can consult Dr. Rand. After 6 silver medals have been awarded the winners will contest for a gold medal and so on, the subsequent medals being a grand gold, diamond, and grand diamond.

Instrumental and musical contests will be held if there are enough applicants who play instruments such as autoharp, mandolin, harmonica, etc. It is hoped that vocal contests will be held.

Hunnewell Club

The Neighborhood Night given by the Hunnewell Club was enjoyed by fully two hundred members and their friends, and from 8 o'clock until 12 everybody seemed to have a jolly good time.

New features are introduced on each of these occasions, and this time instead of having a regular musical program, the orchestra was stationed on the landing of the stairs, giving the full benefit of the music "which consisted of all the popular airs" to the first and second floors alike.

The dining room, and the refreshment tables looked very attractive, each table being decorated with cut flowers.

The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Everett Ryder assisted by Mrs. Burbeck, Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Hopewell, Mrs. Dexter, Mrs. Uley and Miss Peterson.

From 10 o'clock until 12 dancing was enjoyed in the upper hall.

Boston Theatre

Boston Theatre—With all the pomp and circumstance befitting the occasion, the largest and most highly cultured audience ever assembled within that historic Temple of the Muses, the Boston Theatre, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, the foremost actress of this or any other generation, is passing in review. Her engagement, which began last Monday evening, the final engagement of the great Frenchwoman in Boston (for this is her farewell American tour), is for two weeks only, and the first half is nearly over. There are two new bills in Mme. Bernhardt's repertoire for her second and final week, "Magda," which she offers on Tuesday evening, and "La Tosca," for Wednesday evening. On Monday night she will repeat "Adrienne Lecouvreur," giving "Camille" for the Wednesday matinee; "Sapho" for Thursday evening; "Phedre," Friday evening; "Fedora" for the Saturday matinee and "La Sorciere" for Saturday evening. An important event is scheduled to follow the second performance of "Phedre" on Friday, January 20, when the Cercle Francais of Harvard will be admitted to the stage immediately after the curtain falls on the final act of the play, and will then present to Mme. Bernhardt a gold medal. It is safe to say that in all the history of the American stage no such wave of enthusiasm for any one individual has ever swept over the country as in the case of Sarah Bernhardt.

Our attention has been called this week towards the necessity of keeping up the civic pride of Newton citizens.
We are too prone, it seems, to complaining about the high tax rate, the high valuations and the excessive cost of living in this beautiful city. Why not try to emphasize the good things which the people of this community enjoy. In return for your taxes, which to the average citizen are only a dollar or two higher in a year than what would be paid in surrounding places, we receive excellent water, fine sewerage facilities,
the best of schools, adequate fire and police service, a fine library, good streets
and innumerable other advantages which our neighbors do not enjoy at so high a standard as our own. Low taxes and low valuations are good things in themselves, and every effort should be made to obtain them, but we question
very much, if our citizens would relinquish the good things in the material
line as above stated, for the few dollars which each individual would save, if the low rate was made the prime factor in this city.

We hear continued expressions of pleasure at the GRAPHIC's attitude towards a cheaper water rate. The facts all point towards the accomplishment of this purpose when the public wakes up to the idea that it simply needs a general endorsement of the citizens. The agitation is spreading and we will assist in every way in our power to lessen the cost of living in Newton.

Associated Charities.

The annual meeting of the Newton
Associated Charities held last week was adjourned to a public meeting to be held in the Immanuel Baptist church, Newton, Wednesday, January 24th at 8 P.
M. Rev. E. J. Helms of the Morgan
Chapel, Boston, will give an illustrated lecture. A business meeting of the directors will be held at 7.30 at the church.

THEATRES

Boston Theatre—With the music
fully as tuneful and catchy as that of "Florodora" with a wealth of scenic investiture, brilliant electrical effects beautiful chorus girls bewitchingly attired, a company of 300 farcetics and singers, with Fred Walton, the famous English pantomimist, as the Toy Soldier, for the bright particular star of the aggregation, "Babes in the Wood", New York's latest, liveliest and loveliest musical extravaganza, comes to the Boston Theatre for a limited engagement, beginning Monday evening, January 29.
The production is directed by the Shuberts, in connection with Mr. John C.
Fisher and the Boston presentations will be along precisely the same lines as have characterized the presentation of "Babes
in the Wood", under the caption of
"Babes and the Baron", at the Lyric Theatre in New York City, where it has created a veritable sensation. The piece is replete with original songs of so catchy a character as to satisfy the most exacting; but, although the music of "Babes in the Wood" is perhaps its choicest element, there are many other equally enjoyable features. At the Lyric Theatre the work of Fred Walton as the Toy Soldier has created a furore. Although present and prominent in every act and scene, this famous pantomimist
does not speak a line from the beginning to the end of the performance. He is incredibly excruciatingly funny according to all accounts the funniest pantomimist ever seen on the American stage. Associated with him in the cast are such other favorites as Janie McCreck, James C. Marlowe, Louis Wesley, Will Archie,
Adele Cox, Lillian Coleman, Carrie Behr and La Petite Adelaide. The advent of "Babes in the Wood" at the Boston Theatre will mean a return to dollar prices for the best orchestra seats;
in other words, a strict adherence by Manager Lawrence McCarty to his much approved policy of "highest class attractions at fair prices". The advantage according to the theatregoing public in this horizontal reduction, as compared with other theatres presenting the highest class attractions, is obvious, for "Babes in the Wood" is not alone one of the most popular and successful of musical comedy productions but it is also the most costly ever presented. The seat sale will open next Monday.

Hunnewell Club

There was a good attendance at the ladies' whist on Tuesday evening. Mrs.
C. L. Pearson and Miss Emery were in charge and 13 tables were in play.
Prizes were won by Mrs. C. H. Bus-well, Mrs. R. C. Emery, Mrs. H. H.
Learned and Mr. F. H. Loveland, Mr.
G. H. Snyder and Mr. C. H. Buswell.
The Saturday night whist was won by T. E. Enstis and G. H. Buffum, first and
W. S. Edmunds and C. H. Bonney, second.

The league bowling team continued
on its career towards the bottom place
with a defeat at Riverside, Wednesday night at the hands of the Newton Boat.
Wardwell was high roller for the local team with 550.

Newton Club.

The College dinner which will be one of the principal features of the winter's season at the club will be given Saturday evening. The special guests will be distinguished representatives of several of the leading universities and colleges in New England, among whom will be President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard; President William J. Tucker
of Dartmouth; Prof. William Mac-Donald, head of the Department of American History of Brown University and official representatives from Yale University and the Institute of Technology. One of the features of the evening will be the singing of the college
songs of the various colleges.

City Hall Notes.

Harry A. Stone, Agent of the Board of Health, tendered his resignation at the board meeting on Monday and it was accepted to take effect May 1st, 1906.

Unitarian Club.

The monthly meeting of the Unitarian Club, taking the form of Ladies' Night, was held in the parlors of Channing church last evening. The reception party consisted of President and Mrs.
Samuel L. Powers, Rev. and Mrs. Adelbert L. Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Batcheller and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bates. The reception committee acted as ushers. Mrs. Francis Batcheller, was the special guest of the club and gave an interesting address on, "Court Life in Europe," in which she described in a most charming and vivid way, a public and private audience with the Pope,
with the Queen of Italy; a visit made to the Queen dowager, impressions of the court hall in Rome, of a garden party
given by the King and Queen of England and others. During the evening a fine musical program was rendered under the direction of Mr. A. H. Handley and refreshments were served.

A MONSTER PHANTOM.

The Ancient Norse Legend of the Flying Dutchman.

The old Norsemen had a curious and vague tradition of a phantom ship which they called Mannifal. The French maritime chronicler, Jal, gives an account of her. So likewise does Thorpe in his work on "Northern Mythology." She was so gigantic that her masts were taller than the highest mountains. The captain rode about on horseback delivering his orders.
Sailors going aloft as boys came down respectable middle aged men, and in the blocks about her rigging were dining halls where they sustained life
during their heavenward wanderings.
When passing through the strait of Dover on her way northward she struck, but the captain, with ready invention, ordered her sides to be liberally besmeared with soap, and she slipped through, leaving the cliffs of France and England white forever afterward.
Down to within a century ago this gigantic ship was known among English sailors by the name of the Merry Dun of Dover, but she seems quite to have disappeared from the maritime lore of Great Britain. Seamen of Normandy still believe in her existence and call her the Chasse Froude. They say that she is so immense that it takes her seven years to tack. On one occasion in turning her bowsprit swept away a whole battalion of soldiers
from the Dover cliffs while her stern boom was demolishing the forts of Calais.

MEN WITH TAILS.

Queer Records of an Old Time Writer on This Subject.

Mention of an obscure belief in other countries that Englishmen used to wear tails has prompted a correspondent to submit some information regarding the subject of tails in general. Dr. John Wolf, an old time writer, said: "There is even in England a gentleman of dark complexion and of great talents
who walks exactly as if he had a tail,
and people of high rank told me that he and his family were known to have tails, and therefore in his carriage
there is a hole in the seat where he sits in order that he may be able to sit comfortably." Baring-Gould's "Curious Myths of the Middle Ages" contains the following: "Dr. Wolf in his travels and adventures says, 'There are men and women in Abyssinia with tails like dogs and horses.' Wolf also heard from a great many Abyssinians and Armenians (and Wolf is convinced of the truth of it) that there are near Nares, in Abyssinia, people—men and women—with large tails, with which they are able to knock down a horse,
and there are also such people near China." A note in Baring-Gould's book adds: "In the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Dublin may still be seen a human skeleton with a tail seven inches long. There are many known instances of this elongation of the caudal vertebra, as in the Poo-nangs in Borneo."

Warning to Guests.

This notice greets one in a hotel opened by a foreigner who has just
"mastered" the English language:
"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, and if they say they have not anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."—Paris English and American Gazette.

Not the Same.

On one occasion when "The Mikado" was being rehearsed Gilbert called out from the middle of the stalls
"There is a gentleman in the left group not holding his fan correctly."
The stage manager appeared and explained. "There is one gentleman," he said, "who is absent through illness."
"Ah," came the reply from the author in grave matter of fact tones, "that is not the gentleman I am referring to."

A FAMOUS OLD BRIDGE.

It is Curiously Decorated With Historic Pictures.

Few places in Switzerland are more interesting than the historic old city of Lucerne, at the junction of the river
Reuss and Lake Lucerne, memorable for its historic associations with the heroic legends of William Tell.
Across the river are two wonderful wooden bridges, the Muhenbruecke,
or "Mill bridge," with its quaint pictures of the "Dance of death," and the Kapellbruecke, or "Chapel bridge." This chapel bridge was constructed as long ago as 1333 and for nearly 600 years
formed the chief avenue of traffic
across the broad but sluggish stream.
Anciently the bridge extended its zig-zag shape to nearly twice its present
length and reached as far as the Hofkirche, or cathedral, whence its name,
the Chapel bridge.
In the center of this covered wooden bridge stands the famous octagonal Wasserturm, or water tower, where in olden times the municipal treasure was stored. For ages it was also used as a prison and among the dungeons
as a torture chamber.
But the most unique feature of all consists of the curious pictures in the roof of the bridge. These old pictures—sixty-nine of them—are painted on triangular wooden panels which fit into the pitched roof of the bridge. One after another they tell the most salient facts of Swiss history or portray events in the life of the tutelary saint of the town, St. Leodegar and St. Maurice.—New York Tribune.

NEWTON GRAPHIC

HON. EDGAR W. WARREN,
Mayor of Newton,

Sir:—
Please investigate the financial conditions of the Water Department with a view, if feasible, to abolish the $1.50 annual charge for meter rental.

Name,

No. Street,

P. O.

Sign the above form or something like it and mail to Mayor Warren, City Hall, West Newton.

Considerable public interest has been aroused by the Graphic editorial of last week advocating cheaper water and we have heard many expressions of approval of the course we have laid out. The question is a simple one. Reduce the cost of water until the receipts equal the expenses of the department. The abolition of the $1.50 annual meter rental will about offset the estimated excess receipts for 1905 and give partial relief to many takers. Next year when the interest charges will be still further reduced by the elimination of $12,500 on bonds which will be paid next July, it will be possible to advocate a reduction of five cents a thousand gallons in the price of water. The public must understand however, that unless this matter receives their earnest support, the city authorities will not voluntarily make the proposed reduction. The form which we print on another page will indicate one method of bringing this matter forcibly to the attention of City Hall.

Among Women

The Social Science Club will observe its Twentieth Anniversary at the next regular meeting January 24, 1906.

At the next monthly meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club on January 25th, at three P. M., Mrs. Margaret Deland will read a short original story to be followed by her essay "Concerning the Saints." A very delightful afternoon is anticipated and the President, Mrs. Frank E. Anderson will add to the pleasure of it by giving a reception and tea after the entertainment to Mrs. Deland and to the club members.

Mrs. W. C. Richardson spoke to the Newtonville Woman's Guild upon "The Greek Theatre" on Tuesday, January 16. The music of the afternoon was a piano solo by Miss Constance Richardson. Tea was served afterwards and an unusually pleasant social time enjoyed. The next meeting will be the annual Subscription party for the benefit of the charitable work of the club.

The attention of the club women is called to a lecture by Mr. Gifford Pinchot, Chief of the United States Forest Service in support of the proposed extension of the federal forest policy to the eastern section of this country, on Saturday, January 20, at eight o'clock. The meeting will be held in Huntington Hall, Rogers Building, Boston, under the auspices of the Appalachian Club and is open to the public.

The regular meeting of the Social Science Club was held on Wednesday morning, January 17. The subject of the paper for the morning was "A Pioneer in the Work of Reform and Human Advancement." The particular pioneer treated was Elihu Burritt and under Mrs. Heard's delightful presentation proved a most interesting character. He was known as the "Learned Blacksmith" for the reason that without training he mastered many languages until he spoke fluently fifty-two and had knowledge of many other dialects. Among more important works in which he was engaged were the promotion of universal peace, and the securing of reasonable rates of postage for the transmission of letters from one country to another. He was influential in saving Oregon to the United States when it was in danger of coming into the possession of the Hudson Bay Company. Several of the members spoke briefly upon other pioneers, among those mentioned were: Dorothy Dix, Marcus Whitman, the medical missionary to Oregon who also assisted in the saving of Oregon; John Howard; Catherine Beecher and Mary Lyon, workers for the education of women. Extracts from President Eliot's book "John Gilley" were also read.

The Waban Woman's Club met with Mrs. Oakes on Monday, January 15. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. H. Pillsbury, one of the vice-presidents presided. The subject for the afternoon was "Jacobite History in Story and Song" presented by Mrs. Walter Watkins. Mrs. Watkins dwelt particularly upon the life of Charles Edward, the Young Pretender. Of stories she mentioned "Bonnie Prince Charlie," "Kidnapped," and the "White Cockade" by Stevenson; the novels of Ainsworth and Andrew Lang. Songs of this period were also rendered.

The Ladies Home Circle will meet Jan. 24 at 2:30 P. M. in the West Newton Unitarian church.

Castle Square Theatre—The production of "Madame Sans Gene" at the Castle Square Theatre next week will bring the name of Sardou again into local prominence. It is a romantic and historical comedy, and with the great Napoleon as its central figure, it has attracted wide-spread attention. Other great personages of the time surround him during the course of the play, in which there are many strongly dramatic as well as frequent comic situations. "Madame Sans Gene" has been played here by Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry, and other stars, but never before by a stock company. At the Castle Square next week, every scenic detail will be carefully attended to, and the cast will be as strong as possible. Napoleon will be played by Mr. Waldron and the title heroine by Lillian Kemble.

Hollis Street Theatre—Klaw and Erlanger announce the engagement of Mr. George Edwards' London company in the comic opera, "Veronique," at the Hollis Street Theatre beginning Monday evening January 22nd. "Veronique" has the distinction of having had a run of 500 consecutive nights at the Apollo Theatre, London, and was brought to this country in October where it has been running at the Broadway Theatre, New York, ever since. The piece was adapted from the French by Henry Hamilton, and the music is by that distinguished composer, Andre Messager, conductor at the Convent Garden, London. Miss Ruth Vincent, the star, who was seen in this country last season with "The Medal and the Maid" will enact the title-role, that of "Veronique." Mr. Edwards has surrounded Miss Vincent with a strong and capable cast including Miss Kitty Gordon, Miss Valli Valli, Miss Lena Maitland, Miss Emmie Santer, Mr. Lawrence Res, Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald, Mr. Ralph Nairn, Mr. John Malcolm and Mr. John Le Hay. The great charm of "Veronique" is the daintiness of the story, the exquisite artistic beauty of the mounting, and the music which has been wedded to this interesting story is the best that the noted composer Messager, has ever given us. Matinees will be given Saturday of each week at which performance the curtain rises at 2 o'clock sharp. The curtain at the evening performances will rise at 8 o'clock sharp.

Majestic Theatre—"Wonderland" the new Julian Mitchell musical play at the Majestic, opened last Monday night to the capacity of that pretty play house and duplicated the success of Mr. Mitchell's former offerings in Boston theatres. The program says that it is a musical fantasy and that Victor Herbert contributed the music, and that fact alone would have insured it a welcome, but even Herbert seems to have outdone himself for it was the universal verdict of all who attended the performance that the music was the daintiest that he has given us. The book was contributed by Glen MacDonough and is as full of good things as the proverbial tin of meat. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

Prize Drill

The thirty fifth annual prize drill and dance of the Clavin Guards was held last Monday evening at the Company Armory before an audience of over five hundred persons including Mayor Warren and city officials.

Promptly at 8:15 with heads erect, and a firm, soldierly step the company marched on to the floor, Capt. Guilford in command. They made an excellent appearance as they came down the hall, with their arms and equipments cleaned and polished, and uniforms well fitted, they gave evidence of the discipline and care that is exercised over them.

Capt. Guilford is to be complimented on the very successful issue of the first prize drill held under his regime.

Dancing was then enjoyed until a late hour, the floor being in charge of Lieut. G. S. Coulter as marshal, Edward A. Wemmouth as director and Corp. Thos. J. Regan as assistant floor director.

The committee of arrangements were Capt. Guilford, Lieut. Daniels and Coulter, Sergt. Kelley, Corp. Clossey and Privates Semmott and McManey.

The judges were Lieut. Col. Clements and Lieut. John Hansen of the Fifth Regt. and Lieut. George Wilson of Troop D. After the trying out process had survived three rounds the judges announced that Sergt. J. J. Cooney was awarded the Pulitzer gold medal, Corp. William W. Love the silver medal and Sergt. A. G. Muldoon the bronze medal. Mayor Warren made the presentation.

Mrs. E. H. Walker Dead.

Mrs. Eliza Harding Walker, widow of the Rev. Augustus Walker died at her home in Auburndale last Monday at the age of 80 years. In 1853 Mrs. Walker went to Turkey as a missionary of the American Board, with her husband, Rev. Augustus Walker. They were located in Diarbekir on the Tigris River, where Mr. Walker died of cholera in 1860. Mrs. Walker returned to this country with her child, born after her husband's death, and almost immediately upon her arrival founded a home in Auburndale for the children of missionaries who are themselves in the foreign field. In the last thirty-seven years nearly three hundred children and about two hundred missionaries have enjoyed the hospitality and comfort of the Walker Missionary Home. Three children survive.

LAND COURT

To Tessie A. Hale, of Woburn, William R. Holm, of Newton, all in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by John W. Wenks, of said Newton, Trustee of the Newton Realty Trust under Declaration of Trust, dated December 12, 1902, and recorded with Map, Essex South District Deeds, Book 3068, Page 593, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land, situate in said Newton, bounded: Beginning at a point on the Northernly side of Grove Hill Road or Prospect Avenue at a stone monument, thence running Northernly and bounded Westerly by land of Tessie A. Hale, formerly Tessie A. Mooney, one hundred and fifty-five and 80/100 (155.80) feet to a private way known as Prospect Terrace; thence running Northernly, Northernly and Northernly by said Prospect Terrace, by a line curving to the left within a radius of twenty-five feet, fifty-three and 18/100 (53.18) feet to a stake; thence running still Northernly by said Prospect Terrace by a line curving to the right with a radius of forty-one and 25/100 feet, twenty-two and 10/100 (22.10) feet to a stone monument and land of said Tessie A. Hale; thence running Northernly by said land of Tessie A. Hale and land of John W. Weeks, Trustee, one hundred and ninety-one (191) feet to Dexter Road; thence running Southernly by Dexter Road forty-three and 66/100 (43.66) feet; thence running Southernly and Southernly by the Junction of Dexter Road and Walnut Street, by a line curving to the right with a radius of eighty-seven and 57/100 feet, seventy-five and 4/100 (75.04) feet; thence running Southernly by Walnut Street seventy-one and 30/100 (71.30) feet; thence running Southernly and Westerly by the Junction of Walnut Street and Grove Hill Road, by a line curving to the right with a radius of one hundred and sixty-six and 10/100 feet, two hundred and seven and 36/100 (207.60) feet; and thence running Westerly by Grove Hill Road twelve and 75/100 (12.75) feet to the pole of beginning, and containing 2,142 square feet.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court, to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twelfth day of February, A.D. 1906, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighteenth day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and six.

Attest with Seal of said Court
(SEAL) CLARENCE C. SMITH, Recorder.

NEW WASHINGTON BLD'G.
Opp. Franklin St.

Contributions for this department are earnestly solicited and should be sent to Miss Grace M. Burt, 94 Charlesbank Road, Newton, as early in the week as possible and not later than Wednesday in order to insure publication the same week.

The dates of the Baltimore convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association are from Feb. 7 to 13.

As a representative of the General Federation, Mrs. Mary I. Wood of Portsmouth, N. H., has just paid a visit to Montreal, where she met representatives of the women's clubs of Canada and discussed with them a project to unite the clubs of the United States and the Dominion under one board of officers.

The midwinter meeting of the Massachusetts federation will be held on Friday, Feb. 2, in the New Century building, Huntington avenue, Boston, by invitation of the Brightheimstone Club of Brighton and Allston.

At a meeting of the Brockton Women's Club on January first, Miss Helen A. Whittier, president of the Massachusetts Federation, spoke as follows upon the need of a larger treasury for the Federation with which to carry on its work and of the plans for securing a reserve fund by the bazaar which is to be held next March:

"The immense power which a well-ordered organization like ours can wield in influencing public opinion and educating the public conscience is now fully recognized all over the country. The general federation through its standing committees is studying social and economic questions of national importance, such as industrial conditions of women, child labor, civil service reform, pure food and forestry. Our Massachusetts federation is one of the most important sections of this great organization. With our 33,000 members it ranks second in size among the 46 state federations and probably is unequalled in influence and ability. Our responsibility is correspondingly great, and ever widening opportunities for social service present themselves constantly.

"From time to time special lines of sociological and educational work appeal to us for support which we are unable to give as the income of the federation hardly covers more than the annual expenses. It seems desirable therefore in some way to raise a large sum of money which may be kept as an emergency fund to be drawn upon as occasion demands. Such an occasion has arisen in the destruction by fire of the Model school in Georgia which has been generously helped by the Massachusetts clubs the past three years, and which now needs its equipment replaced. Our settlement work in the Tennessee mountains needs money to make it effective; we should be able to maintain fellowships which will enable expert investigations to be made in our own state of the conditions of labor affecting women and children; we should be able to cooperate with the inter-municipal research committee which is making a scientific investigation of the domestic problem; we should have funds to back up the work of our 11 standing committees which grows more important and far-reaching every year. As one instance, our arts and crafts committee is ambitious to establish a traveling arts and crafts exhibit for the benefit of our clubs but such an exhibit is expensive to collect and to maintain and our treasury is quite inadequate for such a purpose.

"The executive board therefore has been considering ways and means for raising this much-needed fund, and has decided to hold a bazaar early in the spring. In choosing this method of raising money the executive board has carefully weighed the disadvantages that are apparent, and considers that they are overbalanced by the benefits that will accrue to the federation from the opportunity given to enlist the interest of every federated club and to develop a stronger loyalty to the federation as well as a wider acquaintance among club women.

"The bazaar committee, of which Mrs. Bonney of Cambridge is the chairman, and Mrs. Clement of Boston is director, is preparing plans for a very beautiful and artistic bazaar which will be opened in Horticultural hall, Boston, Wednesday evening, March 14, and will close Saturday evening, March 17. It will occupy the entire building, and some novel effects are promised in the decorations which are in the hands of an experienced architect and interior decorator. Entertainment of a high order will be provided and there will be a score of tables for saleable articles of all descriptions. No raffle or element of chance will be permitted.

The director of the bazaar, Mrs. Clement, has assigned the clubs to their respective congressional districts, that seeming to be the most convenient classification, and in each district or sub-district, has assigned one of the club presidents as the district president who is expected to call together the other club presidents and secure their cooperation. To each district or section will be assigned some special table or duty, for which it will be responsible and in this way every club in every part of the state is brought into the working force. The enthusiastic co-operation of club women all over Massachusetts is confidently expected and will make the federation bazaar a great financial and social success, which in turn will ensure the future enlargement of the important work in which the Massachusetts State Federation is engaged."

The last meeting of the Pierian Club was held with Mrs. Easterbrook, Jan. 10. Mrs. S. A. Thompson read "The Night Wind," by Eugene Field. The following papers were presented: "Man's Supremacy in Japan," "Japanese Girls and Women," "Woman's Advantages and Disadvantages."

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands met with Mrs. Robbins on January 15. The subject for the afternoon was "Florence." Two papers were given one on the "Topography" and the other on the "Republic of Florence." The meeting next week will be with Mrs. Wells of Norman road.

At the meeting of the Executive Board of the Newton Federation on Monday morning it was decided that the Federation should assume charge of the apron and useful article table at the Federation Bazaar which is to be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, March 14 to 17. The committee in charge will be Mrs. C. G. Wetherbee, chairman, and the presidents of the local clubs. Articles are solicited from all members of clubs and should be given to the local club president marked for table "12A," giving price for which the article should sell.

The meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club took the form of a luncheon on Friday, January 12. A large number of the members and their friends assembled at one o'clock in the banquet room of the Unitarian church, where Miss Lillian E. Bullock of Brookline, demonstrator of the H. J. Heinz Co. assisted by the hospitality committee of the club served a delicious luncheon. The menu consisted of tomato soup, baked beans with tomato sauce, Waldorf salad, mince pie, strawberry preserve and numerous condiments prepared by the Heinz Company and "La Touraine" coffee from the W. S. Quinby Company. After the luncheon the members adjourned to the parlor below where Miss Caroline M. Caswell of the Frances Willard Settlement of Boston spoke of the good work done there. Following this Miss Bullock entertained the club with stereoscopic pictures of the Heinz Company's plant at Pittsburgh, demonstrating the absolutely clean conditions under which the Heinz "57 Varieties" are put up, as well as the welfare work which the company do for their employees.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the club will be observed at the next meeting on January 26, when several of the charter members will give reminiscences of the early days of the Club. The program will also include readings by Miss Frances Dillingham of Auburndale, vocal music and a reception. A large number of invitations have been sent to the officers of the Federated Clubs of Massachusetts. It is hoped that the members of the club will attend so far as it is possible and extend hospitality to the guests.

The Ladies' Home Circle will meet next Wednesday, January 24, at two o'clock at the Unitarian church, West Newton. A Blue Jay luncheon will be served. A large attendance is desired.

The Newton Equal Suffrage League will meet with Rev. and Mrs. F. N. Peloubet, 132 Woodland Road, Auburndale, Tuesday evening, January 23. Address by Jesse C. Ivy on "Municipal Needs," followed by discussion and music.

Clubs and Lodges

A successful whist party under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary A. O. U. W. was held in Circuit hall last Monday evening. Refreshments were served during the intermission and dancing followed.

Newton Lodge I. O. O. F. will install the new officers in Odd Fellows Hall, West Newton, next Thursday evening. The work will be done by D. D. G. M. Brown and suite of Prospect Lodge of Waltham.

The installation of the officers of Auburndale Lodge, A. O. U. W. was held Wednesday evening in McVicar's hall on Auburn street. The exercises were conducted by District Deputy Maurice E. Beardsley and suite of West Newton. Guests were present from the Natick and John Eliot lodges and there were addresses followed by a collation.

In Nonantum hall, Newton, next Tuesday evening the recently elected officers of Newton Lodge, A. O. U. W. will be installed by Grand Master Workman Simmons and suite of Boston.

Mr. Sterling Elliott, an old time Bicycle rider of Newton has invented a novelty in a turntable for automobiles and will show it in the basement of Mechanics Building, during the Boston Automobile & Power Boat Show, March 10-17. A two-ton truck will be shown on this turntable which is but ten inches from the floor level and is made in different sizes according to the length of wheel base of the cars on which it will be used.

One of the largest marine reverse gear manufacturers with plant in Hartford, will exhibit at the Boston Automobile Show in March and place on view a style of gear made for the Florida racing boats. These gears are being shipped all over the world and show how American products are appreciated.

DAR

The Board of Management of the Lucy Jackson Chapter held a business meeting last Friday at the residence of Mrs. Arthur G. Hosmer, 305 Austin street, West Newton, to discuss plans for a suitable celebration of Washington's Birthday. Those present were Mrs. Arthur P. Friend the regent, Mrs. Charles S. Denison, Miss Fanny B. Allen, Mrs. Benjamin W. Hackett, Mrs. Chas. W. Leonard, Mrs. William Saville, Mrs. F. M. Sherman, Mrs. Ellery Peabody, Mrs. F. N. Thatcher and Mrs. Henry Whitmore.

If you are contemplating the purchase of a piano, a good precedent to go by is that established by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC in selecting forty Stieff pianos for their school this year. THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC is the largest institution in the world for the teaching of music. Their judgment on a piano is expert.

THE STIEFF piano manufacturers make a specialty of building pianos for schools. Why? Because they have to stand a severe test and the STIEFF has stood this test for the past fifty years. Why not profit by the example set by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC? If you do you will make no mistake.

How's Your Hair?

Arthur Hudson Announces That He Has at Last Secured a Cure for Hair Troubles.

We beg to announce to the people of Newton that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M. D., England's most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name of Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives a live and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cornelia Stevens, 6 Smith Ave., Boston, Mass., says: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that I was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff scales or any scalp troubles try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Albert Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. Trade Schools.

The following paper was read by Mr. Eugene Hough of this city at the annual convention of Master House Painters and Decorators, held in Boston the present week, on "The Position Taken by Local Organized Labor in Relation to Trade Education."

It will be noticed by the title of the subject given me that my criticism applies to local organized labor only. I am glad to say that there exists other localities where such position is reversed.

The anomalous attitude assumed by Local Leaders of organized labor toward the establishment of Trade schools is one of hostility. I say "Local Leaders" advisedly. When a committee of employers attended an open session of a certain Union and explained what was desired to accomplish by means of Trade Schools, the rank and file, that is to say, the Union, the body of real workers voted in favor of the establishment of such schools. But the "Leaders," lily-handed and leather-tongued, at once proceeded to antagonize the project, using the name of an honest Union for its defeat.

Their attitude is inconsistent. They will with one breath proclaim their inability to have their boys taken into shops and taught a trade, exclaiming with much show of pathos, "There he is, strong and willing, where shall I send him?" and in the next breath they will declare that, given such opportunity for boys to learn trades, the ranks of skilled workmen would be flooded.

Their attitude is anomalous, in that it is against the best interest of their followers detrimental to the general public, destructive to the craft, and death to the ambition of the young man who really wants to acquire skill and competency in his chosen trade. In the mutation of economic conditions we have seen the disappearance of the apprentice-peripatetic study is needed to convince one that the trend of all teaching is away from private and toward public instruction. We no longer see lawyers and doctors acquiring their proficiency and skill by studying in the offices of other doctors and lawyers. In the mercantile world we no longer see the bookkeepers and cashiers recruited from the office boys. They all come from the schools where such things are taught. At this very time there is being established, here in the public schools of Boston, a system of instruction in salesmanship, teaching how to approach customers and tie up bundles. In all lines of occupations there is a trend toward such instruction. It is recognized by all employers that they can no longer afford to teach apprentices and equip them for the duties of their calling.

In every branch of industry there is a demand for greater efficiency, greater skill, better trained brains and hands. With this demand comes an extension of public function so as to embrace the teaching and training of those who are to do the work along those lines.

Of opportunity for technical training for superintendents and directors there is no lack. Of opportunity for learning how to really do things there is woful lack. The public demands both. Every man in this Convention feels the need of competent workmen. It is not a question of wages it is a question of competency. We cannot afford to teach boys and make competent workmen of them. What then do we do? We look to Europe for the finished workman, and we find him. In this way our young American mechanic becomes a hissing and a by word. He is born a "Sovereign" but he cannot acquire standing as a skilled workman nor receive the wages of such.

Obviously the local leaders of organized labor must climb down from their perch and find some more live and tenable way-cry than opposition to Trade Schools. They cannot fool the rank and file forever, nor will the public long stand for their obstruction. The current of public opinion is toward the establishment of Trade Schools. False leaders with obsolete arguments no matter how plausibly put must stand aside or they will be swept under.

Jan. 9th 1906. Eugene Hough.

Literary Notes

Ben Franklin, whose 200th birth anniversary falls in this month, is honored in the January National Magazine as "The American Confucius." The author of this ingenious conception of "our one world's man" also sketches briefly and brilliantly the character and works of Thomas Paine, the "Horace Greeley of the American Revolution" and the immortal author of "The Age of Reason." These character studies are from the pen of John McGovern of Chicago, one of our most scholarly and poetic historians. Kate Sanborn reviews the "Autobiography" of Dr. Andrew Dickson White, a really great living American, and Charles Warren Stoddard depicts delicately, sympathetically, yet intimately, the inner life of one of the best known women in our history—"Kate Field, Cosmopolite." W. F. Melton writes, and M. L. Blumenthal illustrates, a quizzical but shrewdly sensible account of what happens "When Jill Goes to Boarding School." In another tone is Stephen J. Colvin's epitome of the new ideas put into practice at the University of Illinois, under the explanatory caption "A University that Means Business." Other features of the number are

"Woman as the Female," by Michael A. Lane, a scientific study of certain sex-phenomena commonly misunderstood by persons who discuss them loosely; "The Mulatto Negro: The Yellow Peril of the North," by Annie Riley Hale—a paper that will open the eyes of northern readers to social changes taking place very quietly and which are of the highest importance to all Americans; "Cowboy Life in the Far Southwest," a series of seven typically ranch scenes reported photographically; "Doing Three Great World-Capitals in Three Weeks," by Joe Mitchell Chapple, and "Beauties of the American Stage," by Helen Arthur. There are three brilliant stories, strong poems by Ernest McGaffey, Jasper Barnett Cowdin and others, and the usual departments—"Affairs at Washington," illustrated; "The Home," and Frank Putnam's "Note and Comment." The National has adopted a standard cover, a very strong and beautiful one by the way, designed by Mr. Blumenthal.

Labor Day, 1904, while fishing for blackfish over the wreck, near Rockaway Inlet, in Jamaica Bay, I caught a few good-sized fish and a couple of small ones. I had a piece of an old woolen stocking, which I used to wipe off the fishing pole and reel with, and I tore off a piece of this and wrapped it around the tail of one of the small blackfish, throwing him back into the water. A year later, it just happened to be Labor Day, I was fishing at the same old spot. The first fish I pulled up was a blackfish weighing about two pounds with a black woolen sweater on.—Edwin Hauck in Recreation for January.

The Sunday School Class, under the direction of Dr. Cobb, connected with the First Baptist church, Newton Centre, has begun the study of the Bible taking it up by books.

At the Auburndale Congregational church last Sunday morning the collection was taken for the Congregational Church Union. The praise service in the evening was led by Mr. W. H. Blood.

The Standard Bearers will hold their quarterly rally at the Methodist church, Newton, next Monday evening. An interesting program is in preparation.

At the Newtonville Methodist church this evening, at the mid-week meeting, the regular study of the book of John will be resumed.

The vesper service at the Central church, Newtonville, last Sunday afternoon was well attended. The quartette, assisted by Miss Alice Williams violinist and Miss Lillian Haynes cellist, rendered selections for the compositions of Schumann, Hascall, West, Dancla and Schaeffer.

The ladies of the Auburndale Congregational church are collecting articles to send to the Allen Normal School in Thomasville, Georgia.

The offering at Grace church next Sunday will be for Foreign Missions.

A meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent Society was held Tuesday afternoon in the vestry of the Immanuel Baptist church.

At the Newton Centre Methodist church Messrs. A. H. Leonard, M. A. Chandler and H. A. Thayer have been appointed by the official board as a committee to secure the new hymnal for the church.

A meeting of the Queens of Avilion was held Thursday evening in the parlors of Central church, Newtonville. An interesting program was presented.

The Ladies Benevolent Society connected with the Auburndale Congregational church is doing a fine work in a quiet way. At the sewing circles the work is largely for the home missionaries some going to Newton or Boston and the rest to the south or northwest.

The annual offering for Foreign Missions will be taken at the Immanuel Baptist church next Sunday morning.

The New Church Society, Newtonville, has adopted individual communion cups which were recently presented by two friends of the society.

The subject of the prayer meeting at Central church, Newtonville, this evening will be, "The Holy Spirit." The meaning of this topic will be considered and its use to the individual.

The service of Holy Communion will be celebrated at St. John's church, Newtonville, next Sunday morning at 9.30.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Newton Christian Endeavor Union was held Monday evening at the home of the president Mr. Frank A. Arnold, Central street, Auburndale. It was decided to hold the annual meeting in the Immanuel Baptist church, Newton, early in February.

At the Second Congregational church, West Newton, next Sunday, at the close of the morning service, the graduating exercises of the Bible School will be held.

Tremont Theatre.—Marie Cahill opened her regular Boston season at the Tremont Theatre last Monday in the "smart" musical play "Molly Moonshine," which had such a successful run in New York City. One of the largest audiences that ever greeted a popular star was present to receive "Nancy Brown" in her new offering by Edwin Milton Royle and George V. Hobart, with music by Silvio Hain. Boston, with its liking for refined and dainty things, has fallen head over heels in love with this new musical comedy. The promise that it is different from anything else has been kept. For two hours and a half the spectator is charmed and amused with brilliant dialogue, lively action and songs that cannot be forgotten. Miss Cahill has even improved her well-known method of propelling effectively but quickly the laughable epigrams given her by Mr. Hobart, and her songs are the best she has ever had. "Looking for Ten" is the head of the piece, but is quickly followed in popularity by "Robinson Crusoe's Isle," "Don't be what you Ain't," "In our Set," and "Foolish." One of the features which adds greatly to the totally complete prettiness of "Molly Moonshine" is the much written about beauty choruses. With their long skirts and dainty laces, the pretty girls in Miss Cahill's company make themselves much more interesting than does the bold type of chorus girl to which the American public has been willingly or otherwise accustomed.

Keith's Theatre.—Alice Pierce, a former Boston girl, who has been scoring a tremendous hit in England and on the Continent during the past four years, is to be one of the principal entertainers in a big vaudeville program at Keith's the week of Jan. 22. Miss Pierce is an imitator or "impressionist," as she prefers to be known, on the order of "Cissy" Loftis, impersonating such well-known stage celebrities as Mrs. Leslie Carter, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Dighy Bell and others. The surrounding show is unquestionably one of the strongest of the winter including Rose Worth and her equestrian novelty, in an excellent exhibition of expert reinmanship, backband riding and high school horsemanship; Miss Slapoffski, the famous English prima donna soprano; May Duryea and W. H. Mortimer, in the comedy sketch, "The Imposter"; Keno, Welch and Melrose, one of the most amusing comedy acrobatic organizations in the varieties; Alfred Arneson, skilful European equilibrist specially imported for the Keith circuit; Saona, impersonator of "Great Men, Past and Present"; Renier and Gourcier, pleasing singers and dancers, and Henella, magician and illusionist. A complete new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be shown in the kinetograph.

Rev. Dr. Adams Dead.

Rev. George Monthon Adams, D. D., died at the Newton Hospital last week Thursday. He was born in Castine, Me., July 7, 1824, and was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1844. After two years spent in the Theological Seminary at Bangor, he pursued his studies in Germany, at Halle and Berlin. On returning to the United States he completed his course at Andover Theological Seminary, where he was graduated in 1850. His first pastorate was at Conway, where he remained twelve years. He then became pastor of the North Congregational church in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1861, where he remained for eight years. Subsequently he removed to Holliston, where he was pastor for fifteen years. Retiring from the pastorate he removed to Auburndale. During his residence here he served on the school committee for three years beginning in 1895, and has recently had charge of the Union church at Waban.

He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Dr. Adams was a man of scholarly tastes and habits, an able preacher and a most genial companion.

Funeral services were held at the Auburndale Congregational church Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and were attended by the many friends of the deceased. Rev. C. M. Southgate made the opening prayer and was followed by Rev. Dr. F. N. Peloubet who read the Scriptures and a poem which had been read at the funeral of Dr. Adams' daughter thirty years ago. Rev. Dr. E. E. Strong read a communication from the Union church at Waban, and a mixed quartet sang several selections. Rev. Dr. S. W. Dike was in charge of the committal service at the grave in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Mrs. Pickard Dead

Mrs. Fanny M. Pickard, the wife of ex-mayor Edward L. Pickard died at her home on Woodland road, Auburndale, last Friday, after a long period of failing health. Mrs. Pickard was born in Bangor, Me., the daughter of the late Joshua C. Plummer, and was 72 years of age.

Mrs. Pickard has resided in Auburndale since 1872 and has always been active in the church and philanthropic work of the community. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Julia, and three sons, Charles, George and Edward L. Jr.

Funeral services were held from the Pickard residence Sunday, Rev. Dr. Currier of the Oklin Theological Seminary officiating. A mixed quartet sang and the interment was in the Newton Cemetery.

Newton has occasion to view with alarm, Governor Guild's suggestion that the state appropriate to itself the taxes received from corporations, instead of apportioning it to the different cities and towns as at present. The fact that this method would abolish the state tax
may appeal to some, but with a net loss
to this city of some $42,000, that being the difference between our state tax of $80,000 and our corporation receipts of $122,000, no time should be lost by our representatives in getting to work to defeat this recommendation. Sixty cents addition to our present tax rate would result if the Governor's recommendation becomes law.

Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Swift Norris of Newton Centre observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, with an elaborate reception at the Newton Clubhouse last Friday evening.

The assembly hall was beautified with palms and potted plants and an orchestra furnished popular and excellent music throughout the reception and soon led the younger set to trip the light fantastic in a round of dancing which continued until midnight, only broken by the supper hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris were assisted by Mrs. Hamlin, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Powers,
Mrs. Salinger, Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Cook,
Mrs. Blood and Mrs. Baily, and the ushers were Messrs Parks, Cook, Young, Armington and Tenney.

Supper was served in the ladies parlors and the tables were most attractive.
Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Gates, Miss Bellows
and Mrs. Percy S. Gates poured.

Guests were present from the Newtons, Springfield, Boston, Melrose, Lynn,
and Brookline, and among those present
were noted:

Mayor and Mrs. E. W. Warren, Hon.
and Mrs. A. R. Weed, Col. and Mrs. I.
F. Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hamlin, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hubbard, Mr.
and Mrs. C. H. Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs.
A. I. Brown, Mrs. Sarah Morey, Mr.
and Mrs. G. F. Spaulding, Mrs. Abner
Raymond, Miss Boscom, Mr. J. C. Brim-

and Mr. Norris has been a strong factor in local affairs. He has served in the board of aldermen for four years and on the executive committee of the Newton club and the Newton Centre Improvement Society. He is engaged in business with the Shreve, Crump and Low Company of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris received many valuable presents of silver, cut glass, china and flowers and many letters of congratulations from distant friends.

An interesting and full account of the 25th anniversary of the Social Science Club is crowded over to next week's issue.

The First National Bank of West Newton

EXTERIOR OF BANK

An important change in the management of the FIRST NATIONAL BANK of WEST NEWTON was recently made, and the new officers from their long and active participation in the affairs of the community deserve more than passing notice.

The new directors are Mr. Harry L.
Burrage, Mr. Charles E. Hatfield, Mr.
George P. Bullard, Mr. Henry H. Hunt,
Mr. C. R. Hannan, of West Newton,
Mr. W. F. Edlefsen and Mr. Garrard
Conly of Boston. Messrs James H.
Nickerson, Chas. A. Potter and Alfred L. Barbour of the old board continue in office.

Mr. Harry L. Burrage is so well known in this city that only a mention of his name should inspire confidence in the organizations with which he is con-

with a capital of $100,000. Mr. James H. Nickerson was its first president and
M. L. Parker the first cashier. It occupied the rooms now used by the West Newton Savings Bank. Mr. Edward P.
Hatch became its cashier in 1888, and immediately reorganized its affairs and it began to grow, until at the present time it has deposits of over a half million dollars, over 800 depositors and a surplus and undivided profits of $65,000.
Mr. Nickerson resigned as President in 1902 and was succeeded by Mr. Hatch.
Mr. Joseph B. Ross the present cashier came into office in 1903. Mr. Hatch has recently retired from the presidency to accept a similar position in Boston and has been succeeded by Mr. Hatfield. In 1897 the bank entered its present quarters, with an enlarged vault of modern nected. Few of our young men have risen

so rapidly in their chosen profession,
and also young in years, Mr. Burrage is recognized as one of the leaders in financial circles of Boston. As President of the Eliot National Bank of Boston,
Mr. Burrage is in close touch with financial matters, a connection which must be beneficial to his new interests in the West Newton Bank. Mr. Burrage is prominent socially in the Brae Burn Country Club, the Boat Club, the Players and other social organizations and has many friends throughout the city.

Mr. Charles E. Hatfield the new president of the bank has been so long in touch with political affairs as Chairman of the Republican City Committee, that his name and high reputation, are almost household matters. Mr. Hatfield's connection with the bank will guarantee its future able management, as he has the confidence and trust of the citizens of the community to an unusual degree.

Mr. George P. Bullard, has been a resident of West Newton for quite a number of years and is prominent both socially and politically. He is president and treasurer of the Eastern Expanded Metal Company which does a large bus-

ness in building construction and is an able and successful business man.

Mr. Henry H. Hunt is one of the most influential men in the city, and a builder
and contractor on a large scale. His acquaintance is large and his presence in the directorate will inevitably attract considerable new business.

Mr. C. R. Hannan, formerly president of a large and successful bank at Council Bluffs, Iowa, is now eastern financial manager for the Swifts. He resides in the Nickerson estate on Temple street.

question of street railways, treating the subject in a clear and comprehensive manner. The paper will be given in full next week. The address was followed by discussion. Instrumental music was furnished by Mrs. Freeman which was much enjoyed. A social hour with light refreshments closed the evening.

Clubs announces that its mid winter meeting will take place on Tuesday evening, February 13, at eight o'clock in the Congregational church, Newtonville, and that Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, Colorado, has been secured as the speaker. Judge Lindsey is known as the "Kid Judge" from his work among the bad boys of Denver and the juvenile courts. The Federation counts itself especially fortunate in being able to secure Judge Lindsey as he is to be in this vicinity but a short time. The meeting will be open to the public and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves

of this unusual opportunity.

The Pierian Club held its last meeting
Jan. 24, at the home of Mrs. Hemphill.
After the usual business had been transacted, the ladies, in Japanese gowns,
were invited into an adjoining room,
where the hostess served, in truly Japanese style, a Ceremonial Tea with all the pomp and solemnity of a truly Oriental affair.

The room was most artistically adorned
with screens, scrolls, pictures, fans, cherry blossoms and curios of all descriptions, and with the odor of incense wafted on the balmy air, one might almost imagine he had been transported to the land of the chrysanthemum, and into the home amid the high society of Japan.

After the tea was served, the ladies were most charmingly entertained by four "Geisha" girls who gave a song
and dance to a "Japanese Love Song"
with such grace and ease as would do credit to professionals.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. S. A. Thompson, Mrs. Edith Cooper
and Mrs. W. Clayton Willard.

The regular club meeting of the Auntunale Review Club was held with Mrs. Wm. Fuller, Maple street, Tuesday January 23. The committee of the morning, Miss Ella Smith, Miss Marie Felix, Mrs. Frederick Wilkey and Mrs.
Edward Miller presented "A Blot on the Scutcheon." It was a very interesting morning. The reading of the play was followed by papers on "Why I do not like 'A Blot on the Scutcheon' and one in favor of the play. This was followed by a general discussion.

Mrs. E. A. Taylor of 35 Cross Street, will be pleased to call with an elegant line of hosiery and underwear. Send postal or telephone.

Associated Charities.

At the Emmanuel Baptist church last Wednesday evening the adjourned meeting of the Newton Associated Charities was held. A public meeting followed in the main auditorium where addresses, on the aim and needs of the organization were made by the president, Mr. Charles S. Ensign and Rev. Frank B. Matthews. The public was urged to assist in a financial way, by becoming members or by sending contributions of clothing and other articles. Newton has its poor and needy as well as other cities and the Associated Charities investigates all cases which come to the attention of the secretary thus doing away with promiscuous giving to unworthy persons. An interesting lecture followed by Rev. E. J. Helms of the Morgan Chapel in Boston who described its work and the influence it has on the poor of the city.

SCHOOL BOARD

The school board held its monthly meeting on Wednesday night. The resignation of Mrs. Turley of the Barnard School was accepted and these teachers appointed:—Lillie Hedberg, Mary C. BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

Like the feeble attempts that have been repeatedly made to install a New England winter here in Massachusetts since Thanksgiving, so has the legislature essayed to get down to work. Nineteen days have been marked off the new calendar since the Great and General Court has been organized, and yet hardly nineteen hours have been consumed in legitimate application to the business in hand. To be sure, there have been three Sundays during that time when men are commanded not to work, but the same command says, "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work," and if the members have observed the Sabbath end of the command, they certainly have been negligent of the work end of the injunction. If recollection serves, the foregoing song has been in substance chanted by the writer for many, many years, so that the flocks presided over by shepherds Dana and Cole are not negligent in one respect at least; they are keeping up the reputation of the legislatures that have gone before, and, as those august assemblages have long since become ashes and fine dust, so shall also it be with the gathering now on Beacon Hill that has a name to live.

Representative Luce, not satisfied with the election law muddle, has dipped his hand into the bottomless pit of the lobby. Mr. Luce evidently is not afraid to tackle the impossible. He desires to make the lobby act more stringent and has introduced a bill which he hopes will have that effect. The law legally creating the lobby, was the result of the great investigation of the West End Street Railway in 1890, prior to that time the lobby had no existence in the eyes of the legislature, but in 1890 the legislature saw fit to give the mysterious element form and significance at the State House. Whether that was a wise course to take, is more or less of a question, but certain it is that the efforts of Mr. Luce to give the lobby an anacronism will not have the desired effect. The visible lobby has pretty well disappeared from the State House, only an insignificant remnant remains. If it is desired to exterminate what there is of the order, an entirely different course should be taken than that proposed by Mr. Luce, who assails it as though it possessed some degree of strength. A more correct manner of treatment would be Dr. Osler's mode applied with legislative care and precision.

Monday morning, the Liquor Law Committee gave a hearing on Senate Bill No. 35 for amending the law as to the sale of liquor near public schools, and the bill revising the law as to distance between schools and liquor saloons. One could hardly avoid noting the absence from the liquor law committee-room, of Mr. Henry H. Faxon, the man who for so many years has stood on the firing line, and who many a time has stood there alone. Mr. Faxon has been underestimated by the followers of temperance, but has never been so rated by the liquor interests. He has been the bitterest foe that the saloon has had in Massachusetts since John B. Gough, and the saloon feared the Quincy man more than it feared an army with banners. It feared the methods that had been applied to the city of Quincy more than it did a hundred pages of law on the statute books. The quiet snipe and open pocketbook of the foremost and most effective enemy to the saloon in this country, was more to be dreaded by the saloon, than a score of Hutchinson's with songs upon their lips. A memorial service was held the other day, in which Governor Long, who was made Governor of Massachusetts by Henry Faxon, Dr. Horton, Father Roche, Dr. Plumb, and others spoke eloquent words of praise concerning the hero of Quincy. At the same time, a jubilee was observed by the spirit that presides over the saloon, at which a song of rejoicing was upon the lips of the High Priest, and the burden of that song was, that the arch enemy of the saloon had fallen. But he had not fallen, such men never fall.

Regarding the hearing of Monday it developed that it was what might be called a "Touraine" hearing, as it was transparent that it was sought to alter the law so that the Hotel Touraine might be exempt and permitted again to resume business. The evidence made it plain that the law would not be amended, however, unless something was done to change the sentiment of the legislature. Not even a committee report favorable to the project would be accepted by the legislature. If that should be the result, it will be up to Mayor Fitzgerald to work his scheme.

Senator Schofield must have had the old song "try, try again" warbled frequently to him when he was a lad, for he is thoroughly in earnest about the Soldiers' Gratuity Bill, in spite of the manner in which it has previously been turned down by the Great and General Court. Mr. Schofield now is to ask for the Supreme Court's opinion as to whether the proposed bill is constitutional or not. If it becomes a law, the old soldiers ought to put up a tablet in honor of Senator Schofield, and have it properly inscribed, in accordance with the ideas of Veteran Gregg.

The legislature will have an opportunity to, indirectly, pass upon the life of Tucker, as a bill will be considered abolishing the death penalty, in case of circumstantial evidence, and the Mabel Page case is undoubtedly in that class. However, it will be extremely doubtful if the legislature takes a favorable view of the provisions of the bill. Previous action on the proposition is not encouraging.

Senator Clarke is in with his eminent domain bill again this year, which was thrown out by the legislature last year. It would appear that if the legislature last year did not favor the proposition in the bill the present body should look with as little favor upon the proposition. One would suppose that the recess committee will be likely to dispose of the question of eminent domain for street railways, or at least entertain the proposition in its forthcoming report. However, Senator Clarke may be seeking other ends in the matter.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston has sent a large batch of bills to the legislature, so that we are likely to have a flood of Fitzgerald eloquence at the hearings of the committee on cities. Perhaps the liveliest will be upon the bill creating a new street on the Charles River embankment back of Beacon Street, which will be the front of Beacon Street if the project goes through.

Senator Clarke offered a bill allowing automobiles to run at a speed of twenty miles an hour outside of the thickly settled district. As the weasel said, "What's the use?" They go faster than that now, and it seems to be foolish to enact law in the endeavor to regulate these automobiles, nothing but the jail is feared by them, and there are precious few courts that concern themselves about any jail end of the law.

Ex-Mayor Johnson of Waltham has his bill in again providing that the treasurer of cities and towns shall, within thirty days after the receipt of liquor licenses, make a return of the amount to the treasurer, and at the same time pay to the State Treasurer, one-half of the amount so received, and the remaining half to the treasurer of the county in which the city or town is located. There are many laws on the statute books of the State of New York more objectionable than the one which contains the same provisions that are in the bill offered by Mr. Johnson.

A far-reaching measure is a bill introduced by Senator Hunter, providing that the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission to consist of five citizens, to consider and report to the present legislature what amendments, if any, should, in their judgment, be made to the present laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors.

CIVIC CLUB

The annual meeting of the Civic Club of Newton was held at the Newton club house on Tuesday evening. President William F. Dana presided and among those present were Hon. H. E. Bothfield, Hon. A. R. Weed, Hon. E. W. Warren, Representatives J. A. Lowell and J. F. Lathrop, Aldermen Stone, Weston, Carter, Day, Underwood, Hunt, Burr, Clark, ex-aldermen N. H. Chadwick, Reuben Forknall, C. S. Dennison, C. S. Ensign, C. A. Brown, Dr. F. M. Lowe, ex-councilmen A. R. Bailey, H. H. Read, Dr. J. E. Frisbie and City Clerk Kingsbury.

Alderman Frank A. Day made an address on the proposed purchase of the Claffin estate for municipal purposes. He began by referring to the benefit which one received from joining in service to the city and mentioned the distinct educational benefit from contact with other men and ideas, the acquaintanceships formed through mutual service for the public and the larger idea of patriotism and the larger idea of the public weal. Another line of civic spirit, Mr. Day claimed was that of beautifying the city and for that reason he was interested in the purchase of this proposed land for civic uses. The city was not in a financial condition at present to do anything except for bare necessities, but this purchase could be a luxury for the citizens individually. It would be advisable to create an enthusiasm for making the city beautiful, which would be akin to public service. It would bring us out of a crabbed and selfish existence for ourselves alone, to the thought of our city and our neighbors. Mr. Day had no definite plan in regard to the development of the property, but believed it should be secured for the future. He knew that the idea would be of slow growth, but believed it should be considered, talked about and agitated and even brought before the children in the schools and family. There are few places where the public mind and ideals are so high as in Newton and in this matter of making the city beautiful, Mr. Day believed in diffusing the interest as widely as possible in order that a great many people might have a personal share in this movement. Out of this concerted effort for the beautification of the city might grow a general improvement society where matters affecting the whole city might be discussed as local questions are now considered by the village associations. Mr. Day briefly outlined the possibilities of development of the

Claffin estate suggesting a public bath house, public gymnasium, and room for educational and public buildings.

Hon. Henry E. Bothfield then spoke on the need for new school buildings, saying in the beginning that he was heartily in favor of a strict accounting to the citizens by those in charge of city expenses and from close investigation he was satisfied that the present tax levy was wisely expended.

The need of schools is different from streets, and other material things for here you are dealing with human souls, who will form the citizenship of the state and city of the future. They must be properly educated and properly housed.

The Nonantum district, using the term in a large sense to include the greater portion of Ward One as well as part of Ward Two, has three frame buildings, two of them quite old and the newest one of some twenty years of service. The Jackson school is crowded, two rooms in the roof floor, abandoned many years ago as unfit for use are again in service this year, and in the primary grades, two sessions for the 100 pupils make too large classes for the teachers to properly handle to get good results. The sanitary arrangements consist of the old-fashioned privies, with an overpowering stench in summer and requiring the children to put on outside wraps to reach in winter. This school, Mr. Bothfield declared has been in the worst condition for the past ten years, during which time more influential places have received what they asked for in the line of modern buildings, and the Nonantum district allowed to drift along in an indifferent and disgraceful manner. The Eliot school is in good condition and if a modern building was erected in place of the Jackson could be used for the primary and kindergarten children. The Lincoln school is also in good condition but its surroundings are not of the best and it is an expensive school to maintain.

The average school attendance in Wards 1 and 7 has increased rapidly, that of Ward One in two years being 18 per cent. A 16 room building would relieve both the Bigelow and the Horace Mann schools, as well as provide adequately for Nonantum. The Bigelow, planned for many years of service, has now every class room filled and recitations are being heard in the library and master's room. These conditions are duplicated in the Underwood where the kindergarten class numbers 50. In the Mann school about every seat is occupied, and additions to this or to the Bigelow building will not meet the whole situation. Besides the educational value of the clean, wholesome building in the Nonantum district should be considered.

At Newton Highlands matters are not quite so pressing as the club house is being used for the younger children, altho at a high rental. The Hyde school is not all that it should be and is crowded. The increase in attendance here is not so marked as at Nonantum for there has only been 20 pupils added in five years. The hall is being used for recitations and two small rooms on that floor are used as class rooms altho not planned for that purpose. The third floor is difficult to heat and the cold in winter has often caused dismissal of classes. Mr. Bothfield said that the Hyde school was the most unsatisfactory modern school building we have.

At the High School the average increase in attendance has been 40 per cent for the past five years. Newton has a larger high school in proportion to population of any city or town in the United States. The present building is taxed to its limit. It may be able to last a few years longer by using the corridors for class rooms or temporarily abandoning the beautiful hall from which four rooms could be made. Mr. Bothfield believed it wiser to await the outcome of the Claffin purchase before definite plans are made. Newton is violating the state law by not establishing a manual training school and this matter should be carefully considered in this connection.

These are all matters which must be met. We can get along without street lights, sewers and with poorer roads, but we must not neglect the proper training and care of our children.

The matter was further discussed by ex-aldermen Brown, Dr. J. F. Frisbie and ex-aldermen Chadwick.

These officers were elected:—President, ex-aldermen Henry Bailey, secretary-treasurer, J. C. Brimblecom, executive committee, Hon. Henry E. Bothfield and Aldermen Hunt and Palmer.

New Pump Accepted.

Last week Thursday, the official test of the new pump recently installed at the Pumping station of the Newton Water Works on Needham street, Newton Upper Falls, was made and proved most satisfactory to both the contractor, the Barr Pump Co. and to the city authorities. Observations were made every fifteen minutes between the hours of 10 A. M. and 8 P. M. and everything proved to be running with remarkable evenness and with smoothness and efficiency. The contract called for a duty test to show an efficiency of 130,000,000 gallons and after allowance for dripping and shipping, the pump showed an efficiency of 132,000,000 gallons. It's guaranteed capacity is 600,000 gallons per twenty-four hours but it can easily exceed this amount if desired.

The pump is a vertical, cross compound, condensing engine with fly wheel and double pump. The fly wheel has a diameter of 15 feet and weighs 20,000 pounds. The pump stands about 20 feet above the floor of the pumping station and some ten feet below the foundations with credit for the old pump of $5,000, making a net cost to the city of $25,000 together with the price of the foundations. The pumping station has been wired for electric lighting and a new water motor furnished power for the forty lights which are now in use. This is a most economical method of power as the water which furnished the power is returned to the pump well after it has driven the motor.

Hunnell Club

The appearance of Mary Howe, the famous prima donna soprano, who sings in concert for the Hunnewell Club, Feb. 8, will be a great musical treat. Besides being one of the handsomest women on the stage today, Miss Howe is the possessor of a wonderful voice which has been admirably trained. She is a queen of lyric song and the birdlike tones of her voice are almost without a parallel. Mary Howe is called by eminent musical critics one of the great coloratura sopranos of the world. Her rendition of the great operatic arias is marvellous, while her voice has that peculiar flute like quality which has rarely been equaled by any of the world's greatest singers, past or present.

In selections having the flute obligato it is almost impossible to separate the voice from the flute. Concerning her recent recital in Springfield, the Springfield Union says: "Mary Howe, who gave a concert last night in High School hall, more than fulfilled the expectations, and gave sufficient proof that the claims of those who call her the best American-born soprano on the concert stage today are not far off the way. Her voice was in perfect condition and her flute tones and roulades almost outdid those of the veritable flute which was played in accompaniment on several selections."

The Springfield Republican states concerning the same concert at which she rendered the famous Bird Song: "It is, of course, in just this sort of thing, which calls for beautiful tones and perfect execution, that Mary Howe excels, and in nothing were these qualities better displayed than in the 'Chanson du Myosotis,' by David. This aria from 'The Pearl of Barzai' belongs, one might say, by right of conquest, to Miss Howe. Many are the singers, notable and otherwise, even Calvé included, who essay this feat, but there are none who cover themselves with quite so much glory in the attempt as does Mary Howe."

Mary Howe has sung with marked favor before many of the crowned heads of Europe, and her appearance in opera before Emperor William created such a favorable impression that she was bid- den to the imperial box and personally complimented by the Emperor. During this period of her career she was entertained by many of the royal personages and appeared as star in all the leading opera houses of Germany. The criticisms of her recent concerts show that she is singing better than ever before. The fustat at this concert will be Mr. Edward A. Franklin, of Boston, one of the leading flutists of America and the song with flute obligato will be one of the gems of the evening, so perfectly do the voice and flute harmonize.

Mary Howe's career has been eagerly watched by the music lovers of New England, who are especially proud of her because she is a New England girl. She is a native of Brattleboro, Vermont, and from the beginning of her singing has been spoken of as the "Vermont Nightingale." Miss Howe, because of her recent marriage, intends to retire from public life at the close of the present season, a fact much regretted by the host of admirers of this wonderfully gifted artist.

Death of Mr. Holman.

Mr. Frank J. Holman, an old resident of Newton passed away at his home on Oakland street last Saturday after a several month's illness. He was native of Watertown and was 51 years of age. Deceased was for 29 years in the employ of Howard B. Coffin the grocer, the greater part of the time as head clerk, and his long and faithful service together with his unflinching courtesy and desire to please won the respect of all with whom he had business or social dealings. A widow survives him. He was a member of the Royal Arcanum and Unitarian Club. A brief service of prayer was held at the house Tuesday afternoon and funeral services followed at 2 o'clock from the chapel of Channing church. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and business associates and Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, pastor of the church, officiated. There was a number of floral tributes including a book from the business men at Newton Corner, a pillow from Channing Council R. A. and another from the men in Mr. Coffin's store. The bearers, all members of Channing Council, were Messrs H. E. Johnson, J. P. Airth, E. E. Snyder, William Deuschle, John L. Van Huskirk and H. E. Chaplin, the last two being brothers-in-law of the deceased. The interment was in the family lot in Newton Cemetery. Out of respect to the memory of Mr. Holman the stores closed during the funeral.

Wedding Reception.

One of the social events of the winter season was the wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Prescott which occurred Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. Prescott's parents on Park street. The hours were from 8 to 10 and a large number of the society set of the Newtons, Boston, Brookline and surrounding towns were present. The rooms were beautifully decorated with potted palms, ferns and cut flowers and an orchestra provided a musical program. Mr. and Mrs. Prescott were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, parents of Mrs. Prescott, and Mrs. Lucy E. Prescott mother of Mr. Prescott.

Mr. R. H. Stearns, Jr., was in charge of the arrangements, and the ushers were Messrs. Foster Stearns, Arthur Gilbert, Percival Gilbert, Percy Dewey, Lawrence Fuller and Asaph Haskell. Among the friends present were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. George Gilbert, Mr. Daniel Dewey, Professor and Mrs. Samuel Williston, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Day, Mr. H. A. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weston, Mr. and Mrs. Atherton Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bacon, Rev. F. S. Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Moosman, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wellman and Rev. and Mrs. Walcott Calkins.

A Card.

The family of the late Frank L. Holman wish to express their appreciation and thanks for the sympathy extended to them in their bereavement and for the many floral tributes sent to the funeral services.

Dr. P. H. Henson of Boston will address the Christian Endeavorers of the city of Newton and their friends at the Immanuel Baptist church, Newton, Monday evening, Feb. 5th at 7.45. The occasion being the 25th anniversary of the founding of Christian Endeavor. It is expected that a large and enthusiastic audience will greet Dr. Henson's first public appearance in our city. All are welcome.

LAND COURT.

To Annie M. Freeman, Isabel R. Barker Samuel W. Wagner and Levi K. Leavitt, of Newton, in the County of Middlesex; Forrest Bane, the Puritan Trust Company and Leonard Fowle of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, all in said Commonwealth; Richard H. Pierce, of Chicago, in the State of Illinois, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Caroline E. Gould, of said Boston, to register and confirm her title in the following described land and easement over the same:

A certain five (5) foot passageway running from Bennington Street to Newtonville Avenue, in said Newton, with a right of passage thereon, which said passageway is described as follows: Beginning at the eastern corner of land belonging to Barker on Newtonville Avenue, and measuring on said Avenue five (5) feet, to the northwest boundary of lots 18 and 19 on a plan drawn by Granger, dated August 1, 1847, recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Plan Book 15, plan 53, said lots 18 and 19 being now owned by Annie M. Freeman; thence along said boundary line two hundred (200) feet to Bennington Street; thence along Bennington Street, northwesterly five (5) feet, to land now of Wagner; thence northeasterly along land of Wagner and Barker, two hundred (200) feet, to the point of beginning. Containing one thousand (1000) square feet, be the same more or less.

Petitioner claims that said passageway is appurtenant to other land of hers situate on Bennington Street opposite said passageway, and is used by her in connection with said land under a claim of right in common with others entitled thereto.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court, to be held at Boston, in said County of Suffolk, on the nineteenth day of February, A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Leonard A. Jones, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of January in the year nineteen hundred and six.

Arthur Hudson Announces That He Has at Last Secured a Cure for Hair Troubles.

We beg to announce to the people of Newton that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M. D., England's most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name of Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives a live and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cornelia Stevens, 8 Smith Ave., Boston, Mass., says: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that I was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff, scales or a dry scalp, try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Albert Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. COLLEGE NIGHT

Newton Club Entertains Distinguished Guests

Presidents and Faculty of New England Colleges Dined and Toasted

The series of dinners which were inaugurated last year at the Newton club proved so attractive a feature of the season that more elaborate plans in the same line were made for the present winter. The first of these occasions took place last Saturday night and "College Night" served to bring out all the latent enthusiasm of this most fervent club. "College Night" with President Eliot of Harvard, President Tucker of Dartmouth, Prof. Sedgwick of Technology, Prof. Farnham of Yale, and Prof. McDonald of Brown as additional attractions brought out a large attendance of club members and guests and the results pleased every one.

The assembly hall was appropriately decorated with college banners, small flags of the five institutions officially represented being grouped about the tables and larger ones adorning the walls. Behind a screen of palms and ferns Handel's orchestra furnished music for the dinner and accompanied the college songs which were sung by the diners.

The guests were provided with printed copies of the following songs which were sung at intervals throughout the evening with great enthusiasm: "Fair Harvard," "Bright College Years" and "Boola" (Yale), "Alma Mater, Brown," and "Dartmouth." Enough men were present from each college to give a rousing utterance of their college yell after the singing of their songs. Other college and popular songs were sung during the banquet and the company rose and sang a verse of "America when the dinner was over and prior to the speaking.

The company was notable for the number of college men present, alumni of Amherst, Princeton, Iowa State University and of the five colleges represented by the speakers were to be found at the tables.

President Powers presided in his usual happy and inimitable manner and his sallies of wit and genial stories were received with roars of laughter.

The speeches were as follows:

PRESIDENT POWERS.

Members and Guests of the Newton Club:

I think we have every reason to congratulate ourselves tonight upon the success of this undertaking. Some time since we decided that we would have what was called a college dinner. It was not for the purpose of educating the membership, but rather for the purpose of allowing the membership to meet the representatives of the large colleges of New England. We had to draw the line somewhere. You remember that Boston gentleman who gave a large party and some one noticed that his only brother was not present, and asked him, "How does it happen that your brother is not here tonight?" He replied, "Oh, I had to draw the line somewhere; I couldn't invite everybody." (Laughter.) So we have to draw the line with reference to the number of colleges to be invited to this dinner. We took the four oldest institutions in New England, and then it occurred to us that we were quite as close to one of the newer institutions as to any other, and we invited that.

I want first to tell our distinguished guests something about the Newton Club. This club is organized with a very broad charter. It can do almost anything (laughter) and it rarely is charged with what is called in law ultra vires, because it has no limitations on its power. The real purpose for which it was organized was to make the world better (laughter) and incidentally to have a good time. But it is purely a cosmopolitan club. I suppose there is no organization in existence as easy to entertain as this one. (Laughter.) There is no subject that does not please the boys. We have tried almost everything upon them. We have tried lectures upon moral and mental philosophy, and they simply went into ecstasies over them. (Laughter.) We tried a vaudeville show one night and it went rather slow (renewed laughter), and we finally reached the conclusion that the membership of this club was rather inclined toward education and that they were interested in the colleges.

In fact, there is no college in which there is not an interest in this membership tonight. The interest in the college always commences with the opening of the year and gradually increases until about November, (laughter) when it is at white heat. Along about November you will find a greater interest in colleges in this club, perhaps, than in any other place in the country. Why, even Yale has friends in this club. (Laughter and applause.) I will say to the distinguished gentleman who represents Harvard tonight that if in looking over this crowd he sees one or more gentlemen who look a little more thrifty than the rest, they are Yale men (laughter)—they have bet on Yale; that accounts for it. (Great laughter.) If you see gentlemen here who appear to you to have the old Puritan virtue, standing by principle even though it lead to defeat, you can judge that they are Harvard men. (Laughter.) There are those of us who had rather be right than rich, and we are with Harvard. (Laughter.)

I want to say to the membership of the club that I have had great difficulty in determining the order in which I would call upon the representatives of these five institutions. The question was, which should have the kickoff. (Laughter.) I finally decided that I would allow Dartmouth and Brown to play the first game and I would hold back the game between the larger universities until later in the evening and that I would throw in a stunt from the Institute in the middle. And when it came to the question of Dartmouth and Brown, Brown with its phenomenal luck won the toss and gave the kickoff to Dartmouth. And so my first duty and my pleasure tonight is to present the representative of Dartmouth. (Applause.)

I remember some years ago while traveling upon a railroad train, meeting my old professor of mathematics. That was not the study I enjoyed most, but I had with me a friend upon whom I desired to make a good impression, and I thought I would introduce him to the old professor. So I said, "Professor Quimby, I want to present to you Mr. Smith. I want to say to you, Mr. Smith, that I was educated at Dartmouth and Professor Quimby was my instructor in mathematics." The professor turned and said, "I don't think it is quite fair that you should hold Dartmouth and me responsible for your education." (Great laughter.) I do not intend in any way to hold Dartmouth or to hold its president responsible for the product of that college which you have seen in your midst for many years gone by. But I do want to present to you the representative of a college which today is advancing rapidly in the educational world—a college which, as the greatest of American statesmen said, was small, yet there were those that loved her. And so I present to you tonight President Tucker of Dartmouth. (Prolonged applause.)

PRESIDENT TUCKER.

Mr. President and Gentlemen: It was a favorite expression of Dr. Jowett of Balliol, "The mind of the college." I will take this expression as a starting point for one or two things that I will say to you tonight. I once heard Colonel Higginson recall the fact that as a boy he heard Lyman Beecher, then in his old age, preach at Hanover street or Park Street church. He remembered nothing of what he said so far as the sermon was concerned. What he did remember was this: The old man, as he said, after he had read and re-read his text, took off his spectacles, shut up the Bible and said, "Well, brethren, that is a mighty good text, anyhow." (Laughter.) If I make acknowledgement in like fashion to this expression which I borrow from Dr. Jowett, it is partly because of its timeliness.

As our colleges are pretty much in evidence today on what you would call the other side or perhaps at the other end, it is rather assuring to be able to remind you that a college has a mind. I understand, Mr. President, that I have the kickoff (laughter), but I have not got the ball. If anybody along the line has got the ball concealed about his person and he lets it loose during this affair, I want to be counted in the mix-up. (Great laughter and applause.)

"The mind of the college." There are certain aspects that I will touch upon and perhaps certain stages in which the mind of the college expresses itself. Let me begin with what Dr. Jowett had in mind especially himself. He referred, of course, to the collective mind—to the sense or sentiment of the college; to what perhaps in some respects we call college opinion or college spirit. Everybody knows, whether he is at present inside a college or not, that there is no place where everything is quite so much alive, unless it is on a stock exchange—as it is in a college. And not only everything that is living is alive, but I sometimes think that the old prophecy is true, "Your dead men shall live again." The past is in every college just as much as the present is, and every fellow who finds his way into college finds himself suddenly confronted with the past in some concrete form. As Pascal says, "You go to your library and take down a book, expecting to find an author, and to your surprise you find a man." And so every fellow in every college who for any reason whatever goes back into its past is suddenly confronted by a man, and that man belongs to him. There is a sense of ownership about everything that he touches, till at last he comes to feel that he is part and parcel of one great, living, tremendously vital whole.

Now there are different men from different sections upon whom this impression is more real than upon others. I notice it especially, and I presume others do, with men who come from the West and from the newer sections. I once in a while find a western man down in our graveyard prowling around over our old tombs to get at the real back numbers of the college and find out just who they were and what they were. The sense of age impresses men so distinctly who come out of the newer sections. We are not old, but the old that we have is of course to us the commonplace.

Now the thing about the mind of the college in this sense that impresses one, I think, who is all the while in college life is this: that it has a tremendous absorbing power; it incorporates a man into that sentiment and into that spirit at once. Now so far as the expression of that sentiment is concerned, I appeal to those who are not too long out of college to justify this statement: that college fellows, when they come to express their collective mind, are the most conservative of any set of men with whom anyone can be acquainted. A college man will stand and look at a thing longer before he takes part in it and will be more critical in regard to the thing which the college is doing, whether it is on the part of the administration or on the part of the fellows, than any other man in regard to any other movement with which I am familiar. This is not saying that a college is not full of impulse; this is not saying that a college, when it acts, does not act swiftly. But it is saying—and I think everyone who knows anything about a college will justify me in saying—that college fellows are tremendously conservative in making up their minds, and I think I shall always be justified in saying that college fellows, as they do make up their minds, make up their minds on the whole as justified by second thought. I have known questions to come before college men about which there was a good deal of doubt, and I never knew a body of college men to hold any critical question long in mind but that they came out right. I would rather trust a good square question to the practical honesty and sound sense of a body of college students—this is my experience—than to any other organization with which I have ever been connected, not excluding the church. (Applause.)

So much for the collective mind of the college and the process of incorporating every man into it at the very outset.

Now the most interesting expression to me in many ways of the college mind as I see it is this: when the process of individualizing begins. Every fellow gets almost immediately under the collective sense, but it is not long before the individualizing process begins, and I believe that the best place in which a fellow can find himself—I do not say prove himself, but I believe that the best place in which a fellow can find himself is in college. I think that a better place for a man to prove himself at times is in business, but every fellow is brought very quickly against a challenge, and it is a very wide challenge, and the challenge finds out almost every fellow in its own way. The challenge may come from the subject matter, the challenge may come from another man, the challenge may come from a situation; but no fellow gets through the first year of college that he does not have some kind of a challenge flung straight at his head, and although one may evade it he knows that he has been challenged to do something and think something. It does not necessarily apply to books, it does not follow altogether the lines of subject matter, but either through the subject matter or through some other man or through the situation itself—it may be on the gridiron—there comes a challenge to him which he cannot escape, and pretty soon individuality begins to assert itself. You see men in the mass and feeling themselves in the mass, and by and by you begin to see them separate, and individuals come out and stand out and are recognized in their individuality. The individualizing process as it goes on in this respect is one of the most interesting and most effective processes which a man can watch as he sees other men. And I ought to say—and I want to say in the presence of President Eliot—that one of the great things—I think on the whole the greatest thing—which has contributed to the individualizing in the sense of bringing out the individuality of college men is the elective system, and bringing out men not only mentally but morally. I have seen men saved by the biological laboratory—morally saved. I have seen men who didn't care a rap for what they were doing in any way whatever, barely able to get on through one or two years and save themselves from being thrown out, interested by the appeal that some particular science made to them, and in a minute that man was changed in all his interests and in all his purpose, away down into his conscience and his heart. When a thing finds a man and begins to individualize him and the individuality comes out in the man and he begins to be responsible for himself, that man is practically a saved man to society and to himself.

Now one thing more. After the individualizing process goes on, or while it goes on, there is the process of the adjustment of mind to the mind of the world. And that in itself is what college men are doing. (Continued on next page.)

If you are contemplating the purchase of a piano, a good precedent to go by is that established by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC in selecting forty Stieff pianos for their school this year. THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC is the largest institution in the world for the teaching of music. Their judgment on a piano is expert.

THE STIEFF piano manufacturers make a specialty of building pianos for schools. Why? Because they have to stand a severe test and the STIEFF has stood this test for the past fifty years. Why not profit by the example set by the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC? If you do you will make no mistake.

lege life represents at various stages, and I think today more than ever, in very distinct ways. I believe there is less waste of time today in putting the mind of a college man into contact with the mind of the world than in any generation of college men. I think that there is less fumbling, that there is more insight, that there is more adaptation, and I think that this is due in large part to the fact that the subject matter with which men leave most colleges most highly charged is the subject matter that they will continue distinctly in their thinking as they get in among affairs. There has been a very large change in this respect in the temper as well as in the method by which men come in contact with the mind of the world. The old method was sheer, straight discipline. Give a man a trained mind, no matter how he got it, no matter on what subjects, and cast him loose, and soon or late he would find his place.

Then came the period of investigation, and colleges and universities gave to the world the investigating mind—the mind sharpened by practice in science. We are not through with that. But I think that as we have come into that great grasp of subjects which lie within the region of economic study in all its branches, men are coming into the sense of the mind that is to be adapted and that is to apply itself as soon as its information is correct and broad to the affairs of the world. Now this remains to be tested. It remains to be seen whether the product of the mind which is today at work so largely in the great rehumanizing studies will accomplish as much as the mind which has come out of sharp investigation of the last generation, and the previous generations which gave the disciplined mind.

Take these facts in regard to that earlier mind. I suppose that the average age of men in the present liberal cabinet in England must be 50. There are 22 men in the liberal cabinet. Eleven of those men are graduates of Oxford, five of them of Balliol. How many of the other eleven are from Cambridge or the Scotch universities and how many apart from John Burns, are not from any, I do not know. But out of that generation that stood for sheer discipline, as Oxford stands today for sheer discipline rather than for investigation or adaptation, you have men handling the affairs of England. I remember Professor Palmer of Cambridge said to me after he had just come from visiting Dr. Caird, who took Dr. Jowett's place at Balliol, "They sent to Scotland and brought Dr. Caird out of his chair of philosophy by main force and set him down at Balliol—for what? Just for this one thing: to maintain the prestige of Balliol in India." Balliol had put more rulers of India into the field than any other college, and Dr. Caird was set to the business of maintaining that distinction. Bismarck said of the German universities of his time, "A third of the men go to pieces in dissipation; a third of the men come out in the ground of scholarship; the other third rule Europe."

I notice that someone who is skilled in statistics said the other day that after going over the long list of men who attended the dinner given to Prince Henry when he was in this country, known as the dinner of the captains of industry, he looked up the men who were reported in "Who's Who" and found that out of sixty of those men who were captains of industry, forty were graduates of colleges. Now I speak of this as showing that back in that generation—for those men must have been fifty years old at least—back in that generation when it was sheer discipline, before investigation really began and before the subjects that are now at the front were at the front, those men had made contact with the mind of the world. And the problem before us today in our colleges is, can we, coming nearer to the mind of the world, thinking more closely along those lines, with subjects that touch everywhere the mind of the world—can we put men into that rugged, commanding contact that the previous generations have shown in their handling of men.

Before I sit down I want to say in a word one or two things about what I conceive to be the temper of mind that not only the colleges have got to put in to the world, but everything else that undertakes to put men there today, whether men get into the world by way of the college and school or by way of the street. I believe, gentlemen, that we have got to have in our American mind a great deal more humility in our way of thinking if we are going to do anything now that we are fairly in the world as a nation. I do not believe that the nations from the Far East or the nations of the world at large are going to put up any longer with our conceit, and if we are going to do business with men who know as much as a great many men far out in the world know, we have got to train ourselves first of all to humility—I believe that through and through—or we shall go down. (Applause.)

And next to that I believe we have got to train ourselves with a tremendous discipline to right-mindedness. Men have allowed themselves to be shut up in compartments, and if a man's emotional compartment was all right it was supposed that he was all right. The times are saying to us, it is not so, you have got to have right-mindedness as well as right conscience and right feeling toward men. And if your mind goes astray and you do not count straight and you do not think straight and you do not do with your brains the straight thing, it will all come to folly in the end. And with that, I believe it goes almost without saying that somehow, somehow, in dealing with the mind of the time we have got to get it out of that everlasting self-seeking, else you will run off men more and more into sheer isolation and you will get men standing out more and more alone and awfully lonesome. (Applause.) And whether it be as I have said, that a man gets into the world by way of the street or by way of the college, it does not make so much difference, after all, if he gets into contact with the mind of the world in the right way and has mind enough to make the world go right. (Great applause.)

President Powers. I think, gentlemen, that I neglected to say to you, and I will say it also to the guests, that the subject for discussion this evening is "The Modern University or College." That is rather a broad subject as Dr. Tucker has treated it, and I do not imagine there is anything in that subject that precludes the discussion of athletics. I did not care to have my own college talk about athletics (laughter), but if our great rival sees fit to discuss athletics it is all within line of the subject, we shall have the opportunity to make the reply next fall, and we will do it under what are termed the new rules. (Laughter.) By the way, this game tonight is being played under the new rules. You notice that so far there has been nothing that anyone could take exceptions to. And I may as well say to our distinguished guests that we had one other purpose in bringing together the representatives of these large institutions. If there are any differences between them the Newton Club stands prepared to settle them (laughter and applause), and I can say with perfect safety that any settlement reached by the Newton Club will be a correct settlement, made without prejudice and without bias.

(Mr. Powers introduced as the next speaker Professor McDonald of Brown, whose remarks, together with those of Professor Sedgwick of the Institute of Technology and Professor Farnham of Yale, will appear next week.)

President Powers. The next and last speech, gentlemen, will be in Latin. (Laughter.) I have allowed the talk to go on in English up to this point, but I want to say to the distinguished gentleman who will close the speaking tonight that a speech in Latin will not in any way phase this audience. I remember that some years ago, when there was a lively gubernatorial contest going on between Governor Long upon the one side and the late Judge Thompson on the other, Governor Long had just brought out his translation of Virgil and on a certain night Mr. Thompson, who was the Democratic candidate was making a speech in Gray's Hall, South Boston, a hall which had rung many times in the cause of Irish freedom. He said in his inimitable way, with a little impediment in his speech which always made it delightful to listen to him, "Wh-wh-wh has this man L-Long ever d-d-done that entitles him to be g-g-governor of Massachusetts? Why his f-f-friends tell us that he has t-translated Virgil into English. But wh-wh-wh of that? What value is that to us? You and I r-read it in the original." (Great laughter.) And so it is of this club. We read it in the original. And I trust none of the distinguished guests this evening have in any way refrained from the quotation of the old classics simply because they thought that this was a commercial body and not an educated class of men.

Now I want to propose one toast before I call on the last speaker, and that toast is, "The Great Cause of Education."

I take great pleasure in presenting to you the President of the oldest and the largest of our universities—President Eliot of Harvard. (Great applause.)

PRESIDENT ELIOT.

Mr. President—Members of the Newton Club:

Professor Farnham has reminded me that a few months ago an anonymous graduate of Harvard University gave Yale University $10,000 to be kept as a permanent fund, the income to provide annually some lectures at Yale which should promote good relations between Yale and Harvard. (Laughter and applause.) I do not know who gave this $10,000, but I was very much pleased to be invited to give the first lecture with this object at New Haven last November. I took as my subject "The Similarities and the Differences among American Universities and Colleges." And the main thesis which I maintained was that the American universities and colleges are essentially very much alike, and particularly that they are alike in their ideals, in the objects which they have set before themselves, in the ends which they propose in regard to the education of American youth. That I believe to be the fact, and one of the most encouraging and delightful facts concerning the organization of American society.

It is quite true that these five institutions represented here tonight are, as Professor Farnham has said, to declare that they have and that they make common cause, and that cause is the promotion of education for Americans. Nevertheless there are differences between the American institutions of learning, the State and the endowed, the Eastern and the Western, the Northern and the Southern. There are differences of speech, there are differences of habitual atmosphere, there are differences of history; and on resemblances and differences alike the college spirit of each institution is founded.

Now Harvard has a different history from every other American institution of education. It is older; it arose under different circumstances, from the loins of different men and women. It is not the oldest university on this continent, though many people think so. It had a predecessor, a famous predecessor, where admirable books were admirably printed for generations before Harvard was thought of, and that university is still active and at work in a nation which is rising in the scale of nationality. The oldest university on this continent is the University of Mexico. But Harvard has had a history of its own, and one of the most striking incidents in its long story is the record of the meeting at which the college seal was adopted. You will find that record reproduced in fac simile in the quinquennial catalogue of the University. The authors of that seal had, it seems now, an absolute inspiration. They drew a shield and on it three open books and on the books one word, "Veritas." That is the inspiration of Harvard University from the very beginning. Truth—or, as Professor Sedgwick has put it, science; it is all the same. But that has been the inspiration of every American institution of learning, of every well grounded effort to educate American youth. We claim no monopoly of this spirit at Harvard. We rejoice that it pervades all our institutions of education. Then, owing to the circumstances of its origin built and nourished by Non-Conformists or Dissenters, or by men who for freedom to worship God had crossed the ocean and dared the wilderness, freedom of thought has been the fundamental principle of Harvard University. From the very beginning it has served freedom as it has served nothing else. In religion, in government, in politics, freedom has been its leading word. Of course that means that it has been in high degree individualistic from the beginning. It remains so today. But then more and more that same spirit of individualism penetrates all our other institutions of learning. In the admirable book which Professor Farnham alluded to, by Professor Dicey, worthy successor in the Vinerian Professorship at Oxford of Blackstone, he points out how individualism in the first half of the nineteenth century gradually came to dominate the thought and the policy of Great Britain. Now individualism has dominated the thought and policy of Harvard University from the beginning. It has probably paid too little attention to the opposite policy of collectivism—the policy which, as Professor Dicey points out, was developed in the last half of the nineteenth century until it seemed almost to threaten to overcome the earlier policy of individualism.

Now, as I was trying to point out at the meeting of the New England Society of New York City on Forefather's Day, we have before us another development in which we are trying to show the way at Harvard, and the end is not yet. As Professor Farnham again has indicated, at Universities and colleges we have to work for the next generation and not primarily for our own. It needs some imagination to be a good college and university teacher. It needs a constructive imagination, an imagination which builds. Now the new principle which has got to come out of this conflict between individualism and collectivism is the principle of voluntary cooperation—free individuals freely uniting with good will, I believe that all the American colleges are going to teach that doctrine, that the very essence, the essential quality, of our future progress in industry, in commerce, in art, in the right development of our free institutions—the essential quality must be in this combination of individualism with collectivism under the form of the voluntary cooperation of free men.

That is what we are aiming at now at Harvard. A university which is in close, intimate relations with all the forces of society should always be looking to the future, as I have already said—should always be trying to lead, not to follow—to lead in safe paths to a clearly imagined good. That is what all the American universities and colleges are, I believe, trying to do. And that is one of the reasons why the American people as a whole have such a faith in and such a passion for education. That is the most encouraging, delightful, solid fact concerning our American people. And we must give a very large definition to the term "American" when we speak of the American people's love of education. Sometimes we are afraid of the incoming of masses of what we call foreigners. We were all foreigners a little while ago and we have been educated into our present modes of thought by the schools and colleges and churches of our country. And we may have perfect faith that the results will be the same for every nationality, of whatever religion, that comes in here with an eager desire for education. Consider what we ourselves have seen in regard to the power of education toward assimilating new masses of foreign population. Consider what we have seen in Massachusetts, Boston and Cambridge can hardly have any city governments that are not dominated by Catholics. There has been a superintendent of public instruction in Boston, a Roman Catholic and an Irishman, and a very good superintendent. We must not be discouraged by this process of education in our country. We must not fear of the result. We must hold fast to the ideals and purposes which have brought us safely to our present condition. We must hold fast to this giving to education by private individuals, by public authorities. We must hold fast to the zeal for good schools, good colleges, good universities, which has characterized our people for so many generations and which will bring the future generations, changed though they be, to a safe issue.

I cannot express to you, gentlemen, the firmness, the solidity of my belief in the freeing power of education in our country—in the safety to which we may look forward if only we cling firmly to the educational policies which have brought us to our present condition. Indeed we have seen, as Professor Sedgwick pointed out, an immense expansion of subjects taught in our institutions of learning—in schools, colleges and universities alike. That was an inevitable necessity. That has only added to the power of the institutions of education. That expansion has got to go on. Take Harvard, for example. More than fifty-five years ago Harvard resolved that it would prepare men for all the professions—not law, divinity and medicine alone, but for all the new professions involving applied science—guided in its first steps by a supremely wise letter from Abbot Lawrence, a manufacturer of cotton goods. Since then there has been a steady progress in developing the means of training men for all the new professions. All the Western universities of our country exhibit the same spirit. They propose to develop a solid training for men who are going into all the professions exercised in our country. It is a universal desire, a very safe and proper desire, indicating that the universities will prepare men for exercising efficiently all the powers which professional training can give. It is efficiency that the American universities are after—efficiency with high ideals—and there is no lasting efficiency without those ideals.

Professor Farnam spoke of one man as illustrating well the general practice of the American Universities in training serviceable men. He mentioned the name of William H. Baldwin, Jr. He was a Harvard graduate. He died too young. He was an expression of the recent type—he was himself the type of the recent Harvard graduate. He went into business. He carried into business in the roughest and wildest parts of our country—Montana, for example—the standards of his community, of his place of education. Then he went to the South and fed the power which one honest, frank, and on a great railroad system exemplified—straightforward man can exert over great bodies of men simply by the force of his character, by the force of their faith in his honesty and righteousness. And then he came back to the great city of our country and was there in place of great authority and great trust. He was in receipt of a large income. He had been a poor boy. But when he was asked to take the chairmanship of that Committee of Fifteen which investigated the moral conditions—or the immoral conditions—of some of the worst quarters of the great city and was advised that it was inexpedient for the president of his railroad to take such a position, he replied that he was going to be chairman of that Committee of Fifteen, whatever else he did.

Now that is a worthy type of the business man that the American universities are turning out. I will mention another—like Baldwin, dead too soon—Russell Davenport of the Sheffield Scientific School, manufacturer of armor plating; put at the head of a great ship building yard, because manufacturing was what he knew best and liked best and was good for; again a noble type of the product of the American university, perfectly true to the ideals of honesty and serviceableness, intelligent, efficient in the highest degree. One may best illustrate the leading ideas in education by individual types. Here are two men from different communities and different universities who perfectly illustrate the new type. We are going to see a great many more illustrations in a great variety of fields. I cannot but doubt the correctness of the observation of Professor McDonald—I agreed to almost everything he said—I cannot but doubt the correctness of his supposition that there were not in our colleges and universities now so many great teachers as there used to be. I believe there are very many more. The type somewhat changes. But the only real way to prove the quality of the teacher is to look at the pupils when they get into service, and there is a comparison which no American university need shrink from. Of course I know best the product of Harvard University, because I know them personally and in their history. But look for a moment at such a group of men as are now directing the policies of the United States—at Roosevelt and Taft and Root and Bonaparte. (Applause.) Now those are comparatively young men. Are there any men more efficient than those—more "strenuous" if you please? Also are there any men in any governments who better illustrate the fundamental ideas of American government? Yet those men are all comparatively young, the product of the modern American universities. And in those four that I mentioned there are three universities represented. Let us, gentlemen, look forward with the utmost confidence to the future of American education, and when we feel confident in the future of American education we mean that we are confident in the future of the American people. (Applause.)

President Powers. Gentlemen, before we part I know that you will desire to make some expression of your obligation to the five gentlemen who have addressed us this evening, and I will ask you all to rise as expressing your vote of thanks for the service which these gentlemen have rendered. (Applause.)

In compliance with the request of the chair the members rose in acknowledgement of the thanks, after which the company dispersed.

Seated at the head table were President Powers, President Eliot, President Tucker, Prof. Henry W. Farnam of Yale, Prof. W. T. Sedgwick of M. I. T., Prof. McDonald of Brown, Hon. Alfred Hemenway (Yale) of Boston, Hon. Samuel J. Elder of Winchester, Dr. Abner Post of Boston (Harvard), Sherman L. Whipple, Boston, (Yale), W. C. Strong, Waban, (Dartmouth), and Mayor E. W. At the Theatres

Tremont Theatre—One of the most signal successes in Boston in many seasons is the "smart" musical play, "Molly Moonshine," which is Marie Cahill's starring vehicle for the present season.

MISS MARIE CAHILL, in the new musical play, "Molly Moonshine," at the Tremont Theatre.

and which is eclipsing even its wonderful success in New York City by its phenomenal business in the present engagement. There remains only one week more in which to see Miss Cahill, as she will not play in New England any more this year. Her return to Boston has been the greatest triumph of her career. Although her reception at the Hollis in

"Nancy Brown" was flattering two seasons ago, it could not compare with the emphatic character of this one. Standing room only has been the sign hung out at every performance, and the advance sale is such that the same is indicated for the rest of the engagement. Miss Cahill's art has proved itself even more magnetic than ever, and the triumph of the quiet and worth-while method of America's most popular comedienne over that of the conventional noisy kind has been scored to the credit of Boston. Miss Cahill demonstrates her ability to amuse most decidedly in "Molly Moonshine," and also indicates more strongly than ever a versatility that promises much for the future. It will not always be songs and comedy with Miss Cahill if she yields to the suggestions of her friends and admirers.

Keith's Theatre—The two leading attractions of the big variety program announced from Keith's for the week of Jan. 29 are European attractions and have never before been seen in New England. Auguste Van Biene, one of the world's really great cellists is certain to attract more music lovers to that popular playhouse than have been seen since the summer season. Herr Van Biene is a German, as his name would indicate, but his fame as a musician is not confined to Germany alone for he is identified throughout the length and breadth of the old world in connection with the "Broken Melody." When the "Yankee Circus on Mars" was produced at the New York Hippodrome last season the big sensational success of that spectacular performance was scored by Mlle. Therese Renz, a famous European horsewoman, formerly instructress to the Bavarian court. Mlle. Renz is the foremost horsewoman of Europe, and the Keith management are of the opinion that no handsomer or more wonderfully trained equines have ever been seen in this city. Mlle. Renz exhibits

Grand Opera House—There is an abundance of mirth, music, beauty and jollity in "Happy Hooligan's Trip Around the World," which is announced as the attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House for next week. It is altogether likely that almost every one knows that the farce comedy "Happy Hooligan's Trip Around the World" is based, to a considerable degree, upon the mythical doings and adventures of Mr. F. Oppen's genial hobo, cartooned so effectively in the New York Journal. A wealth of money has been spent on this enterprise. Since last season an entire new outfit of costumes and scenery have been purchased. The costumes alone have involved an expenditure of upwards of $25,000, and among them are some very beautiful creations. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Boston Theatre—After a season of two months in New York, the colossal English spectacle, "Babes in the Wood," will receive its first presentation in Boston at the Boston Theatre next Monday evening, when it enters on a limited engagement, to include the customary mid-week and Saturday matinees. Incidentally, the advent of this attraction in Boston means a return on the part of Manager Lawrence McCarthy of the Boston Theatre to his approved policy of "highest class attractions at fair prices," the scale ranging all the way from 25 cents for the gallery to a dollar for orchestra seats. "Babes in the Wood" is conceded to be one of the most sumptuous spectacles ever put on the American stage; the most elaborate, in fact, ever seen outside of Drury Lane, London. Briefly stated, the play illustrates the familiar nursery rhyme under the same title but with a number of characters from "Robin Hood" and "Cinderella" added. The American version departs considerably from the London story, having been rewritten for the three beautiful white horses and her engagement is limited to a single week included in the surrounding show are some of the best vaudevillians of this country. Prominent on the list will be found Howard and North in an original specialty, entitled, "Those Were the Happy Days"; Wilton Brothers, European comedy acrobats; Carroll Johnson, "The Bean Brummel of Minstrelsy"; Gallagher and Farrett, in a travesty sketch; Violet Dale, imitator of stage favorites; Miss Norton and Paul Nicholson, in a comedy sketch, "The Ladies Tailor"; Grace Leonard, "The American Vesta Tilly; Eddie Mack, clever step dancer, and Potter and Harris, acrobats and equilibrists. Harry Houdini, the "handcuff king" will be the star feature of the program the week of Feb. 5th.

American stage, so that it now embodies a great deal of new "business," together with a number of new songs, contributed by Robert B. Smith.

Just Mention It

It pays the buyer to buy from an advertiser and to say he saw the article advertised in this or that paper. The man who mentions an advertisement when buying goods really gets the best possible service, even better than the regular customer when this is possible. Why? Simply because the advertiser pays good money for his advertisement and he is glad to hear from it. It is a compliment to his good business judgment.

The National Consumers' League has sent out a folder which reads in part as follows:—

"It shall be the special object of the National Consumers' League to secure adequate investigation of the conditions under which goods are made, in order to enable purchasers to distinguish in favor of goods made in the well-ordered factory. The majority of employers are virtually helpless to maintain a high standard as to hours, wages, and working conditions under the stress of competition, unless sustained by the co-operation of consumers. Therefore, the National Consumers' League also proposes to educate public opinion and endeavor so to direct its force as to promote better conditions among the workers, while securing to the consumer exemption from the dangers attending unwholesome conditions. It further proposes to promote legislation, either State or Federal, whenever it may appear expedient."

The League statement further holds, "That the responsibility for some of the worst evils from which producers suffer rests with the consumers who seek the cheapest markets, regardless how cheapness is brought about."

"That it is, therefore, the duty of consumers to find out under what conditions the articles they purchase are produced and distributed, and insist that these conditions shall be wholesome, and consistent with a respectable existence on the part of the workers."

Great gains have been made in many communities by the League securing concessions and better conditions for workers.

The midwinter meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation will be held on Friday, Feb. 2, 1906, in the New Century Building, 177 Huntington Avenue, Boston. At the morning session, which opens at 10 o'clock, Mr. J. Horace Macfarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the American Civic League, will tell the interesting story of "The Awakening of Harrisburg." In the afternoon Professor Myron T. Scudder, principal of the State Normal School at New Paltz, N. Y., will speak on "The School City," which has been in operation for several years in his school. Mrs. Rheta Childs Dorr, of New York, will speak on the work of the Industrial Committee of the General Federation, of which she is the chairman.

Luncheon tickets at 50 cents each may be obtained from Mrs. William H. Elliott, 181 Kenrick Street, Brighton, Mass., by sending an order with money enclosed and an addressed and stamped envelope for the return of the ticket. All orders must be sent on or before Wednesday, January 31.

The new red Federation tickets will be necessary for admission to the sessions. A supply to be kept for use through the year has been sent to each Club Secretary by the Assistant Clerk, Mrs. Effie S. Nowers, 9 Sargent Street, Wintthrop. Two white tickets have been sent each club for this meeting for the use of the appointed delegates, entitling them to reserved seats.

We have painfully learned that to give to a beggar in the street is worse than useless. What is the inference? Are we to do nothing? I think not.

One good wholesale method of improvement of which you of the women's clubs are well aware is that of seeing to it by legislation that people who sell things for the baby or the bread-winner to eat shall make those things of food, and not of poison. The advent into practical politics of woman the consumer will mean an important gain to the American people in this and many other respects.

Next to food comes shelter. Another important legislative matter is the matter of housing; and on that question the Civic League has formed a committee to study the question and to bring before the legislature certain needed reforms.

A third great question that will come before the legislature this year is the question of medical inspection in the public schools. Some per cent. of our school children have seriously defective vision. Some considerable per cent., more difficult to ascertain, is troubled by defective hearing. Of these defects of the eyes and ears but a very small percentage is at present discovered by the teachers. Sometimes a doctor can do more for a child in twenty minutes spent in removing an adenoid than can be done for him twenty years of the best possible teaching.

These are some of the things that we are trying to do. Our methods are in obedience to the well-known injunction, "First be sure you're right, then go ahead." We make sure we are right by calling in the most eminent specialists on the particular subject which we are taking up, and getting them to agree upon a bill. We go ahead by calling the attention of public-spirited citizens all over the State to the merits of our bill, and by their aid and that of paid counsel pressing the matter upon the attention of the members of the General Court. We feel sure that the women's clubs will be among the intelligent citizens to whom we can with confidence appeal.

Katahdin Club.

The first meeting for the year of the Katahdin Club will be held at the Woodland Park Hotel, Auburndale, Tuesday evening, January 30. There will be a reception at 6 o'clock, dinner following at 6.30. The annual meeting and election of officers will be held. Mr. Holman F. Day, Mrs. F. B. Hornbrook, Mrs. Grace Dickinson Patterson and Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles will be among the guests present. Mr. Day is the well known poet-humorist and writer of down East dialect stories, which have been widely read, and is a well known newspaper man being associated with the editors of the Lewiston Journal in the publication of that paper.

Public Library.

To the Young People of Newton:—There are many young people in the city who do not know the use and advantages of the Young People's Room in the Library. This room is open from 1.30 until 6 and from 8 until 8 on Saturdays and we would like to see it filled every afternoon.

Although in the Young People's Room you are allowed to choose your own books, there is always someone at the desk glad to assist you with any reference work or in choosing a story.

If you want to find something about any noted person, Benjamin Franklin, for instance, come to the Library where you can find reference books and always someone ready to help you. You will find the same help in looking up electricity, games, history, or any other subject of interest to you or in connection with your studies.

You will find on the tables the American Boy, St. Nicholas, Youth's Companion and other magazines. There are also for your use in the room stereoscopic pictures of different countries.

The cards which are given you in the Young People's Room are for use in any part of the Library. If you do not find what you want downstairs there is always someone upstairs ready to help you.

If you would like at any time special pictures or lists of books, ask for them at the desk. There is on exhibition now a good collection of Indian pictures and you will find on the bulletin board a list of books about Indians.

Automobile Notes.

"It is a case of expansion," said Manager Chester I. Campbell yesterday when asked about the great Automobile & Power Boat Show to be held in Mechanics Building March 10-17. "We have gone to the roof, touched the cellar and bulged the walls in an endeavor to keep this exposition under one roof, but it can't be done. We shall have to use Symphony Hall for the overflow."

Exhibition and Grand Halls with the stage and first balcony of the latter hall will be filled with the finest cars that man, machinery and brains can produce.

Many cars will be shown that were not finished in time for the New York Show, and will make the Boston Show a much more complete one than that at New York for the most of the exhibits at that show will be moved bodily to Boston.

In the basement will be seen racing boats, rowing boats, launches, and power boats of every description. Boats of world-wide reputations for speed, boats for comfort, boats for fishing, boats for gunning, boats for cruising, boats for pleasure, boats for everything and everybody, and it will be a sight worth seeing.

The canoes display will be especially attractive to New Englanders for the best canoes in the world are made in this section of the country, and all the best makers will be there with their latest models. Then there will be motors of many makes, and what boat or automobile owner is not interested in the latest development in this line? Portable houses will occupy many spaces, and the development of this line of industry as shown by the exhibitors will astonish the sightseers.

In the balconies will be the most complete display of automobile and boat parts and accessories ever shown in this section of the country. Changes of interest to the auto owner, such as the use of leather instead of basket work for the covering luggage carriers, new devices for attaching extra to a machine, improved sparking plugs, etc., will be seen on every hand.

Symphony Hall will be used for foreign cars and later applicants for space at this Show of Shows.

Literary Notes

"A Five Thousand Dollar Suburban House," by Ernest M. A. Machado in the February issue of Suburban Life, describes with great precision of detail a house that can really be built for that sum. There is no guess work in this paper, and Mr. Machado amply proves that an attractive, comfortable convenient house is possible at that figure. The January issue of Suburban Life contained an article on "Forestry as a Profession for Young Men" that was the subject of much interest. This is followed in the February issue with "Greenhouse Work as a Profession for Young Men," written by W. N. Craig, the noted horticulturist of North Easton, Mass. It is a paper that young men with a love for horticulture would do well to read and ponder. Another article that will interest young people is "Raising Corn to Pop," which tells the experience of two schoolboys in selling popped corn.

"Country Life Questions and Answers," and "The Month's Work," which have come to be regular features of Suburban Life, and much appreciated ones, are more than usually valuable in this issue.

Lincoln Steffens' "The Gentleman from Essex" in the February number of McClure's, makes its appeal especially to honest but careless voters. Steffens shows to these men the assemblymen, senators, state officers, whom they have elected, in the hurry of their bartering, lying here, betraying there, fighting always for corporate interests. He draws aside the veil from the committee room, he takes the reader into the caucus where the program is mapped out before the legislature officially knows anything about it. He discloses a state of affairs which shocks all the more because he has gone inside and dragged out the hard cold facts which hit a powerful sight harder than general suspicions.

"The Gentleman from Essex" is Everett Colby, a rich young man who turned to politics as a sort of post-graduate football. Boss Lentz of Newark, saw the possibilities of his youth, his money, and his supposed carelessness as to the moral side of the situation. So he pushed him ahead, wanted to make him a state Senator; but Colby realized his limitations and refused. He went to the Assembly instead and became floor leader. Then the truth dawned upon him and he told Gov. Murphy, Lentz, and the rest of them what course he was going to follow. Mayor Fagan of Jersey City helped to show him the way. The machine had intended making Colby speaker of the House, but when he said that he wanted to keep the Ten Commandments and the faith of men, and that he wouldn't lend himself to their schemes, they told him he could shift for himself. How he shifted and took the Essex convention from Lentz and went back to Trenton as a state Senator to fight the fight of the people, is a part of Steffen's story. Colby has nerve. With Tom McCarter, Ex-Gov. Murphy, Senator Dryden, Lentz and the smaller fry biting at his heels, he went straight ahead, and this young man is being watched by politicians all over the country, because his continued success or his failure is going heavily to condition machine politics.
